Guard Bill Passes House, Chrysler Gets Tank Order

Britain Is Reported Offering to Lease Island Bases to Pay For U. S. Destroyers

By John G. Norris,
Post Staff Writer

The House yesterday passed the National Guard mobilization bill, empowering the President to call out some 396,000 guardsmen and Army reservists for a year's active service anywhere in the Western Hemisphere.

As the House acted, the Senate heard reports that Great Britain had offered to lease certain naval base sites in the Americas to the United States in return for 50 or more reconditioned destroyers, and received a demand from an Administration supporter that such action be taken.

The reported British offer was termed just another story, by the White House.

Downtown, meanwhile, the Army placed an order with the Chrysler Corporation for construction of a $30,000,000 plant to build tanks and at the same time contracted for $25,000,000 worth of the mobile fortresses under mass production methods.

Military circles heard the order called for about 1,000 "medium" tanks weighing close to 25 tons each.

Guard Bill Vote Is 243-33

The National Guard bill was approved by a 242 to 33 vote after the House defeated, 210 to 110, an effort to limit use of the troops to the United States and its possessions. While President Roosevelt has said that the chances are 100 to 1 that the Guard will not be sent out of the continental United States, House leaders urged defeat of the limitation on the ground it would be misunderstood by Latin America and was "bad military policy."

The measure, already approved by the Senate, was returned to the upper house for action on relatively minor amendments. It is expected to become law sometime next week, and the Guard called out in increments this fall.

Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, made the plea for sale of the destroyers to Great Britain, declaring that the ships might mean the difference between a British victory and defeat. Only the British fleet, he told the Senate, "stands between the Americas and the greatest military juggernaut ever devised."

Lee Visits White House

Lee made the proposal after visiting the White House, but he declined to say whether or not he had discussed the matter with the President.

There was no official comment on the report of a British offer to grant 99-year leases for naval base sites in its New World territory, but Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said Britain had been making "almost weekly appeals" for destroyers. He declined to discuss the report of the offer to trade bases for the ships.

The Lee demand, which followed

The Gallup Poll

85% Approve Calling Guard

By Dr. George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 15.—The bill passed by the Senate and House authorizing President Roosevelt to call the National Guard for one year's intensive training is approved by an overwhelming majority of American voters in a national survey.

In fact, the proportion favoring the measure is among the highest ever registered in an American Institute poll. When voters in the cross-section survey were asked:

"Do you think the National Guard should be called out for one year of military training?" the results were:

Favoring Calling Guard 85%
Opposed 15

Fewer than one person in every ten (9 per cent) was undecided or without an opinion.

The vote is very much in line with national sentiment already expressed on the issue of conscription, and it furnishes additional evidence of the public's great desire for preparedness.

Institute polls have found the voters two to one (66 per cent) in favor of the principle back of the Burke-Wadsworth bill—a peacetime draft of able-bodied young men. Every State in the Union voted for conscription in the Institute's last survey reported a week ago.

'What Guard Is for'

The Calling of the National Guard, which would mean an addition of anywhere from 130,000 to 200,000 to the regular Army, finds no serious opposition in any of the major population groups. By a vote of 82 per cent or more, it is approved in all geographical sections, in all age groups, and from top to bottom of the income scale. On few issues have the common people ever been so unified.

Why the measure is popular can be clearly seen from the reasons given by the voters in explaining their attitude. The first and main reason is that "we must be prepared for emergency with a skilled and trained fighting force." A 29-year-old farmer in Fallon, Nev., summed up this sentiment when he said: "We can't get too much training in modern methods of warfare."

The second reason is that it is logical to call up the Guard because they "already have a foundation of training in tactics," so that this would be the easiest and quickest way to augment the Nation's fighting force.

Willkie Calls City Machines 'Cancerous'

Candidate Addresses Kansas City Crowd On Trip to Elwood

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, Aug. 15.—Wendell L. Willkie told a crowd at Municipal Airport today that Kansas City had eliminated one of "the cancers" in democracy "by wiping out the Pendergast machine."

He asserted that democracy was the "better way of life" and that it also should "be made the most effective way of life." To make democracy effective, he continued, "cancers," or political machines, should be eliminated.

He called on the people to wipe out machines with "so stubborn a vote that they'll never be able to raise their slimy heads in this part of the country again."

Stays Less Than an Hour

The Republican Presidential nominee, en route by plane from Colorado Springs to Elwood, Ind., where he will deliver his acceptance speech Saturday, paused only briefly.

The chartered plane, on which Mrs. Willkie also was a passenger, landed at 5:28 p. m. (C. S. T.) and took off at 6:25 p. m.

"Throughout this campaign," Willkie said, "I will continue to bring out the high sounding phrases which have emanated from Washington, but the low performances which were carried into effect."

At the outset, Willkie said his audience knew that democracy today "is in test throughout the world. "We know that democracy must

'Not One Scintilla of Evidence'

Communism Never Taught In D. C. Schools, Says Holmes

"Not one scintilla of evidence" of communistic teaching in District public schools has come to the attention of school officials, Dr. Chester W. Holmes, acting superintendent, said yesterday.

He had been asked to comment on an FBI representative's charge that un-American doctrines are seeping into the Nation's schools and colleges.

"The idea of such teaching is abhorrent to our teachers and officers. And we have every reason to believe that if such teaching were going on, we would soon hear of it," Dr. Holmes said.

"If we had bona fide evidence of any teaching or advocacy of communism in public schools," he continued, it would be promptly and thoroughly investigated. And the result of such investigation would be submitted to the Board of Education for such action as it saw fit.

"But so far not one scintilla of evidence has been adduced over a period of years that communism has ever been taught or advocated in District public schools," Dr. Holmes concluded.

Lee R. Pennington, administrative assistant to J. Edgar Hoover, yesterday elaborated on statements which he made in an address Wednesday before the Washington Rotary Club.

He said that teaching "dealing with communistic activities" was cropping up at various points, but he would not cite specific localities from which such reports had filtered to the FBI. He said he did not mean to imply that such teaching was general, but added that enough of it is going on "to be cause for concern."

Naval Forces Mobilized By Athens

Leaves Canceled After Unknown Sub Torpedoes Warship; Planes Bomb Vessel

By the Associated Press

Athens, Aug. 15.—Greek shipping sources said tonight that the Greek steamer Appeti, with 400 passengers aboard, including many American citizens of Balkan origin, had been halted by an Italian warship and taken to Palermo, Sicily.

The Appeti, these sources said, sent a radio message three days ago that she was proceeding to Palermo to be searched under Italian orders, and the ship has not been heard from here since then.

The Appeti was said to have been en route from Lisbon to Piraeus and was reported to have picked up the passengers who landed at Lisbon from a transatlantic liner.

Greece Mobilizes Navy

By the United Press

Athens, Greece, (Friday), Aug. 16. Greece mobilized her naval forces early today after an unidentified submarine sank the Greek light cruiser Helle in Tinos Harbor and a squadron of allegedly Italian planes bombed the Greek passenger ship Frinton off Crete.

The submerged submarine which sank the 2,115-ton Helle, built in New York in 1913, sent two more torpedoes smashing into a quay crowded with children and religious pilgrims, killing many of them.

The minelaying cruiser was torpedoed early Thursday as she rode at anchor with 100 men aboard in the Aegean Island port, about 100 miles east of Italy's submarine base of Leros, and she went down with one dead and many injured.

Bombers Identified

The 1,361-ton passenger ship Frinton, out of Samos, was said to have been attacked Thursday by a squadron of planes "definitely identified" as Italian off the North Coast of Crete, but all the bombs missed their mark.

Italian-Greek relations were at a crucial point early today as the Greek navy canceled all leaves and ordered men back to ship.

(Wary of a fatal snap in the tension with Italy, the Greek government tonight forbade all ships to leave port, according to the Associated Press dispatch.—Editor's note.)

France Implores England to Lift Blockade on Food

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Vichy, Aug. 15.—The French government has asked Great Britain to lift the blockade against France to the extent of permitting foodstuffs to reach the French people. In a communication sent to London, Paul Baudoin, the French foreign minister, declared that the Nazis pledged on their word of honor that food supplies so sent into France would not be confiscated by the German military authorities for the consumption of their own people.

In an interview with Paris Soir today, Baudoin, while declaring that he realized England regarded the blockade as the most effective way of bringing the Nazi regime to its knees, went on to say, "nevertheless, I cannot help thinking that Great Britain might at least have used a little more care in employing this weapon. To deprive of the most essential foodstuffs millions of noncombatants and millions of women and children who in many cases are separated from the head of the family now a prisoner of war, seems to me so grave a decision that a foreign government and a former ally, at that should take it only after a very serious examination of conscience . . .

"England, which has never known such sufferings, should not underestimate the bitterness which such measures will excite among the most patient people."

NAZI PLANES STRIKE AT BRITAIN'S HEART—Map shows sections of England bombed yesterday by Germans. Inset map, enlarging area around London, shows how waves of planes swung up Thames River Valley to British capital

By Drew Middleton,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Croyden, England, Aug. 15.—Screaming down in a slanting dive from 3 miles away, 20 to 30 big black-crossed Nazi bombers poured tons of explosives on Croydon Airport and its thick surrounding belt of homes and factories today from a point-blank range of only a few hundred feet.

They sowed death and reaped ruin, barely skimming their targets, then roaring back to the clouds amid a hail of antiaircraft and British fighter plane that took a toll of three attackers.

Houses were smashed to pulp. Explosions thundered in the factory district. Smoke clouds puffed up into the battle-streaked sky. Children fled from their play and grownups screamed encouragement to British pilots and gunners who could not hear above the din.

8 Miles From Charing Cross

The attack brought the war of ruin from the skies to Greater London. Croydon, a thickly settled suburb, is only 8 miles from the city's heart at Charing Cross.

Hundreds of Croydon's 200,000 population saw the air fight from the streets and their homes. Bombs that plummeted among them took an undisclosed toll.

Bomb-strewn splinters damaged a bus passing the big airport, a perfume factory was hit and set afire, and even as smoke clouds billowed over the neighborhood rescue crews

Airports Are Chief Targets of Attack, Berlin Reveals

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 15.—Germany threw the weight of her aerial hosts directly at the great throbbing heart of Britain's world empire late today as warplanes swirled over London, bombed Croydon Airport and smashed hard at the broad Tilbury wharves which stretch down the Thames from the capital.

The attack, pressed home through a veritable hell of antiaircraft fire amid wheeling British pursuit planes, was part of a synchronized onslaught upon all of Britain's vital centers and up and down her coasts from far northeast Scotland to extreme southwest England and Wales, said DNB, official German news

British Retreat on Desert

Churchill Admits Italians Are Winning in Somaliland

Copyright by New York Times

London, Aug. 15.—The British force resisting the Italian drive into Somaliland is in an extremely grave position. Though it is difficult to predict military events this far away, the British may have to adopt the advice given in a recent editorial in the Daily Telegraph to withdraw from Somaliland altogether.

"I have some unsatisfactory news for the House about Somaliland," Prime Minister Winston Churchill said in Commons today. "The small British force which was occupying the Tugargen position northeast of Hargeisa has been driven back by greatly superior Italian forces supported by armored vehicles and considerable artillery.

"As the operations are still in progress, I cannot say any more, but I will be dealing generally with the Near-Eastern situation in my statement next week."

It is clear from reports from Cairo and from the attitude here that the Italians have concentrated greater forces than were expected in the Somaliland.

The British are faced with the problem of whether it is better for prestige purposes to defend the Somaliland or concentrate on Palestine and Egypt. Clearly Egypt is important and Somaliland is not, since even if the Italians got Berbera and all the surrounding country, without naval support, which they do not have there, they could not do much really to hinder the British war effort.

The War Today

THE GREATEST AIR BATTLE of the world's history rages over Britain with a Nazi air armada of 1,000 planes striking at Croydon, London's famous airport, and at scores of places on England's coast and interior.

"LITTLE SUCCESS AT HIGH COST" is the English spokesman's summation of the battle, claiming that 144 German planes were downed with 27 British fighters lost.

ALTHOUGH ADMITTING GALLANT resistance from air fighters and terrific antiaircraft gunnery Berlin states her "irresistible" attacks threaten all English military establishments with destruction. D. N. B. claims 106 British planes were destroyed, with 29 German losses.

ANOTHER EUROPEAN WAR FRONT appears about to open as an unidentified submarine sinks a Greek light cruiser in Tinos harbor and sends two torpedoes into a quay crowded with children and pilgrims, killing many.

'Little Success at High Cost'

By the Associated Press

London (Friday), Aug. 16.—Britons dug their dead and wounded early today out of the bomb ruins of the biggest air attack in history, executed by an armada of more than 1,000 German planes which struck eight miles from the heart of London and spread destruction from the Scottish border to Lands End.

Enemy planes came back after midnight over the Midlands and northeastern and southwestern England. Explosions were heard in the southwest and residents of one town there detected a continuous rumbling which thought might be naval gunfire.

In the last dusk-to-dawn fury of the fighting yesterday, planes were reported plunging in smoke-trailing death dives at a rate of one a minute.

The British total claim for the day—144 German planes to 27 British—dwarfed previous reports on successive assaults since last Sunday.

[Germany announced 98 British planes were destroyed in air fights and eight more put out of commission on the ground. Loss of 29 Nazi planes was admitted.]

Yesterday's fierce air siege overshadowed all earlier mass raids.

Stukas Scream Down on Croydon Airport

What the British losses would amount to actually in dead and wounded, splintered homes and smashed buildings remained obscure despite communiques compiling reports from cities from the English Channel to the Irish Sea.

Listings of deaths were scattered and the Ministry of Home Security summed up the assault with the comment:

"Little success at a high cost."

London echoed with the wail of alarm sirens as the tide of Nazi bombardment ripped close about the sprawling city, heart of an embattled empire.

Big dark dive-bombers screamed down within a few hundred feet of the ground to dump tons of explosives at the Croydon airport in the suburbs eight miles south of Charing Cross, mid-London.

Other raiders smashed at objectives down the Thames from London.

Joint Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security announcements said that although there was one person killed and many injured in homes and factories in the densely settled section around Croydon, little damage was done to the airport itself.

Other reports of ruin and casualties came from Hastings on the southeast coast—landing place of the last successful invasion of England a thousand years ago—from the already hammered naval base at Portland, towns of the southwest and coastal cities of the northeast, and from industrial Rochester.

British military men kept a tight-lipped silence about details of Britain's own "mystery weapon"—a plane trap said to have played an "efficient and formidable" role in blocking the Nazi attacks.

The British press association said the trap was Britain's "latest hush-hush defense weapon"—a strict military secret at least for the present.

There were reports that at least one German bomber had been caught in the trap. However, the official British breakdown of the listing of enemy planes bagged showed:

20 or 30 Nazi Bombers Shot Down

Brought down by British fighter planes, 130; by antiaircraft, 11; by infantry soldiers (apparently with rifle fire), 2; by a Lewis (machine-gun) crew, 1.

The toll in the daybreak-to-dusk battles brought to 708 the number of German planes the British have reported shooting out of the sky since the start of mass raids last June 18.

The attack on Croydon was the deepest thrust in a mighty aerial offensive of a thousand or more Nazi raiders which beat at Britain from Scotland to the southern English coast in the greatest such attack in history.

And while ambulances still raced to the famous air field, air-raid sirens screamed all over London. At the time of this warning, however, no plane

QUESTIONS I WISH I COULD ANSWER

If I were a city editor or a managing editor or the head of a big news service, with scores or hundreds of good reporters straining at the leash, I'd assign some of them to dig up the answers to these questions:

Harlan Miller

* * * *

Is "military secrecy" being used as a subterfuge to conceal the slow start of the airplane, tank and enlistment drive?

Can warships be built faster than the experts think?

* * * *

Who helps Lindbergh write his speeches?

Why won't he tell who helps him?

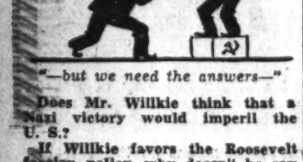
Whom do Lindbergh's helpers consult in promulgating the Lindy policies?

* * * *

Which American business leaders see or talk with Nazi agents like Gerhart Alois Westrick of New York, Scholz of Boston, Thomsen of Washington, Wiedmann of San Francisco?

* * * *

Is foreign bribery going on in the U. S. A., or are all Americans more honest and patriotic than the Norwegian, Dutch, Belgian and French leaders who sold out?



"—hard questions to answers"

Is there any danger of a sit-down strike, present or impending, in the defense production program?

Why haven't the American Communist links with Communist Russia been exposed, in spite of all the pother of the Dies Committee?

* * * *

Are American Communists getting any Nazi money to obstruct the American defense program?

Which of the 60 "accidents" in defense factories and on ships look like sabotage to the FBI?

How many "unusual accidents" in American Industry have occurred in 1940?

Does Herbert Hoover think that relief food sent to the French and Belgians might help the Nazis win the war?

* * * *

Are any of Wendell Willkie's advisers urging him to cling to the phony "war monger" campaign issue?

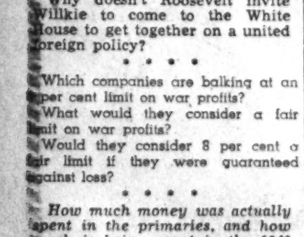
Where does Willkie stand on conscription?

* * * *

Where does Willkie stand on active service for the National Guard?

Where does Willkie stand on selling destroyers to Great Britain?

Since Willkie has an even chance to win, why can't he and Roosevelt get together on a united continuing foreign policy?



"—but we need the answers—"

Does Mr. Willkie think that a Nazi victory would imperil the U. S.?

If Willkie favors the Roosevelt foreign policy, why doesn't he say so?

If Mr. Willkie favors another foreign policy, why doesn't he say so?

* * * *

If President Roosevelt favors selling 50 destroyers to Britain, why doesn't he come out strong and plainly for it?

Why doesn't Roosevelt invite Willkie to come to the White House to get together on a united foreign policy?

* * * *

Which companies are balking at an 8per cent limit on war profits?

What would they consider a fair limit on war profits?

Would they consider 8 per cent a fair limit if they were guaranteed against loss?

* * * *

How much money was actually spent in the primaries, and how much is being spent in the 1940 election campaign?

To dig up the answers is not a one-man job, but maybe the AP, the UP and the INS could do it.

* * * *

Or possibly the hundreds of reporters now with the Government, who used to be newspaper men themselves, could be turned loose on these assignments and show that they can do a job.

150,000 to Greet Willkie in Elwood

63 Special Trains, Thousands of Autos To Bring Visitors

By Edward T. Folliard

Post Staff Writer

Elwood, Ind., Aug. 15.—Fair weather and an invasion of anywhere between 150,000 and 300,000 visitors were forecast tonight for Saturday's big show—the return of Wendell Willkie to his home town to accept the Republican nomination for President.

Imagine a third of Washington's population storming into Rockville, Md., on a Saturday afternoon and you will get some idea of what's about to happen to this Midwestern town.

The only hotel here, a 20-room structure called the Sidwell (Sleep Well at the Sidwell), was sold out long ago, and visitors are being assigned to private homes.

Owners Live in Tent

Bud Barry, an N. B. C. announcer from Washington, and A. E. Johnson, an N. B. C. engineer, were assigned to such a home, and discovered that the owners had moved out into the backayrd to live in a tent.

Homer Capehart, the man who manufactures those record-playing juke boxes you find in beer taverns and who is ringmaster of Saturday's sho, cited a few illuminating details today.

Sixty-three special trains, carrying about 1,000 Willkie rooters, are coming in, not to mention some 200 or 300 Pullmans.

A thousand buses and 200 school buses also are expected.

How many automobiles will come is still a guess, but parking arrangements have been made for 40,000. Four farms adjacent to Calloway Park, scene of the notification ceremony, have been swept clean of corn and the owners compensated.

20 Elephants Due

Twenty elephants, living G. O. P. symbols, are being brought here from Chicago, ndianapolis and other cities where there are Willkie people who like to do things in a big way.

A thousand policemen, including pickpocket specialists, are coming from Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, Lafayette, Chicago and other cities of the mid-West.

A delegation that Wilkie will be particularly glad to see will be 500 veterans of the 325th Field Artillery, the outfit with which the Republican nominee served in France. They are coming here with what remains of the regiment's band, which will try to play Sousa's marches, Tipperary, Madelon and other favorites of 1917-18.

Three hundred soft-drink and sandwich stands have sprung up along the streets, and carpenters are still putting up more.

Somehow it looks as if the law of compensation has finally caught up with Elwood, and it is about time. If ever there was a hard-luck town, this is it. The town came into existence when gas wells were discovered here a half century ago. These wells attracted industry, plate glass factories and the like.

In the 90's, the American Sheet & Tin Plate Co., later a subsidiary of United States Steel, established a plant here, and William McKinley, then a member of the House of Representatives, dedicated it.

Came the Crash

The gas wells ran out of gas, factories closed down, and a lot of people went broke, including Wendell Willkie's father.

The big tin plate factory remained, however, and it was a good thing it did because nearly every home in Elwood was represented among its 1,100 employes.

In 1937 the tin plate factory closed down, too, and the 1,100 were thrown out of work. A new process in making tin plate had been developed, and, anyway, the plant here could not compete with those in Birmingham and Clariton, where coal and steel were immediately available.

Mayor George Bonham, Elwood's first Republican mayor in 30 years, was telling this melancholy story today, but he appeared to think that the choice of Wendell Willkie to be a Presidential nominee made up for everything.

Flags, Bunting Displayed

Notwithstanding the flattened condition of their wallets, the people of Elwood have made a brave attempt at giving their town a gala appearance. Flags and bunting adorn almost every home.

Outside of the town's leading undertaker is a huge picture of Willkie, with a placard reading:

"We Say, Hello, Wendell,

"We're glad to have you back."

On the lawn of a doctor's home is a sign that reads: "Not Willkie's Home, But You're Welcome."

There are two Willkie homes here, the one in which he was born and the one to which his family moved when he was a small boy. Both are nice comfortable frame houses, the second one a little larger than the first and adorned with some of the fancy gadgets that seemed to come into vogue about the time that Grant was President.

Illustrative of the strong individualistic streak that has always run through the Willkie family was a story told today by Mayor Bonham. He said that while Wendell Willkie was for most of his 48 years a Democrat, his mother was a consistent Republican.

The Willkie-for-President boom was just getting under way last spring when Mrs. Willkie died. According to Mayor Bonham, she used to say to her son:

"I'd like to see you President, but I could never vote for you on the Democratic ticket."

Elwood normally is Democratic by a margin of about 1,100 votes. This time, according to the town's political railbirds, it will give Willkie a handsome majority.

Even so, about 1,700 Elwood voters are expected to vote for President Roosevelt and a third term, and tell those who think that is treason to the home town to make the best of it.

be as strong and as effective as totalitarianism. We should cut out every cancerous growth that tends to destroy democracy's strength."

He said Mayor John B. Gage of Kansas City had helped to eliminate one of the "cancers" of democracy. Gage headed a reform ticket which recently defeated a slate backed by some followers of the Pendergast Democratic organization.

Willkie then added that residents of Kansas City had "wiped out the Pendergast machine."

He charged, hwever, that in the Missuri primary last week "with the help of the national Administration" the Pendergast machine "gained a new foothold."

He Makes All the Speeches

Willkie stood on the railing of the platform to wave to the cheering crowd before starting his brief address. The cheering was redoubled when Mrs. Willkie climbed up on the railing beside him.

After she had been intrduced, Willkie said jvially, "I make all the speeches in my family."

Then as the crowd laugher, he added

"All the public nes, anyway."

Colorado Springs, Aug. 15 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie said today he would demand the refund of advertising funds collected by the Republican National Committee in 1936 "as soon as Attorney General Jackson agrees with me" that the collection of such funds violated the Corrupt Practices Act.

Willkie recently suggested that the Democratic National Committee return about $640,000 he said had been collected from corporations for advertising in the 1936 and 1940 party campaign books.

Democratic Chairman Edward J. Flynn countered with a demand that Willkie state whether $150,000 of similar funds collected by the Republicans in 1936 should be returned.

House Passes Militia Bill, British Offer to Lease Bases

earlier proposals of this nature from Gen. John J. Pershing, Admiral William H. Standley, retired chief of naval operations, and Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, stirred up sharp Senate debate.

Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), of Washington, challenged Lee's statement that no Congressional authority was needed for the transfer, declaring the 1917 Espionage Act barred the sale of any naval vessel.

Before approving the guard bill, the House twice voted down an amendment offered from the Republican side, which would permit any guardsman or reservist to be discharged at his own request rather than be called for a year's service. The votes were 207 to 40 and 122 to 68.

The bill, however, does permit the discharge of men with dependents. On motion of Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, the bill was amended on the floor to permit such men who refuse discharge to receive allowances for their dependents. The President would fix the amount of the allowance.

An effort by Representative Keogh (Democrat), of New York, to amend the bill to permit Government employes to be paid for any accrued leave when called for military service was defeated by voice vote.

Job Proviso Adopted

Adopted without objection was a committee amendment eliminating a Senate-approved proviso making the refusal of an employer to rehire a Guardsman or Reservist after his active service an "unfair labor practice." The bill, however, directs employers to rehire the soldiers unless their circumstances have changed so as to make it "impossible or unreasonable."

Under the House action, men would have to appeal to the courts with the aid of the local United States attorneys in case their jobs were not restored. The Senate proviso would put their cases under the National Labor Relations Board.

The Senate continued debate of the conscription bill during the day, hearing Senator Downey (Democrat), of California, urge an amendment to build coast-to-coast superhighways. Men returning from military service would receive job preference on such work.

Debate on the draft was stilled until Monday when both houses adjourned to permit Republicans to attend the ceremonies at Elwood, Ind., on Wendell Willkie's acceptance of the nomination.

A vote is expected early next week on the Maloney compromise which would order an immediate registration of men 21 to 30 inclusive but delay any actual draft until January 1, pending an intensive drive to get the number of troops required by voluntary recruiting.

Informal polls conducted by both sides indicated the Maloney amendment would carry by a slight margin, but a number of Senators are not definitely included in one camp or the other.

Under the tank contract, Chrysler will build the factory on a cost-plus-fixed-fee basis on a 113-acre tract in the Detroit area. Mass production will begin in about 13 months, with the corporation leasing the factory for a nominal $1 a year and building tanks at a fixed price.

Lehman Urges Home Guard

In another defense development, Gov. Lehman of New York appeared before the Senate Military Affairs Committee to urge the creation of a home guard of war veterans and others to take the place of guardsmen called into active military service. He and Brig. Gen. Edgar C. Erickson, adjutant general of Massachusetts, declared such a force was needed to perform the State functions of the militia.

Chairman Sheppard predicted committee approval of legislation setting up a home guard in the near future.

Senator Lee pointed out that both major political parties had pledged aid to England, within the law, in their platforms. He declared that four lawyers—Charles G. Burlingham, Thomas D. Thatcher, George Rublee and Dean Acheson—had written an opinion holding that existing law does not bar the sale of the destroyers.

Wallace Resigns Cabinet Position

Johnson Offered 'Attractive Job' By Roosevelt

Major preelection changes in the Roosevelt Cabinet were close at hand last night after Vice Presidential nominee Henry A. Wallace left his resignation as Secretary of Agriculture on the President's desk, to take effect "in the President's discretion."

Louis Johnson, replaced as Assistant Secretary of War, came out of the Chief Executive's office beaming, and told reporters that the President "proffered me a new and quite attractive job which comes as an utter surprise."

Col. Johnson said he had turned down the President's original offer to him of a post as administrative assistant at $10,000 a year, feeling that "I was not fitted either by attitude or experience" for one of the posts which the President once said requires "a passion for anonymity."

Might Enter Cabinet

It was believed the President might take Johnson into the Cabinet or the "Little Cabinet." The Postmaster Generalship becomes vacant in September. Edward J. Noble left a job open Wednesday by resigning as Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

Chunky Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of New York added to the speculation over the future makeup of the Cabinet by conferring with the President and Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes and leaving the White House without commenting on rumors that he might replace Frances Perkins as Secretary of Labor.

Wallace, who lunched with the President, said "I left a little letter on the President's desk," a letter resigning the Cabinet post he has held ever since 1933.

"Obviously, it will become effective in the Presdient's discretion," Wallace explained. "I expect an announcement regarding it in due course."

Accepts August 29

The Agriculture Secretary makes his acceptance speech at Des Moines, Iowa, August 29.

A successor to his post has been discussed with the President, Wallace said, and an announcement would be made soon.

The Vice Presidential choice of the Democratic Convention proudly displayed an inscribed photograph of the President, bearing the legend:

"For Running Mate Henry Wallace from Running Mate Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Louis Johnson, in high spirits after his talk with the President, said he would take a week or ten days to think over the post that had been offered him.

Political Arena

Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., yesterday announced appointment of Miss Sybil H. Holmes, of Brookline, Mass., to be director of women's activities in the Eastern division of the Republican National Committee, with headquarters in New York City.

MISS HOLMES

Miss Holmes is a former assistant attorney general of Massachusetts, and is the only woman ever elected to the Massachusetts State Senate. She relinquished an appointment on the Massachusetts Board of Review, division of unemployment compensation, in order to work for the election of the Willkie-McNary ticket this fall. She is a former president of the Massachusetts Women's Republican Club and also was a member of the Republican program committee, of which Glenn Frank was chairman.

R. N. Elliott, Acting Comptroller General, said in a formal opinion yesterday that while the Hatch Politics Act required the dismissal of Federal employes for various political activities, it "apparently would not prohibit" the reemployment of those discharged in other positions.

In an opinion asked by the WPA, Elliott said that after the act provides for dismissal it prohibits rehiring of the person dismissed in "such office."

Thus, the Acting Comptroller General wrote, the law "apparently would not prohibit his (a dismissed person's) employment in some other position or office."

The WPA sought an opinion in connection with the case of Charles B. Coakley, of Easton, Pa., described as having been dismissed from a WPA supervisory job because he ran for public office in the recent Pennsylvania primaries. Elliott said Coakley could be given work by the WPA again, provided his job was different from that from which he had been dismissed.

The Democratic National Committee has reserved radio time Monday night for Secretary Ickes to make the first Administration reply to Wendell Willkie's speech Saturday accepting the Republican Presidential nomination.

Ickes, who lunched Wednesday with President Roosevelt, will speak from 8:30 to 9 p. m. (Eastern standard time) over the blue network of the National Broadcasting Co.

Southern Floods Raise Deaths to 31

Crops Laid Waste, Property Damage Runs Into Millions

By the United Press

Floods which have wrought havoc in parts of five Southeastern States since Monday increased their scope in the mountains of North Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee last night.

The rising waters which have isolated mountain towns and laid crops waste throughout the stricken section, hourly increased their toll of dead. Property damage was in the millions of dollars and rose continually.

At least 31 persons were known to be dead in the five States.

North Carolina—now faced with the threat of floods in the central and eastern sections—counted 20 known dead and many were missing. There were four known dead in Tennessee, three in Virginia, one in South Carolina and three in Georgia, where the flood danger has passed.

Worst in 25 Years

Death and destruction in the northwest section of North Carolina was the greatest in 25 years. Damage there to crops, homes, livestock, highways and railroads was inestimable. Dozens of communities in that section were isolated.

In Raleigh, Gov. Clyde R. Hoey marshaled Federal, State and local relief agencies to aid the thousands who were homeless and the other thousands who were driven from their work by constantly rising waters. Fires left extensive damage to industries at North Wilkesboro.

Boone and Valle Crucis, N. C., were believed hardest hit. Fifteen were reported dead in that area where avalanches tore loose under the pounding rains and smothered highways, railways and homes. Landslides demolished near a score of homes and left at least five dead.

Water System Ruined

Extent of damages to Boone—isolated for two days—was not known until today when residents made their way by boat to the outside world and appealed for help. The water system at Boone was ruined. Power dams have burst and power lines were down throughout the section.

North Carolina made available a $50,000 emergency fund for highways and said $10,000 WPA emergency loan for relief had been granted. In Tennessee, WPA headquarters announced a $22,500 emergency WPA project had been approved for relief work.

Food Shortage Feared

A. E. Langston, State commodities director, left for North Wilkesboro, where a food shortage was feared. He had not been heard from late yesterday because communications were out. The State maintains district surplus commodity warehouses in North Wilkesboro, Asheville and Winston-Salem.

Typhoid immunization clinics were ordered opened in eastern Tennessee. The East Tennessee Light & Power Co. said a hydro-electric plant near Elizabethton was destroyed and others damaged. Some railroad service was suspended. The Houlton River, meanwhile, returned to its banks and some 1,500 Long Island residents returned to their homes.

Danville, Va., was rapidly becoming isolated as roads and railways were inundated. Communication lines were down or faltering. Bassett, Va., near Martinsville, was under water and transportation was halted. Lines to Lynchburg were down; railroad tracks to South Boston were under water. The Dan River was leaving its banks and the City of Danville had watchers and sandbags ready in event of a break.

CCC Boys Sent Out

Gov. James H. Price of Virginia sent CCC workers to Galax to help rehabilitate the flood area and the State health department rushed doctors to immunize against typhoid.

Residents of four South Carolina towns were warned to evacuate livestock and movable property from lowland areas. Flood conditions were predicted on the Broad River at Blair, on the Congaree at Columbia, on the Cawtaba at Catawba and the Wateree at Camden.

The flood condition was most critical in Watauga, Wilkes, Caldwell, Ashe and Alleghany counties in North Carolina.

Gillette Demands Action on Oil Cases

Senator Asks Arnold To Explain Delay In Prosecution

By the Associated Press

Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, demanded yesterday that Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold give "satisfactory reasons" why the Justice Department has not prosecuted petroleum companies for alleged monopolistic practices.

He told the head of the department's antitrust division in a letter that unless such reasons were given he would not be "further justified in refusing to comment on what appears to be an unjustified attitude on the part of the Department of Justice in bringing to the courts the long and carefully prepared facts which you have assembled."

Hearings Delayed

"I hope those responsible in any way for the delay will realize," he said, "that the action is not compatible with the public interest."

Gillette said that at Arnold's request he had brought about delay in the committee hearings on his bills to divorce production, transportation and distribution of petroleum.

"You informed me," Gillette continued, "that the department was preparing, under your supervision, to institute a number of suits for violations of existing statutes and requiring divestiture in some instances . . .

Public Interest

"You requested me to delay hearings on the legislative proposals until such time as you were ready to proceed with the suits you were preparing to file. I recognized the wisdom of your request and acceded to it. I have delayed the hearings up to the present time.

"I learned indirectly that you are about to abandon the prosecutions contemplated. I am sure you will recognize the unfortunate position in which it places me and the pending legislation."

"The interests of the general public and, particularly, the consuming public have been so seriously jeopardized by the practices of some of these companies," Gillette continued, "that I am confident the Department of Justice would be playing unfairly with the general public in failing to proceed at the present time."

Scalise's Lawyer Pleads New Evidence

Declares Finding Of Books Will Show Innocence of Fraud

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 15.—Relying on some newly discovered ledgers to clear George Scalise, of grand larceny and forgery charges, his counsel today acknowledged that the former President of the Building Service Employes International Union (A. F. L.) had made false statements in obtaining $60,087 from the union.

Defense Attorney Martin W. Littleton told the jury he would produce books, record sand correspondence showing that "every penny" received by Scalise from the union was due him under a commission arrangement.

The ledgers were found a week ago in a union headquarters storeroom in Chicago by a member of the defense staff, Littleton said, adding no member of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's staff knew of their existence.

He asserted that if Dewey's office had known of the records, no indictment could have been found against his 43-year-old client, whose salary was $20,000 a year.

Littleton argued that Scalise was entitled to the money under an arrangement with the late Jerry Horan, then union president, in 1934. Scalise was to receive one-half f the 35 cents per capita tax paid monthly on each new member he brought into the union.

Scalise, he added, invariably received a check from the Chicago office for his commissions before he filled out monthly statements setting forth his expenditures.

Earlier, Assistant District Attorney Victor J. Herwitz told the jury the prosecution would show Scalise in the light of "a crook and a thief who stole from the charwomen, porters and other members of his union."

Ann Kimmel, also known as Ann Kay, for seven years Scalise's private secretary, is expected to be the first prosecution witness tomorrow.

Navy Calls Out U. S. Prison Cooks

The defense program has threatened the cuisine of some of the Government's best prisons.

It was learned yesterday that half a dozen cooks employed at Federal penal institutions had been called to duty by the Naval Reserve.

Officials were reported to be exerting pressure on the Navy to release the cooks for what they feel is more important service.

Landslide Wrecks 48 Freight Cars

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 15 (AP).—A landslide on the Seaboard Air Line Railway, about 30 miles south of Petersburg, last night, wrecked 48 freight cars and tied up the line. Trains today were being routed over the Atlantic Coast Line tracks from Emporia to Petersburg, while wrecking crews cleanpd up the right of way.

Police, Coroner Investigating Woman's Death

Police and the coroner's office last night were investigating the death of Mrs. Vesta Manning, 38, who was found dead in her second-floor room at 37 H street northwest, yesterday, half-hour after being brought home unconscious by an unidentified cab driver.

Dr. W. Given Suter, of 27 H street northwest, notified police of the woman's death and said he pronounced her dead at 10:45 a. m. He refused to issue a death certificate, automatically making the death a "coroner's case."

Dr. Suter told detectives he was called to Mrs. Manning's room by Harry Davis, of the same address, who is proprietor of a candy shop at 43 H street northwest. The woman was dead when he reached her room, the doctor stated. He called police immediately.

Search was instituted for the cab driver last night after Davis told Detective Sergt. Fred Rawlinson that the man told him the woman got in his cab at Seventh and F street northwest. She collapsed immediately after boarding the vehicle, Davis said the driver told him.

Business Soars For Dan Cupid During August

472 Couples Obtain Licenses in First 15 Days; More Than June

Maybe it is the National defense situation, maybe it is the weather, maybe there is no particular reason, but August is on the way to displacing June as the month of marriages in Washington.

Applications for marriage licenses have been filed here by 472 couples in the first 15 days of this month. This compares with 262 for the first 15 days of July, 408 for the first half of June and 223 for the first half of May.

The rate of applications also shows a sharp rise against previous years, the nnmber for the first 15 days of August having been 265 last year, 237 in 1938 and 310 in 1937.

Veteran observers of the marriage records here refused to be drawn into speculation as to the raeson for the rise. They cautioned against drawing inferences, pointing out that many factors, such as the assignment of Government leave and of vacations throughout the United States, influence the marriage rate here.

The District license records for the last 23 years are full of freak variations like that noted this month. Thus the number of April applications jumped from 335 in 1939 to 429 in 1940, but dropped from 430 in May, 1939, to 383 in May, 1940.

2 Sisters, Garbed as Men, Shot Woman in Holdup, Officer Says

Motive for Weird Shooting of Wife Riding With Husband and Son During Fake Robbery Not Disclosed; Confessions Claimed

By the Associated Press

Waynesboro, Pa., Aug. 15.—Deputy Sheriff Jack Orndorf said today two sisters admitted they had disguised themselves as men to execute a fake holdup in which Mrs. Ada Hubb Headley, 44, was shot five times last Tuesday night.

Orndoff identified the sisters as Mrs. Otis Cumberledge, 36, widow and mother of a son, and Mrs. Elizabeth Pettit, 25, both of Nettle Hil, near Pine Bank(20 miles from this southwestern Pennsylvania town.

The deputy sheriff, who brought charges of aggravated assault and battery with intent to kill against both women, charged Mrs. Pettit had done the shooting. Mrs. Headley's condition was reported "fair" today. All five shots entered the abdomen.

She was shot as she, her husband and 12-year-old son arrived at their home at Pine Bank, R. D. I. Her 49-year-old husband, an oil-field worker, who reported the shooting Tuesday midnight, was taken into custody for questioning last night.

Orndorff said additional charges would be brought but added:

"I don't care to discuss the motive back of all this now. That will be cleared up when the other charges areare brought."

The deputy sheriff said Headley declared that as he drove into his garage the robbers advanced and one began shooting at once. Headley and his son were unharmed.

The Headley auto, taken by the robbers, was found abandoned nearby, together with two pairs of men's clothing.

It was the finding of the clothing that aroused suspicion and led to the arrest of the sisters, Orndoff said.

There's No Parking Problem Now— For Capitol Hill

The problem of where to park on Washington's streets has been solved—at least for a few of the favored on Capitol Hill.

Certain members of Congress, it appears, are no little irked because visitors to the Hill have been usurping their accustomed parking spaces around the House and Senate Office buildings.

So yesterday, numbers corresponding to the tag numerals of Congressional cars—and in some cases the cars of members' secretaries and office workers—appeared in white paint on the curbing along several streets in the vicinity of the Capitol.

Special policemen have been assigned to see to it that Congressional tag holders are no longer harassed.

Churchill Called Liar, Debate Stops

Prime Minister Trades Angry Words In Parliament

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 5.—For the first time in Winston Churchill's authoritarian wartime regime, angry name-calling swept Commons today, with the prime minister trading oral punches with short-tempered members.

Despite its bitter tenor, informed politicians said the quarrel had not dimmed Churchill's popular luster appreciably. It was cut short by a Speakers' ruling after one member, the Independent Austin Hopkinson, had called the prime minister, by indirection, a "liar."

In his brief statement, Churchill asserted the danger of invasion had not passed, but "we are much stronger than we were in May." He termed the work of the Swinton Committee, investigating Fifth Column activities, "not fitted for public discussion, least of all in time of war."

Churchill started the exchange by refusing to discuss details of the committee's secret investigation.

He said he always had believed Fifth Column dangers were "exaggerated" and that he now was satisfied they had been reduced "to proper proportions."

Then the storm broke.

Laborite James Maxton demanded to know who was going to "watch the watchers."

Other members declared there was wide apprehension because Lord Swinton was selected chairman of the committee to cope with Fifth Columnists. (Lord Swinton was air secretary from 1935 to early 1938, when he was ousted amidst bitter criticism of his failure to rearm the nation adequately.)

Said Hopkinson: "We cannot understand why there is so much mystery about this . . ."

Angrily, the prime minister replied: "If Hopkinson had paid half the attention to the full and very respectable statement I just have made as he did when he was accustomed to obstruct my efforts to get this country defended before the war, he wouldn't have asked that question."

Furious, Hopkinson asked the Speaker's protection "against gross and lying innuendo."

Churchill snapped back that he would not withdraw; indeed, he said, he would send Hopkinson a copy of a previous intervention by that member "in which he did his very utmost to discredit me."

Italy Seizes Greek Ship Passenger

and Rome remained open, despite reports to the contrary abroad.

Premier George Metaxas summoned his inner cabinet, but no announcement was issued and political circles believed that the government would refrain from any official action in the sinking of the Helle or any attempt to identify the submarine publicly, in order not to bring about a crisis.

There was talk in the streets last night, however, of a possible general mobilization.

While the government's policy remains one of strict neutrality and maintenance of calm the news of the Helle torpedoing and killing of children and religious pilgrims gathered at Tinos for the Feast of the Assumption was too enormous to suppress.

Although there is a large pro-German sentiment among the Greeks, they are, for the most part, universally anti-Italian. Thus it was felt that the Metaxas government might peopardize its security if it should dodge a showdown on the incidents or capitulate to any urritorial or economic demands by Italy.

The general impression seemed be long in forthcoming, whipped up to be that such demands will not by intense anti-Greek propaganda on the part of the Italian press.

It was stated officially that thus far Italy has made no demands on Greece formally, although territorial and economic demands are anticipated in many quarters in the wake of the steadily increasing anti-Greek campaign on the part of the Italian press.

The Italian minister called on Premier George Metaxas late today, after which Metaxas conferred at length with the ministers of marine and aviation and the order recalling all naval men from leaves was issued.

All waterfront piers were closed to the public and certain areas along the coasts were made military areas.

The Helle, lying about 800 yards off the Tinos breakwater when she was torpedoed at 8:30 a. m., was carrying a crew of 100 at the time. One, a petty officer, was killed outright when the submarine's first torpedo crashed into the engine room. Two others are expected to die.

The other two torpedoes from the submerged submarine struck a pier crowded with 10,000 visitors celebrating the Feast of the Assumption. The Helle had escorted two merchant ships bearing pilgrims to the Shrine of the Virgin Mary on Tinos Island. The government will send passenger ships escorted by warships to Tinos tomorrow to carry the pilgrims back to the mainland.

Berlin Tells of Air Raid Near London

DNB declared that "the entire Thames Valley witnessed the methodical, irresistible German air attacks which threaten all military establishments with destruction."

Claims 5 Balloons Were Lost

DNB said at midnight that 98 British planes had been destroyed today in air fights and eight more put out of commission on the ground. German fliers reported that they had shot down five balloons. Loss of 29 German planes was acknowledged. (The British listed more than 100 German and 19 British planes lost.)

The raiders scattered their bombs amid the sprawling buildings of the big Vickers-Armstrong armament works at Hepburn Wells; at Sheerness, Chatham and Rochester, locations of navy yards and arsenals; at the big eastern port of Newcastle-On-Tyne and at the southeast "bridgeheads" of Dover and Folkestone, the agency said.

The airplane plants of Bristol were threatened, and Wales, to the southwest, got its share, said DNB.

Airports were a particular object of attack, those at Hawkinge and Lympne in the southeast shore area were scenes of particularly bitter battles with the British defenders.

Hawkinge a Special Target

At Hawkinge alone, 11 British planes were shot down by the Messerschmitts protecting the German bombing squadron, said DNB in claiming victory for the Germans.

Repeatedly big German battle bombers swooped out of the clouds to dump tons of explosive and incendiary bombs on the Hawkinge hangars, the agency related. At Lympne, it said, hangars and runways were smashed and the ground guns fell silent.

A German battle squadron caught the English by surprise at the Driffield airport north of Hull, said DNB, in a raid so swift that "anti-aircraft was not able to do much, and before the British fighters could interfere the attack was over." It said the hangars and barracks were destroyed.

The German air fleet hummed over London at 5 p. m., DNB declared, and antiaircraft fire made a cloud over the city. It gave no word whether London itself was bombed, but the British admitted that Croydon Airport was attacked—and Croydon is within greater London, a scant 8 miles from the traffic-choked centers of Charing Cross and Piccadilly Circus.

"Lively" Time at Tilbury

At Tilbury, a dozen miles down the Thames, which is one great mass of dockyards, warehouses, naval plants and armament and munitions works, the German agency said the Nazi airmen "calmly followed their course, dropping bombs with deadly accuracy on important objectives."

It acknowledged that "at Tilbury there was a lively air battle."

In fact, so heavy was the British defense that DNB likened it to an "iron curtain," but said the Nazi airmen pierced it.

The attack on the Vickers plant at Hepburn Wells was executed this afternoon by 35 Dornier bombers, and heavy explosions were observed, said DNB.

A number of airports in the Northumberland district also suffered heavily, and even the north of Scotland was hit hard.

Airports in the Aberdeen and Moray Firth sections were bombarded, and a shipping convoy off Petershed was attacked, said DNB, but it did not disclose the results.

The new destructive vigor of the attacks on Britain followed a day and night in which bad weather hampered the incessant raiding to some extent, said the German high command.

Nevertheless it announced, troop concentrations at the big military camp of Aldershot were attacked, and port facilities, and electrical plant and munitions works were "effectively bombed" in Cardiff, Weston, Portland, Worcester and Salisbury, the announcement said.

Campaign Still on Schedule

The German campaign is still on schedule, it declared, for advance plans had made full allowance for some bad weather.

The 16,923-ton British armed merchant cruiser Transylvania was sunk by a German U-boat, the high command also reported. (The British had reported this previously.)

Meanwhile, authorized German sources vigorously denied reports that German parachutists had landed in England. Such reports were declared to be "pure fantasy."

DNB said the Germans attacking Scotland, apparently from Scandinavian bases, had no trouble because antiaircraft fire was ineffective.

The greatest fights were over the Kentish airports, where DNB said a Maj. Galland, squadron commander, bagged his twentieth British plane.

German commentators listed several reasons why they credited the German air force with the upper hand:

The short distance from bases to objectives permits fast, small planes to carry heavier bomb loads.

Interior Lines Unimportant

The only German industrial areas within effective reach of the British are the Ruhr and Bremen districts, so distant that warning is given, whereas England, in a cramped space, has not this leeway.

The German air bases are so deployed that advance detection of a raid on England is difficult.

The German radio said the "center of gravity" of German penetration seemed to be Southampton, the great southern transatlantic port.

In that area, in the 50-odd miles between Portsmouth and Portland alone, considerably more than 100 German planes have penetrated to the north, the radio reported.

The great battles of the day proved, it contended, that the so-called operation along interior lines—a favored military defensive method—has become unimportant for air defense.

The British antiaircraft artillery failed, the radio asserted, and the British fighter planes found themselves outnumbered because they had to be distributed over the entire country.

Thus, it said, the British are not strong enough in any one place to hinder or even hold up the German attacks, let alone to repulse them.

1,000 Planes Strafe England; Croydon Airdrome Bombed

Raids went on tonight over a wide area of the southeast, where, during the day, no less than 1,000 German planes had crossed the coast in one narrow section.

At least 3 of the 20 to 30 Stukas which attacked Croydon were reported shot down and the remainder were driven off by howling British fighter planes.

Debris was scattered over the airport for hundreds of yards and incendiary bombs started a series of fires.

A perfume factory was smashed.

A row of houses was hit by a bomb that just missed a gas works.

One witness said at least ten bombs were aimed at the airdrome; one apparently hit a hangar on the out skirts of the field.

The Stukas struck after a 3-mile glide downward and, a witness said, were over the airdrome itself "only a minute or two" before "they went off like hell" with British ships in pursuit.

There were casualties in Croydon streets; none knew just how many. The airport is situated in a comfortable residential suburb of normally 200,000 people.

A big double-decked red London bus passing Croydon was hit by some splinters, and an undetermined number of its passengers were victims.

There were no details as to damage that had been wrought.

19 British Planes Lost

The young British pilots were fighting against a great all-out invasion of English skies—five days of it hand-running—which long has been expected to precede an attempt at invasion of these shores.

Nineteen British planes were lost today. (The German claimed destruction of 106 British aircraft.)

Authorities disclosed that a new "plane trap" was at work, although its details were kept secret. In this trap, a big German bomber was declared caught and smashed, its occupants dying in the crash.

There was no minimizing the fear that an invasion of troops was near at hand. Householders and fishermen along the coast silently pulled in and hid their little boats lest they fall into other, and not English, hands. But the people kept calm and waited.

The Nazi planes came in roaring waves.

They struck in Scotland; they struck in vital munitions areas of northeast England; they smashed at the long southern coast all the way from the Thames Estuary—leading to London—to Land's End, the far western frontier of these islands.

Attack With Incredible Fury

It was an attack of such incredible fury as to make the ceaseless assaults of the last four days seem but mere preliminaries.

Every indication was that the hour of the great test had come at last.

The Royal Air Force, defending this kingdom from such a blow as never was struck before, loosed every turreted gun in its fighter force and crippled airplanes fell steadily on English soil.

The German strategy was simple: While German fighters took on the British Hurricane and Spitfire patrols miles above the ground—from 12,000 to 15,000 feet up—the Nazi bombers snaked across the coast in close formation.

The objectives of this unprecedented raid were everything that Britain has and must have to keep on fighting: Shipping, ports, munitions and industrial plants, and, above all, airports.

Known to have been bombed was the great Tyneside industrial and shipbuilding area on the east coast near Newcastle.

Civilian Dead Uncounted

Not alone the coasts were hit, but the heart of the country as well. None knew how long was the list of the civilian dead.

Several passengers aboard a train were injured by bomb splinters as the train was brought to a standstill.

Two houses were demolished in one street, killing a woman and two children.

British fighters brought one of the raiders down at sea.

(This dispatch through the British censorship did not indicate the extent of fatalities or details of the train incident.)

(The Germans specifically reported certain of their objectives. Bombed, they said, were the great Vickers Armstrong armament works at Hebburn; the port of Newcastle; Dover; other ports, and shipping convoys in the Channel.)

One Associated Press correspondent on the southeast coast—but one of the areas of heavy action—counted six waves of 18 heavy German bombers in less than 3 minutes.

No less than 1,000 Nazi planes appeared over the southeast coast alone.

The attack on Croydon brought civilians to stand now silent, now cheering the R. A. F. on, at their doors.

From the area of the airdrome there came a mighty roar of airplane motors, antiaircraft and exploding bombs.

Smoke Rises at Croydon

From the famous airport itself, plumes of smoke arose.

Watchers shouted triumphantly when the Nazi bombers banked suddenly and streaked off to the south. British fighter planes wheeled after them, their machine guns howling.

In the midst of this great thrust at the heart of the empire—the homeland which for 1,000 years has been inviolate from invasion—the air ministry announced that British bombers had been at work in Germany, too.

"Strong" forces, it was said, attacked oil storage plants, refineries, railroads and power plants near Bordeaux and Cologne in Nazi-occupied northern France. Three oil storage and refining plants were declared to have been left in flames, and an unannounced number of airdromes in France likewise were hit. Four British planes were missing.

But this foray into enemy country was all but forgotten by the RAF in the heat of the struggle for Britain's life at home against a raid of such methodical might that never was seen in Poland, in France, in the Low Countries or anywhere else since the strongest air power of all time began its campaign in Europe.

Fill Mile on Mile of Sky

For Nazi fliers punished England and Scotland with uncounted thousands of tons of bombs; they filled mile upon mile of the sky.

At one time alone—over a radius of only 15 miles approximately a thousand raiders swept across the southeast coast.

This was aside from blows struck in many far-scattered areas in England and Scotland and these vast and many formations of destruction were made up of from 30 to 100 planes each.

Watchers on the southeast coast saw planes falling in blazing circles at the rate sometimes of one every eight minutes.

Narrowly Miss Gas Works

Some observers said there were 30 planes in the raid.

They were seen to start their dives about 3 miles away, and people in the streets saw them come down to within a few hundred feet before the bombs were released.

Tonight, rescue workers still were digging for the bodies of men at work when the perfume works was hit.

Antiaircraft guns were in action for a few seconds; then the British fighters zoomed into the air.

worked feverishly amid the wreckage to save those they could reach.

Park Flanks Airport

Two-thirds of the airport is well hemmed in by buildings; a park flanks the open side.

The bus was wrecked. Its engine was ripped out, the driver's cabin was splintered and windows were smashed by the explosive which dug a crater 10 yards in diameter in the road.

One woman said she counted ten heavy bomb explosions. Another said:

"They even machine-gunned us to the shelter in our back garden. How we got there God alone knows."

One big bomb narrowly missed the gas works near the airport and houses nearby were wrecked.

Firemen Are Cool

Auxiliary firemen sped through debris littered streets—"a cool lot," one observer commented—putting out fires as methodically as if the thundering destruction about them was only "atmosphere" for make-

Damage to the airport itself—which in peacetime is not generally used for military purposes—was not believed to be as extensive as had been feared during the first fury of the attack.

Debris scattered the ground for several hundred yards in some places, however, to show that there were hits. Incendiary bombs touched off several fires.

Three Stukas Shot Down

British defense planes were in the air within seconds after the raiders streaked down as if launched from nowhere in the cloud-streaked sky.

At least three of the Nazi planes were seen shot down in the first several minutes of furious fighting.

With the warning roar of the first explosion women darted into the streets carrying their children to shelter. One mother herded her brood of seven before her like a scene from a Mother Goose book.

One bomb ripped to pieces beside a shelter where four little boys had just fled, helping a crippled playmate along with them, from a game of hide and seek. They reached safety only by moments.

Dart Into Cellar

Another person in a shelter was pulled out of the wreckage, apparently severely injured.

Dozens of residents in the hard-hit zone had no time to reach the public shelters. Some darted into cellars and other hurled themselves flat on the floor. Many were cut by glass and splinter showers.

One elderly man told me that an explosion alongside his home sent up a shower of earth that rattled ominously against the walls "It gave Maw a fair old turn, it did."

Screaming Bombs Used

The woman who said she was machine-gunned told of dashing for the garden yard shelter with her 2-month-old baby in her arms.

She said she heard the bullets strike and the whistle of falling bombs.

Another witness said the raiders dropped "screaming bombs" as well as explosives, and added:

"They scared me, all right. I felt weak in the knees until I heard the hum of our fighter motors. Then, by George, I walked out in the yard—bomb splinters and all—and shouted like a schoolboy."

Churchill Called Liar, Debate Stops

Prime Minister Trades Angry Words In Parliament

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 5.—For the first time in Winston Churchill's authoritarian wartime regime, angry name-calling swept Commons today, with the prime minister trading oral punches with short-tempered members.

Despite its bitter tenor, informed politicians said the quarrel had not dimmed Churchill's popular luster appreciably. It was cut short by a Speakers' ruling after one member, the Independent Austin Hopkinson, had called the prime minister, by indirection, a "liar."

In his brief statement, Churchill asserted the danger of invasion had not passed, but "we are much stronger than we were in May." He termed the work of the Swinton Committee, investigating Fifth Column activities, "not fitted for public discussion, least of all in time of war."

Churchill started the exchange by refusing to discuss details of the committee's secret investigation.

He said he always had believed Fifth Column dangers were "exaggerated" and that he now was satisfied they had been reduced "to proper proportions."

Then the storm broke.

Laborite James Maxton demanded to know who was going to "watch the watchers."

Other members declared there was wide apprehension because Lord Swinton was selected chairman of the committee to cope with Fifth Columnists. (Lord Swinton was air secretary from 1935 to early 1938, when he was ousted amidst bitter criticism of his failure to rearm the nation adequately.)

Said Hopkinson: "We cannot understand why there is so much mystery about this . . ."

Angrily, the prime minister replied: "If Hopkinson had paid half the attention to the full and very respectable statement I just have made as he did when he was accustomed to obstruct my efforts to get this country defended before the war, he wouldn't have asked that question."

Furious, Hopkinson asked the Speaker's protection "against gross and lying innuendo."

Churchill snapped back that he would not withdraw; indeed, he said, he would send Hopkinson a copy of a previous intervention by that member "in which he did his very utmost to discredit me."

and Rome remained open, despite reports to the contrary abroad.

Premier George Metaxas summoned his inner cabinet, but no announcement was issued and political circles believed that the government would refrain from any official action in the sinking of the Helle or any attempt to identify the submarine publicly, in order not to bring about a crisis.

There was talk in the streets last night, however, of a possible general mobilization.

While the government's policy remains one of strict neutrality and maintenance of calm the news of the Helle torpedoing and killing of children and religious pilgrims gathered at Tinos for the Feast of the Assumption was too enormous to suppress.

Although there is a large pro-German sentiment among the Greeks, they are, for the most part, universally anti-Italian. Thus it was felt that the Metaxas government might peopardize its security if it should dodge a showdown on the incidents or capitulate to any irritorial or economic demands by Italy.

The general impression seemed be long in forthcoming, whipped up to be that such demands will not by intense anti-Greek propaganda on the part of the Italian press.

It was stated officially that thus far Italy has made no demands on Greece formally, although territorial and economic demands are anticipated in many quarters in the wake of the steadily increasing anti-Greek campaign on the part of the Italian press.

The Italian minister called on Premier George Metaxas late today, after which Metaxas conferred at length with the ministers of marine and aviation and the order recalling all naval men from leaves was issued.

All waterfront piers were closed to the public and certain areas along the coasts were made military areas.

The Helle, lying about 800 yards off the Tinos breakwater when she was torpedoed at 8:30 a. m., was carrying a crew of 100 at the time. One, a petty officer, was killed outright when the submarine's first torpedo crashed into the engine room. Two others are expected to die.

The other two torpedoes from the submerged submarine struck a pier crowded with 10,000 visitors celebrating the Feast of the Assumption. The Helle had escorted two merchant ships bearing pilgrims to the Shrine of the Virgin Mary on Tinos Island. The government will send passenger ships escorted by warships to Tinos tomorrow to carry the pilgrims back to the mainland.

agency.

DNB declared that "the entire Thames Valley witnessed the methodical, irresistible German air attacks which threaten all military establishments with destruction."

Claims 5 Balloons Were Lost

DNB said at midnight that 98 British planes had been destroyed today in air fights and eight more put out of commission on the ground. German fliers reported that they had shot down five balloons. Loss of 29 German planes was acknowledged. (The British listed more than 100 German and 19 British planes lost.)

The raiders scattered their bombs amid the sprawling buildings of the big Vickers-Armstrong armament works at Hepburn Wells; at Sheerness, Chatham and Rochester, locations of navy yards and arsenals; at the big eastern port of Newcastle-On-Tyne and at the southeast "bridgeheads" of Dover and Folkestone, the agency said.

The airplane plants of Bristol were threatened, and Wales, to the southwest, got its share, said DNB.

Airports were a particular object of attack, those at Hawkinge and Lympne in the southeast shore area were scenes of particularly bitter battles with the British defenders.

Hawkinge a Special Target

At Hawkinge alone, 11 British planes were shot down by the Messerschmitts protecting the German bombing squadron, said DNB in claiming victory for the Germans.

Repeatedly big German battle bombers swooped out of the clouds to dump tons of explosive and incendiary bombs on the Hawkinge hangars, the agency related. At Lympne, it said, hangars and runways were smashed and the ground guns fell silent.

A German battle squadron caught the English by surprise at the Driffield airport north of Hull, said DNB, in a raid so swift that "anti-aircraft was not able to do much, and before the British fighters could interfere the attack was over." It said the hangars and barracks were destroyed.

The German air fleet hummed over London at 5 p. m., DNB declared, and antiaircraft fire made a cloud over the city. It gave no word whether London itself was bombed, but the British admitted that Croydon Airport was attacked—and Croydon is within greater London, a scant 8 miles from the traffic-choked centers of Charing Cross and Piccadilly Circus.

"Lively" Time at Tilbury

At Tilbury, a dozen miles down the Thames, which is one great mass of dockyards, warehouses, naval plants and armament and munitions works, the German agency said the Nazi airmen "calmly followed their course, dropping bombs with deadly accuracy on important objectives."

It acknowledged that "at Tilbury there was a lively air battle."

In fact, so heavy was the British defense that DNB likened it to an "iron curtain," but said the Nazi airmen pierced it.

The attack on the Vickers plant at Hepburn Wells was executed this afternoon by 35 Dornier bombers, and heavy explosions were observed, said DNB.

A number of airports in the Northumberland district also suffered heavily, and even the north of Scotland was hit hard.

Airports in the Aberdeen and Moray Firth sections were bombarded, and a shipping convoy off Petershed was attacked, said DNB, but it did not disclose the results.

The new destructive vigor of the attacks on Britain followed a day and night in which bad weather hampered the incessant raiding to some extent, said the German high command.

Nevertheless it announced, troop concentrations at the big military camp of Aldershot were attacked, and port facilities, and electrical plant and munitions works were "effectively bombed" in Cardiff, Weston, Portland, Worcester and Salisbury, the announcement said.

Campaign Still on Schedule

The German campaign is still on schedule, it declared, for advance plans had made full allowance for some bad weather.

The 16,923-ton British armed merchant cruiser Transylvania was sunk by a German U-boat, the high command also reported. (The British had reported this previously.)

Meanwhile, authorized German sources vigorously denied reports that German parachutists had landed in England. Such reports were declared to be "pure fantasy."

DNB said the Germans attacking Scotland, apparently from Scandinavian bases, had no trouble because antiaircraft fire was ineffective.

The greatest fights were over the Kentish airports, where DNB said a Maj. Galland, squadron commander, bagged his twentieth British plane.

German commentators listed several reasons why they credited the German air force with the upper hand:

The short distance from bases to objectives permits fast, small planes to carry heavier bomb loads.

Interior Lines Unimportant

The only German industrial areas within effective reach of the British are the Ruhr and Bremen districts, so distant that warning is given, whereas England, in a cramped space, has not this leeway.

The German air bases are so deployed that advance detection of a raid on England is difficult.

The German radio said the "center of gravity" of German penetration seemed to be Southampton, the great southern transatlantic port.

In that area, in the 50-odd miles between Portsmouth and Portland alone, considerably more than 100 German planes have penetrated to the north, the radio reported.

The great battles of the day proved, it contended, that the so-called operation along interior lines—a favored military defensive method—has become unimportant for air defense.

The British antiaircraft artillery failed, the radio asserted, and the British fighter planes found themselves outnumbered because they had to be distributed over the entire country.

Thus, it said, the British are not strong enough in any one place to hinder or even hold up the German attacks, let alone to repulse them.

Raids went on tonight over a wide area of the southeast, where, during the day, no less than 1,000 German planes had crossed the coast in one narrow section.

At least 3 of the 20 to 30 Stukas which attacked Croydon were reported shot down and the remainder were driven off by howling British fighter planes.

Debris was scattered over the airport for hundreds of yards and incendiary bombs started a series of fires.

A perfume factory was smashed.

A row of houses was hit by a bomb that just missed a gas works.

One witness said at least ten bombs were aimed at the airdrome; one apparently hit a hangar on the out skirts of the field.

The Stukas struck after a 3-mile glide downward and, a witness said, were over the airdrome itself "only a minute or two" before "they went off like hell" with British ships in pursuit.

There were casualties in Croydon streets; none knew just how many. The airport is situated in a comfortable residential suburb of normally 200,000 people.

A big double-decked red London bus passing Croydon was hit by some splinters, and an undetermined number of its passengers were victims.

There were no details as to damage that had been wrought.

19 British Planes Lost

The young British pilots were fighting against a great all-out invasion of English skies—five days of it hand-running—which long has been expected to precede an attempt at invasion of these shores.

Nineteen British planes were lost today. (The German claimed destruction of 108 British aircraft.)

Authorities disclosed that a new "plane trap" was at work, although its details were kept secret. In this trap, a big German bomber was declared caught and smashed, its occupants dying in the crash.

There was no minimizing the fear that an invasion of troops was near at hand. Householders and fishermen along the coast silently pulled in and hid their little boats lest they fall into other, and not English, hands. But the people kept calm and waited.

The Nazi planes came in roaring waves.

They struck in Scotland; they struck in vital munitions areas of northeast England; they smashed at the long southern coast all the way from the Thames Estuary—leading to London—to Land's End, the far western frontier of these islands.

Attack With Incredible Fury

It was an attack of such incredible fury as to make the ceaseless assaults of the last four days seem but mere preliminaries.

Every indication was that the hour of the great test had come at last.

The Royal Air Force, defending this kingdom from such a blow as never was struck before, loosed every turreted gun in its fighter force and crippled airplanes fell steadily on English soil.

The German strategy was simple: While German fighters took on the British Hurricane and Spitfire patrols miles above the ground—from 12,000 to 15,000 feet up—the Nazi bombers snaked across the coast in close formation.

The objectives of this unprecedented raid were everything that Britain has and must have to keep on fighting: Shipping, ports, munitions and industrial plants, and, above all, airports.

Known to have been bombed was the great Tyneside industrial and shipbuilding area on the east coast near Newcastle.

Civilian Dead Uncounted

Not alone the coasts were hit, but the heart of the country as well. None knew how long was the list of the civilian dead.

Several passengers aboard a train were injured by bomb splinters as the train was brought to a standstill.

Two houses were demolished in one street, killing a woman and two children.

British fighters brought one of the raiders down at sea.

(This dispatch through the British censorship did not indicate the extent of fatalities or details of the train incident.)

(The Germans specifically reported certain of their objectives. Bombed, they said, were the great Vickers Armstrong armament works at Hebburn, the port of Newcastle; Dover; other ports, and shipping convoys in the Channel.)

One Associated Press correspondent on the southeast coast—but one of the areas of heavy action—counted six waves of 18 heavy German bombers in less than 3 minutes.

No less than 1,000 Nazi planes appeared over the southeast coast alone.

The attack on Croydon brought civilians to stand now silent, now cheering the R. A. F. on, at their doors.

From the area of the airdrome there came a mighty roar of airplane motors, antiaircraft and exploding bombs.

Smoke Rises at Croydon

From the famous airport itself, plumes of smoke arose.

Watchers shouted triumphantly when the Nazi bombers banked suddenly and streaked off to the south. British fighter planes wheeled after them, their machine guns howling.

In the midst of this great thrust at the heart of the empire—the homeland which for 1,000 years has been inviolate from invasion—the air ministry announced that British bombers had been at work in Germany, too.

"Strong" forces, it was said, attacked oil storage plants, refineries, railroads and power plants near Bordeaux and Cologne in Nazi-occupied northern France. Three oil storage and refining plants were declared to have been left in flames, and an unannounced number of airdromes in France likewise were hit. Four British planes were missing.

But this forsay into enemy country was all but forgotten by the RAF in the heat of the struggle for Britain's life at home against a raid of such methodical might that never was seen in Poland, in France, in the Low Countries or anywhere else since the strongest air power of all time began its campaign in Europe.

Fill Mile on Mile of Sky

For Nazi fliers punished England and Scotland with uncounted thousands of tons of bombs; they filled mile upon mile of the sky.

At one time alone—over a radius of only 15 miles approximately a thousand raiders swept across the southeast coast.

This was aside from blows struck in many far-scattered areas in England and Scotland and these vast and many formations of destruction were made up of from 30 to 100 planes each.

Watchers on the southeast coast saw planes falling in blazing circles at the rate sometimes of one every eight minutes.

Narrowly Miss Gas Works

Some observers said there were 30 planes in the raid.

They were seen to start their dives about 3 miles away, and people in the streets saw them come down to within a few hundred feet before the bombs were released.

Tonight, rescue workers still were digging for the bodies of men at work when the perfume works was hit.

Antiaircraft guns were in action for a few seconds; then the British fighters zoomed into the air.

Reich Customs Border Includes Luxembourg

Berlin, Aug. 15 (AP) (via Radio). The German wireless announced today that the Duchy of Luxembourg is now included within the German customs frontier.

Belgian customs officials withdrew this morning, the broadcast said, adding that the Belgian-Luxembourg currency union had ceased to exist.

Park Flanks Airport

Two-thirds of the airport is well hemmed in by buildings; a park flanks the open side.

The bus was wrecked. Its engine was ripped out, the driver's cabin was splintered and windows were smashed by the explosive which dug a crater 10 yards in diameter in the road.

One woman said she counted ten heavy bomb explosions. Another said:

"They even machine-gunned us to the shelter in our back garden. How we got there God alone knows."

One big bomb narrowly missed the gas works near the airport and houses nearby were wrecked.

Firemen Are Cool

Auxiliary firemen sped through debris littered streets—"a cool lot," one observer commented—putting out fires as methodically as if the thundering destruction about them was only "atmosphere" for make-

Damage to the airport itself—which in peacetime is not generally used for military purposes—was not believed to be as extensive as had been feared during the first fury of the attack.

Debris scattered the ground for several hundred yards in some places, however, to show that there were hits. Incendiary bombs touched off several fires.

Three Stukas Shot Down

British defense planes were in the air within seconds after the raiders streaked down as if launched from nowhere in the cloud-streaked sky.

At least three of the Nazi planes were seen shot down in the first several minutes of furious fighting.

With the warning roar of the first explosion women darted into the streets carrying their children to shelter. One mother herded her brood of seven before her like a scene from a Mother Goose book.

One bomb ripped to pieces beside a shelter where four little boys had just fled, helping a crippled playmate along with them, from a game of hide and seek. They reached safety only by moments.

Dart Into Cellar

Another person in a shelter was pulled out of the wreckage, apparently severely injured.

Dozens of residents in the hard-hit zone had no time to reach the public shelters. Some darted into cellars and other hurled themselves flat on the floor. Many were cut by glass and splinter showers.

One elderly man told me that an explosion alongside his home sent up a shower of earth that rattled ominously against the walls "It gave Maw a fair old turn, it did."

Screaming Bombs Used

The woman who said she was machine-gunned told of dashing for the garden yard shelter with her 2-month-old baby in her arms.

She said she heard the bullets strike and the whistle of falling bombs.

Another witness said the raiders dropped "'screaming bombs" as well as explosives, and added:

"They scared me, all right. I felt weak in the knees until I heard the hum of our fighter motors. Then, by George, I walked out in the yard—bomb splinters and all—and shouted like a schoolboy."

British Change Name Of Lindbergh Road

Junior Board Note Favors Conscription

Young Businessmen Ballot After Nye, Pepper Give Views

By Scott Hart
Post Staff Writer

The Washington Junior Board of Commerce, composed of businessmen between 21 and 36, yesterday voted, 102 to 32, in favor of the principle of peace-time conscription to bolster the Nation's defense.

The action was on the principle of the issue and not on any specific legislation, it was emphasized. The vote was taken at a luncheon meeting after Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, opponent of peace-time conscription, and Senator Claude Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, an advocate, gave their views.

Nye, at outset of his remarks, hinted at some secret cause behind the conscription movement, and asserted that "in some respects the push to win peace-time conscription would appear to be wanton fraud, with none less than the new Secretary of War, Mr. Stimson, participating in it.

"Why these resorts to deceptions, false information, fear baiting by Stimson and others in support of peace-time conscription?" he asked.

"What's behind all this we cannot clearly see," he contended. "I suppose time will tell, but for now there is no answer."

Outlines Draft Purpose

Senator Nye said it is well to remember as an essential, practical aspect of the conscription debates, "that we are not arguing about compulsory military training, but we are arguing about conscription."

The purpose of the proposed draft, he contended, is to fill the Regular Army ranks to a point beyond its present strength," and not to provide military training for all our young men. That would be an entirely different thing."

It would be one thing, Nye said, to consider a plan whereby every young man would be given a year—or more if he himself wanted it—of military training. Such a program could fit in between high school and college or between high school and a job, he said . . . Compulsory military training would, indeed, be one thing, but the draft is another."

Pepper retorted that "the fellows who do the loudest talking about volunteering don't do the volunteering."

The intentions of dictators have been made clear by the dictators themselves, he said. "We've seen this growing monster that threatens to destroy the world."

They have said they would take gold, territory and resources, Pepper said. When such force began to assert itself, the people around began waiting to see what would happen.

If anyone thinks what occurred was "economic penetration, go and ask Holland, Belgium and the other invaded countries," he said. "I am not willing to see Hitler reduce the standards of living of the farmer and the working people of America simply because a beast like that wants to do it," he said.

"He we stand," he said, with a group of sinister bandits dividing up the world." He argued that if the United States needs a strong Navy it also needs a strong Army,and the men for both. Through the selective service bill, he said, "the slacker will not take the fruits of the land while the patriotic young men go to war."

Thinks U. S. Should Tell Hitler

Regarding his views on intervention, he thought this country should tell Hitler that it has an interest in what he does "when you start to grabbing up the world."

He said he could not understand some people worrying about Roosevelt or Willkie becoming a dictator and failing to worry much about the real dictators in the world. He reminded that this country has Constitutional guarantees against dictatorship.

Nye said the united States would do these things, among others, if it authorized peacetime conscription:

"1. We are adopting the ways of Europe on the theeory that we are going to stop some part of Europe's ways. This is the sort of thinking which makes a man's teeth rattle in his head, trying to grasp the logic behind it.

"2. We are deliberately insulting, libeling and condemning as unpatriotic our American youth, who might be eligible for Army service and might want to go into the Army, if he had a chance at a one-year enlistment and decent pay—at least equivalent to relief wages.

"3. We actually move toward dictatorship, and one step toward dictatorship leads to another. The process is inevitable," he said.

Windsors Leave Bermuda Secretly For Bahamas Post

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 15.—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, who arrived last Thursday on the United States liner Excalibur," left here secretly yesterday, presumably for the Bahamas, where the Duke is to be installed as Governor of the islands.

An official announcement issued today said: "The Duke and Duchess have left Bermuda. No other information is available." No indication was given as to when the Windsors would arrive at Nassau.

The Duke left a message to the people of Bermuda, which said: "With pleasant recollections of two previous visits to Bermuda, I am delighted that the Duchess is with me to share a third experience of all this charming and hospitable island has to offer.

"The Duchess and I have been made to feel very welcome here and I can assure you that we leave the island with regret.

2 Out of 5 Finn Children Ill, Red Cross Told

Woman Parliament Member Says Nation Faces Severe Winter

Forty per cent of the children of Finland are now ill with diseases resulting largely from malnutrition, Miss Kyllikki Pohjala, member of the Finnish Parliament, yesterday told National Red Cross Chairman Norman Davis.

Miss Pohjala was introduced to Davis by the Finnish minister, Hjalmar J. Procope.

Finland faces its worst winter in many years, she emphasized. She pointed out that last winter was Finland's coldest in 130 years, while this summer is the driest in 30 seasons. All of the country's apple trees besides numerous other fruit and vegetable plants have been killed, she said.

"I just wish I could eat enough in America to feed all th people in Finland during the coming winter," she said.

"Whatever help we can get now would mean much more than war memorials," she added. "Every life we can save now counts. We've had wars before in Finland, but never has the need been more urgent than it is at the present time."

(Diphtehria, pneumonia and whooping cough are the chief diseases ravaging Finnish children at the present time, according to Miss Pohjala. Rickets also threatens since cows have been feeding indoors and the vital vitamin A is lacking in milk, she stated.

"Mental adjustment" is the quality most needed in the Finnish people following defeat, Miss Pohjala believes. "Finnish people keep their heads up. They are silent. But the fight is still going on in their hearts," she said.

The total killed in the Russian war is no wplaced at about 20,000, while aerial bombing resulted in fewer invalids after the war because "bombs kill many, but injure very few," she said.

Miss Pohjala employed Kipling's phrase to sum up the Finnish peoples' attitude toward Russia. "We still feel that east is east and west is west . . ."

Mandel Faces Treason Trial

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, Aug. 15.—In a dispatch from Tangiers the newspaper Le Temps tonight discloses for the first time that treason charges against Georges Mandel, minister of the interior in the Paul Reynaud cabinet, entail a charge of collusion with Britain.

The Le Temps dispatch, relating to the circumstances leading to Mandel's arrest at Meknes, said that when Mendel and other members of Parliament arrived at Meknes there were hostile demonstrations.

Mandel went directly to Rabat, where he found Gov. Gen. Nogues absent in Algiers and announced that he (Mandel) had been selected head of the New French government which would continue to fight against Germany as Britain's ally, using the Colonial Army in North Africa.

Mandel, it is stated, then returned to Casablanca, where he sent a telegram to London asking to be put in touch with British authorities. Postal employes accepted the telegram but advised the French officials and French surety agents were sent to invite Mandel to return to his stateroom on the liner Massilia. To protect the minister from a hostile public, the commander of the Massilia was instructed to cruise off the coast.

The following day British Gen. Gort and Alfred Duff Cooper arrived at Rabat by plane. They were surprised not to find him when they asked for "Premier Mandel." Informed that a meeting with Mandel was considered by the French government as unadvisable, Gen. Gort and Duff Cooper flew back to Britain.

Vichy, Aug. 15.—Papers from Lyons and other parts of occupied France report the arrival of German officers assigned by the armistice commission to various control duties "in view of the disarmament." The military and civil officials of these sections recommended that the populations observe a "calm and dignified attitude" toward the German visitors who "enjoy the rights of extraterritoriality."

It was announced today that the Germans are permitting certain categories of prisoners to leave the camps on "captivity furlough." This favor applies chiefy to government officials and technicians required for restoration of economic normalcy in the occupied zone.

Mandel was subsequently arrested.

897 Sail for U. S. From Finland

Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 15 (AP).—The United States Army transport, American Legion, took on 897 passengers, including Crown Princess Martha of Norway and American diplomatic officials, and prepared to sail immediately today from Petsamo, in far northern Finland.

Mrs. Florence Jaffray Harriman, Minister to Norway, and Mrs. Frederick A. Sterling, wife of the American Minister to Sweden, and the three Sterling children were among the passengers.

The passengers were vaccinated against smallpox and typhoid. All were forbidden also to talk politics before sailing.

Japan Paper Wants Marines To Quit China

Tokyo (Friday), Aug. 16 (U.P.).—The Nationalist newspaper Hochi in an editorial today demanded immediate withdrawal of United States Marine Corps garrisons from China.

"If the United States takes over British patrol rights in that country, it will be sowing the seeds of future trouble," the newspaper said, referring to the so-called "compromise" solution of the former British defense sectors in Shanghai.

"Japan must watch the United States' attitude. We must be prepared for stern measures."

Sector Is Divided

Shanghai (Friday), Aug. 16 (AP).—Defense commanders of the Shanghai International Zone issued a communique this morning confirming that the British defense sector is being divided between American and Japanese forces.

The Americans, in addition to the central district, embracing the Shanghai commercial and financial zone, will guard the West Hongkew area, north of Soochow Creek and stretching to the Settlement's northern boundary.

It is considered noteworthy that this section includes the special District Court, which thus remains outside the domination of the Wang Ching-Wei Japanese - sponsored "central Chinese government."

The Japanese get the extra-settlement western district, previously controlled by the British.

Previously, Wang Ching-Wei government spokesmen had said they would not permit transfer of the British sector t oUnited States troops, and the Japanese had expressed hope that the United States Marines under Col. DeWitt Peck would follow the British example and withdraw from Shanghai.

The communique said the motion for reallotment of the British defense sector was adopted by a majority vote.

Dentists Pulled 19,024 School Children's Teeth

Health department dentists last year extracted 19,024 teeth from school children.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland included this statement in his 1942 budget which calls for five additional persons for the dental service.

Japan Lists Spy Charges Against Briton

Dead Correspondent Possessed Military Secrets, Says Report

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Aug. 15.—Offenses constituting espionage on military secrets under Japanese law were enumerated in an official report issued by the Criminal Affairs Bureau of the Department of Justice tonight against Melville James Cox, Reuters (British) news correspondent, who died in a fall from a window after being arrested by the Japanese.

It is stated that he possessed records of the numerical strength of the Japanese forces in China and their plans; records of Japanese concentrations at a certain place prior to the capture of Canton; records of Japanese naval forces and defense works at a certain place; records of movements of certain Japanese warships; a record of Japan's naval building plan and its progress; a record of the numerical strength of Japanese troops in Manchukuo; a record of the Japanese navy's movements in the Japan Sea, and a record of Japanese and Chinese dead and wounded.

By collecting the above information among Japanese government officials, officers and civilians, it is stated, he violated the military law. Furthermore, it was discovered that he had used slanderous language regarding Japan's crusade and the Japanese army and navy, thereby infringing the military criminal code.

The report also states that Cox's death had been proved to be due to suicide, because the "documentary evidence showed that there was no other way out for him."

Minseito Party Dissolved

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Aug. 15.—The last remnants of Japan's political party system removed themselves from the scene today when the Minseito Party, which gave the country many cabinets in the past, formally dissolved itself to clear the way for the new political structure.

Representative Sakurai's keynote speech declared that the party's aim was "to enable the nation to grasp the rare opportunity of national prosperity knocking at its door."

"Japan," he said, "now stands at the crossroads of her destiny, to rise or fall, with the double burden of building up a greater East Asia and completing the China affair. There is a nation-wide desire for a new national structure in which the minds and strength of the people and the nation's total power can be regimented for attainment of those great aims."

Churchill Admits Italian Advances

driven by the Italians from their positions in a mountain pass defending Berbera, the capital and chief port, the British acknowledged tonight.

Official reports said two Italian divisions (perhaps 25,000 men), bulwarked by planes, artillery and mechanized forces, had wrenched Jugargan Pass from "a small British holding force."

The pass is about 35 miles south of Berbera, and the Italians advanced from Hargeisa.

Berbera and the British Somaliland coast constitute the southern flank of the Gulf of Aden, an integral link in Britain's empire lifeline. The Italians are trying to snap that lifeline throughout East Africa, from Suez south.

Italian losses in the Jugargan fighting were severe, the British declared, and the battle is continuing at the new British positions.

Rome Predicts Victory

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Aug. 15.—The Italian campaign in British Somaliland was drawing to a close today, according to Italian circles, who predict an early Italian victory on the strength of reports which they said they had received from the zone of fighting.

These reports, it was claimed, stated that the main line of British resistance between Adadleh and Adueina had been pierced, and that the enemy troops had been obliged to fall to a rear position.

The war communique issued today merely announces that "the operations in British Somaliland are in full swing, with hard battles in which the air force is participating efficiently. Prisoners and weapons have been captured."

It was explained that the Italian high command, like the German, preferred to withhold information of successes until it is satisfied the enemy has no possibility of reversing them.

The communique, according to Italians, gives an indication of how the battle is progressing. The British, it is stated, have not been able to resist the combined air and land attack and as a result have been forced to sacrifice a number of troops and their equipment to cover their retreat.

Malta Bombed Again

Malta, Aug. 15 (INS).—"Strong" formations of Italian bombing planes raided Malta this afternoon, dropping a number of bombs but causing no material damage. One civilian was wounded.

Royal Air Force fighters engaged the Italians, and one British pilot crashed into the sea.

Colored Veterans Forming V.F.W. Post

A colored post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will be set up in the colored Arlington fire station tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock.

Application for the charter was submitted to the department quartermaster by Frederick Hurt, Milton McCrimmon, Elijah Reynolds, George E. Patterson, Victor Thompson, Frank Givens, James B. Gilliard, John Moore, Roy D. Bradshaw and James Lynch.

100 Weather Experts to Aid Air Defense

Plans to recruit and train 100 new experts in aviation weather service for defense purposes were announced yesterday by Robert H. Hinckley, Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

HINCKLEY

The training is a joint undertaking of two offices of the Commerce Department,—the C. A. A. Civilian Pilot Training Program, which will provide funds for tuition and expenses of students, and the Weather Bureau, which will prescribe the specifications and provide the course of study.

"The program is a further specialization, in another field identified with aviation, for graduates of the primary course in civilian pilot training," Hinckley said. "One of modern aviation's greatest needs is highly trained personnel in weather forecasting, and this small group will be of special value because it has had actual flying training."

The Weather Bureau is to receive applications.

House Group Approves Military Legislation

The House Military Affairs Committee yesterday approved legislation that would give the President authority to take over machine tool and other vital defense materials that had been ordered by foreign customers. The foreigners would be reimbursed in "a reasonable amount." Mr. Roosevelt last month placed machine tools under a system of export license control.

N. Y. Policemen Ask Home Defense Ranking

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—A committee was appointed today at the fifteenth annual meeting of the New York State police conference to go to Washington to urge, in the event Congress adopts conscription, that policemen be regarded as the State's first line of home defense.

Therefore, said Joseph J. Burkard, head of the committee, policemen should be the last called for military service "except in the gravest emergency."

'Registration Racketeers' Prey on Aliens

Immigration Chief Lemuel B. Schofield warned aliens in the United States, who must register and be fingerprinted at postoffices starting August 27, to beware of "registration racketeers" who, for a fee, are offering to "fix things" so registration would be unnecessary. He emphasized that registration is necessary, but that no part of the registration carries any cost to aliens.

Draft Bill Exempts Filipinos in U. S.

War Department officials said that Filipinos living in the United States, estimated to number upward of 50,000, would be exempted from compulsory military service under terms of the pending Burke-Wadsworth legislation.

Filipinos are classed as American nationals rather than citizens or aliens and are not eligible for citizenship, and thus were excluded.

The measure in its present form specifically excludes the 16,000,000 Filipinos in their native islands, although it applies to Hawaii, Puerto Rico and Alaska.

Aviation Group Plans Defense Coordination

NAA Committee Postpones Talks With Service Men

The National Defense Committee of the National Aeronautic Association, holding its first meeting here yesterday, discussed preliminary plans for coordination of the air defense activities of the Government with national aviation groups.

No statement was issued on the meeting, which was held in the office of the association's chairman, William P. McCracken, jr., former Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

Members of the committee who attended included Grover Loening, New York aircraft designer; Ralph W. Howe, N. A. A. governor for Virginia, Richmond; Brig. Gen. W. G. Kilner, of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, Buffalo, and Earle L. Johnson, director of the Ohio State Bureau of Aeronautics, Columbus.

Proposed conferences with Army and Navy officials and other defense groups were postponed until the group's second meeting here next month.

5 Air Force Fliers Die In Canadian Crash

Ottawa, Aug. 15 (AP).—Five Canadian airmen were killed in the crash of an air force plane on a routine flight yesterday, the air ministry announced today. The plane fell between Alliford Bay, British Columbia, and Patricia Bay.

Patrols Pierce War Game Line In Nazi Fashion

Officers, Men Find Mock Combat Too Close to Real Thing

By Marshall Andrews
A Staff Correspondent

Flackville, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Supposedly secure along a stabilized front, the Twenty-third Division tonight found itself suddenly concerned with strong patrols of Twenty-eighth Division Infantry which had filtered through to its rear like the deadly German spearheads of recent memory.

A few miles north of this little village on the Ogdensburg-Canton highway, the drowsing front awoke to life, troops and trucks began moving forward again, regimental and brigade command post telephones rang with insistent calls for help from elements hard pressed in front or menaced by strong patrols in the rear.

Truck lights were blacked out; the front took on the shape and sound and color of fierce incessant war.

From front, flanks and busy spots in the rear came the noise of battle, the musketry, the stammering argument of machine guns and the quick surprising bang of the big guns.

Close to Real Thing

It was mock warfare gone native. From general officer to the lowliest private, it was too close to the real thing for comfort.

When darkness fell, the two lines, stretching southwesterly from the St. Lawrence River toward the Ogdensburg-Canton highway, were supposed to have gone into bivouac except for the work of active patrols.

The two divisions left their starting points, at 11 a. m., the Twenty-ninth moving north from a line between Heuvelton and Woodbridge Corners, the Twenty-eighth from Pennsylvania thrusting southward from Lisbon. It as a race for a line of little hills commanding the area from Flackville to Lisbon.

In advance of the Twenty-ninth, feeling its way and pushing for the range of hills, was a strong reconnaissance column of Richmond light infantry Blues, supported by units of the Twenty-ninth Tank Company, of Danville, Va. Southward from Lisbon rolled another column—riflemen and machine gunners of the 111th Infantry and 75's of Battery E, 107th Field Artillery.

Forward on 4 Roads

Behind the Blues and the tanks, the Twenty-ninth moved forward along four roads, the Ninety-first Brigade, under Col. John F. Bright, mayor of Richmond, on the right; the Fifty-eighth Brigade of Marylanders under Brig. Gen. Amos W. W. Woodcock, on the left.

The Pennsylvanians moved south along four roads, also, the Fifty-fifth Brigade on the right along the river, a reconnaisance patrol on its left; the Fifty-sixth Brigade next, with a second reconnaisance column on its left.

Two miles north of Flackville, the Twenty-ninth's patrol dipped down a long slope, the ridge ahead. The patrol started toward the ridge, motors roaring.

At the foot it ran headlong into rifle and machine-gun fire from Pennsylvanians hidden behind the crest of the ridge. A truck careened down the road from the ridge, ran along the Twenty-ninth's column, riflemen inside pouring a withering blast into its infantry packed in the trucks, turning about and racing up the ridge again. A gun appeared at the farm house and started banging away at the stalled column, whose men streamed out, sought cover in a wheat field and in the ditches and fought back with their rifles and machine guns.

In the face of surprise and superior force, the Virginians fell back to another low ridge, where it held until stronger elements of the First Virginia came up and helped drive the Pennsylvanians off the hill across the way. The Twenty-ninth's line moved forward then and took up a position along the ridge, while its artillery moved up in support, unlimbered and went to work and foot troops poured in steadily on its right and left.

From Maj. Gen. Edward Martin, commanding the Twenty-eighth, and his tough Pennsylvanias, the Twenty-ninth, looked for no mercy tonight and prepared to give none.

Captures were many and surprises frequent when the Twenty-eighth's patrols pushed deeper into the lines of the Twenty-ninth. Two guns and their crews from a Pennsylvania regiment were taken in tact. Gus Ring, Washington newspaperman, serving as an intelligence officer on the staff of the Twenty-eighth, was captured by Lieut. E. Russell Kennedy, of Washington, when Ring, off the road and lost behind the Twenty-ninth's lines, halted his motorcycle to seek directions from Kennedy.

Roosevelt Awaited

The battle will rage without halt until 10 a. m. tomorrow, when the troops will march back to their camps to prepare for the expected visit of President Roosevelt Saturday.

After a weekend to be featured by a military field mass Sunday for the entire First Army, the troops will be launched on four days of warfare, corps against corps, the greatest peacetime maneuver ever held on this continent.

The 206th Coast Artillery, from Washington, stationed 40 miles south of here as Army air defense troops, carried out a war of its own last night in the hill south of Trout Lake, its enemy the famed fifth column. The regiment acquitted itself with a perfect score.

Suicide Verdict Returned on Death Of C. J. Hollocher

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 15.—A coroner's jury returned a verdict of "suicide by firearms" today in the death of Charles J. Hollocher, 43-year-old former star shortstop and captain of the Chicago Cubs, who was found shot to death near his suburban home here yesterday.

A new 16-gauge shotgun was found near the body and there was a shotgun wound in the neck.

Hollocher, a star with the Cubs from 1918 until 1923 when ill health forced his retirement from baseball, is survived by his wife and one daughter by a previous marriage.

Funeral services will be held here tomorrow morning.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

DESK CLEANING DAY. You may put it off many times. But there comes a day when the desk has to be cleared. It's either that or move to a new desk. We wouldn't trade with Drama Ed Nelson Bell because his desk looks like the Grand Canyon, with cliffs of pictures and releases in sunset colors. If they ever fall down, N. B. B. is going to be missing for a week. And Music Editor Ray Brown is surrounded with piles of music magazines that serve all the purposes of sand-bag emplacements.

Big idea of the house-leaning is that we're going away for a few days. The next two "Ringside Tables" will be written by Madrillon's Carr and Don, and Lounge Riviera's Pete Macias.

Who says people aren't appreciative? Here are dozens of notes from executives and entertainers. Col. Leonard Schloss, Glen Echo's head man, is the most forceful and terse writer. Adman Frank Romer, who guides Neptune Room diversion, shows the most flashing wit. Sam Jack Kaufman, of the Capitol Theater, and Eddy Duchin both write a nifty letter, too. Paul Marin, who regularly stopped the Lotus show, wrote from Boston, "I get that 'old feeling,' nostalgia, every time I hear Washington mentioned. Am I getting to be a silly sentimentalist? But I'm proud of it." Betty Reeve, who did such a clever emcee chore at Casino Royal, summed up the general entertainer's reaction by saying, "Every boost we show people get means so much toward accomplishing our ambitions."

Don't you often wonder about the whereabouts of your favorite entertainers? . . . Here's a note from Guy Richardson, former handwriting analyst of the Rainbow Room. He's now at the Cavalier Beach Club at Virginia Beach . . . Woods and Bray, who danced for many weeks at the Shoreham, postcard that they're summering at Eagle River, Wis. . . . Remember Louanna who sang so prettily at Mayfair last winter? She wrote from Baltimore's Blue Mirror that her next stop would be the Queen Mary on East Fifty-eighth street, Manhattan . . . Countess de Bournet, who used to look into the future for you at Maryland Club Gardens, lets us know she's vacationing with her mother in Pennsylvania . . . Eddie Chase, accordionist at the New Bavarian this spring, is currently sunning himself at Cape Cod . . . Matt Windsor, of the Anchor Room, postals us from Kingston, N. Y., one of his stops on that vacation due to last until September 2.

Here are several anonymous notes suggesting that we wake up and give a lot of credit to assorted musicians. Some of these boys seem to have devoted girl friends . . . And letters asking us to publish the present address of certain musicians. More girl friend angles, one suspects . . . What's this great big beautiful affair of sky blue flecked with silver? Ah, the invitation to Duke Ellington's concert. Snazziest piece of mail to arrive in 1940 . . . And here's a note from Peggy Wood, musical comedy star, saying that next time she's in Washington, she is going to hear Peggy Wood of the King Cole Room. Too late! The K. C. Peggy was married about a week ago.

It's pitiful the way we often seem to miss the best parties. Look at these unused bids to celebrations in the Mayflower Lounge, the Rainbow Room, O'Donnell's Farms, the Swing Club and the Starlight Roof. Anyone who'd miss those soirees must be——words fail!

One scolding letter. From an irate gentleman who says that all people who go to night clubs are idiots and the columnists who write about them are ten degrees worse . . . At one masterly stroke he thus consigns to the mental defective class several members of the Supreme Court and the President's Cabinet, all of the young Roosevelts, dozens of Senators and Congressmen and innumerable doctors, editors and lawyers. Hm-m.

Some of our best friends around the night spots seem to have writer's cramp. Take Oscar of the Hi Hat. He never writes—he telephones. Ditto for pretty Cecilia Sachs who's such an efficient aide to her brother, Manager Herbert Sach, of Del Rio. Maestro George Stein, of River Bends, comes in to see us—once in quite a while. If we hear from Manager Louis, of the Rustic Cabin, it's through a carrier pigeon named Bill, who also writes advertising. Getting news from the Harrington Tavern is a matter of going down there and getting it, a verra enjoyable task, anyway you look at it. Rodd Raffell, of the Nightingale, doesn't write either. He gets somebody else to do it for him.

What's this cute teentsy card? Why Dick Ashby's (Dick's Grill) announcement of the arrival of his pride and joy, little dotter Anna Therese. That's an item that'll never go in the waste basket.

A "thank you" to the Willard's Manager Somerville for the invitation to see "The Night of January 16th" on the Willard Roof. To date we've seen this thriller twice, enjoyed it even more the second time than the first. It's a great idea to let the audience dance between the acts to "Tiny" Meeker's music.

State Board Enjoins Funeral Stock Plan

Richmond, Va., Aug. 15 (AP).—The State corporation commission today entered a permanent injunction ordering the Easy Pay Funeral Home Corporation, of Norfolk, to cease and desist in its transactions because of noncompliance with the securities and insurance laws applicable to burial associations.

Commission officials said that contracts were effected by the funeral home by means of purchase of stock in the company which gave the buyer "funeral credit" on burial privileges in case of death.

Larger Colored Personnel Urged For Army, Navy

Seeking increased colored personnel in the military and naval establishments of the United States, a committee on participation of Negroes in the national defense program was heard Wednesday by the House of Representatives Committee on Military Affairs.

Rayford W. Logan, Howard University professor, formerly an officer in the American Expeditionary Force, headed the committee, which also included Howard H. Long, assistant superintendent of schools; Louis Lautier, and Maj. Campbell C. Johnson, secretary of the Twelfth Street Branch, Young Men's Christian Association and member of the Parole Board.

The committee asked that colored youths be trained for national defense in various industries and be given opportunity to serve in the Army and Navy in proportion to the colored percentage of the population of the Nation.

The committee pointed out that the colored population, approximately 10 per cent of the whole population, is represented in the Army by a number equal to 1.5 per cent of its total strength.

MAGNESIUM METAL

THE Story of a Successful AMERICAN ENTERPRISE

MAGNESIUM IS THE LIGHTEST of all structural metals. It is a full third lighter than any other metal in common use.

Remarkably tough as well as light, magnesium metal is today vitally essential to the construction of airplanes and is likewise eliminating useless weight in a wide variety of other products.

Originally, our country was dependent on Europe for a supply of this invaluable material. But the price—several dollars a pound—prohibited its extensive use.

It was in 1915 that The Dow Chemical Company began its pioneer work in the development of processes that would ultimately assure a completely adequate low-cost domestic supply of magnesium metal.

There followed 20 years of intensive effort—a steady, successful march of progress that contributes an important chapter to the story of American industrial advance.

As a result of this 20-year effort, Dow is supplying American industry with a series of low-cost magnesium alloys known as DOWMETAL*.

When Dow originally began its development work the price of magnesium was $3.50 a pound. As production and acceptance of DOWMETAL increased, price was reduced. Today magnesium metal is selling at an all-time low of 27 cents a pound.

Dow created and owns its methods of production. It pays no patent royalties on the production of magnesium metal to any foreign sources.

And within the last year Dow has doubled its production facilities and these will be doubled again by December, 1940. These facilities can provide 25,000,000 pounds a year and can be quickly increased—ample assurance there will be no lack of low-cost domestic magnesium metal for all of America's present needs.

Costello Fears Nazi Influence In Americas

Defense Must Be Sped, Congressman Tells Cosmopolitan Club

The United States is threatened with an "extremely serious" situation should Nazi influence come to dominate any South American country, Representative John M. Costello (Democrat), of California, yesterday told a meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club.

Costello, a member of the House Military Affairs Committee, warned that this country must rush to completion if its national defense program if it is to prevent "possibilities from becoming realities."

"Already," he said, "German influence is working on certain defeated office seekers in South American countries and should these influences gain a strong foothold, the result will be revolution."

And with the starting of a serious revolution he predicted that war would spread through South America as swiftly—or swifter—than it has spread across Europe.

"Where would this country stand without adequate defense facilities?" Costello asked. "Present-day wars don't wait a week, month or year for the participants to prepare. We must be ready to act on an instant's notice."

This country, he added, is the dominant power of the Western Hemisphere—"but we stand alone against the entire world and must be prepared to meet any emergency."

Hagerstown Fair To Open Sept. 23, One Day Earlier

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Aug. 15.—The Hagerstown Fair will open Monday night, September 23, instead of on Tuesday as heretofore, Andrew K. Coffman, president, announced. By opening Monday night, he said, concessionists will be favored.

The cattle show, which is being arranged by Simon L. Downey, a fair director, promises to eclipse any previous one held here in connection with the fair. He said that many head of fine stock to be exhibited at the National Dairy Show which follows the fair will be brought here.

A night horse show also will be one of the features this year. Heretofore the horse show was held in the day. There will also be harness races this year.

The fair association is free of debt for the first time in several decades. A note for $15,000 was paid off from profits of the recent ten-day racing meet, General Manager Harold F. Bester announced.

Mrs. Sallie A. Via, 96, Buried in Albemarle

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 15.—Funeral rites for Mrs. Sallie Amanda Via, 96, widow of Frank H. Via, were held this morning from the Batesville Methodist Church.

Mrs. Via was a native of Albemarle. Surviving are a niece, Mrs. Percy Mayo, of Columbus, Ohio, and four nephews, W. E. Sheppard, of North Garden; B. M. Sheppard, of Fairfax; George A. Sheppard, of Afton, and H. C. Sheppard, of Richmond.

Central Radio Station Urged for Sanatorium

Elimination of all individually owned radios at Glenn Dale Sanatorium is recommended by eHalth Officer George C. Ruhland in his 1942 budget requests.

An item in the budget calls for $3,316 to build a central adio station for Unit B at the sanatorium. Unit A already has the central station. Purpose is to have complete control of the time and hours that the patient would be listening to the radio.

ADA Favors $1,198,000 for Colored Housing

The Alley Dwelling Authority yesterday recommended that the U. S. Housing Authority approve a bid of $1,198,000 for the proposed housing project for colored people on Alabama avenue at Twenty-first street southeast.

The project will provide 313 dwelling units and will be named the Frederick Douglass Dwellings. These will be constructed under a loan contract with the USHA and rents will be established when all costs have been ascertained.

These will be graded, however, to provide for families of various income levels in the low-income brackets.

Four of five bidders were under the Government's $1,267,812 estimate, the ADA announced. Lowest bid was submitted by the Jeffress-Dyer Co., of Washington—$1,198,000. The Jeffress-Dyer bid was $69,812 less than the Government estimate.

The majority of the dwellings are to be two stories high. A few will be of one-story. They will be built in groups of semidetached and community type structures about open courts and curving streets, it was announced.

Each dwelling will be equipped with electric lights and gas for cooking. There will be connections for refrigeration. Most of the dwellings will be heated with hot-air circulators, fueled by coal. Forty-two of the houses will be provided with oil circulators.

There will be a system of convertible room arrangements, permitting the shifting of the use of one bedroom from any five-room dwelling in a group of two or three to the adjoining three-room dwelling, thus providing two four-room dwellings. The living accommodations will range from three rooms to six rooms, to meet varying family needs.

Hilyard R. Robinson, architect, under contract with the authority, designed the dwellings. Associated with him were James Posey, mechanical and electrical engineer, and David A. Williston, landscape architect.

The other bidders were M. S. & S. Construction Co., New York, $1,223,000; James Baird Co., Washington, $1,247,000; Skinker & Garrett, Washington, $1,250,000, and William R. Goss Co., Chicago, $1,282,000.

The dwelling authority also announced that bids on the Carrollsburg dwellings, another Negro project, would be opened August 28. This group, to consist of 314 units, would be built on property at Third and M streets southeast.

Applications are also being received for accommodations in the Fort Dupont dwellings at Sixth and G streets southeast. Approximately 50 dwellings in this group are scheduled to be ready for occupation by September 15.

Where Were They?

On Wednesday the House was compelled to mark time because so many Democratic Congressmen failed to turn up for the debate on an amendment to the National Guard mobilization bill. That amendment would have restricted the Guard to service in continental United States. With a strong Republican contingent present, the Democratic leaders did not dare risk a vote. So the House adjourned, with Representative May, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, serving notice that if a quorum were not present the following day, there would be a roll call.

This warning was evidently heeded. For yesterday the vote was taken and the House properly rejected the proposed amendment. It then voted, 342 to 33, to authorize mobilization of the Guard. The size of the latter vote indicates that most of the Representatives are either in the Capital or not far away. But they are evidently not attending to their legislative duties as conscientiously as they should. There ought to be few empty seats in either House when important defense measures are under consideration.

The emergency has kept Congress in session far beyond the time when it would ordinarily have adjourned, especially in an election year. No doubt many members are tired of the often dreary routine and naturally eager to reestablish contact with voters in their districts. But that does not excuse their absence.

The present emergency not only calls for prolongation of the session but also for expeditious disposal of pressing legislation. Empty seats so numerous as to compel postponement of votes on defense measures ought not to be tolerated. A few disciplinary roll calls might be a very good way of chastening the absentees and speeding up the legislative program.

Parachute Scare

Ever since the German onslaught on the Low Countries, the British people have been fully awake to the danger of invasion from the air by an army of parachutists. There appears to be little doubt that they are now far better organized and prepared to meet that menace than were the Dutch and the Belgians.

For that very reason, however, Hitler may refrain from attempting to repeat in Great Britain the parachute troop tactics he employed with such startling success in Belgium and the Netherlands. With the element of surprise lacking, the possibile gains to be derived by Germany from the use of parachutists might easily be outweighed by the probable costs.

Yet the Germans can still use the threat of a parachute invasion as a weapon in the war of nerves. Proof of this is to be found in what happened in Great Britain on Wednesday.

Approximately threescore German parachutes were discovered over a wide area in Scotland and the English Midlands. They were too numerous to be explained on the ground that they had been used by German fliers who had bailed out. It was immediately assumed that they had brought to safety Germans dropped from the air to engage in acts of sabotage.

With understandable diligence, therefore, British troops, police and home guards began a systematic search for German parachutists. None was found. There is a strong likelihood that the parachutes had been deliberately dropped by Nazis in order to frighten and confuse the British and compel them to undertake a widespread wild goose chase. It is revealing in this connection that some of the parachutes had never opened up, suggesting that they had been dropped out of German planes with no individual attached to them.

In other words, the very vigilance which the British have cultivated during these last few months to prepare against a danger which had proved so real in the case of other nations is now being used by the Nazis for their own ends. Nor, despite Wednesday's hoax, can the British authorities relax their vigilance for one moment. They must continue to assume that the threatened danger may become a reality at any moment. And they must be prepared to meet it with vigor and dispatch.

Thus a great many men who are needed for other tasks must continue to be kept occupied in preparation for a menace which may never materialize.

Nonpartisan Justice

Wendell L. Willkie has focused attention on a real weakness in the American system of government. From time to time Congress makes laws to restrain various activities on the part of Government employes and political parties. And too often enforcement of those acts is left to officials who have the same partisan interests as the offending individuals.

"The temptation is strong," as Mr. Willkie has pointed out, "for the party in power to prosecute those of opposite political faith and not to prosecute its own." This tendency has led Mr. Willkie to suggest that such statutes as the Hatch Act and the Corrupt Practices Act be administered by an impartial board. He favors a board as "nonpartisan in its make-up" as possible.

Details as to how such a board would be set up have not been worked out by the Republican Presidential nominee. At the moment the important fact is that a candidate for the Presidency is grappling with this problem. When the question has been studied in all of its ramifications Mr. Willkie's idea of an impartial board may be substantially modified.

It is well to remember that provisions of the Hatch Act applying to State employes who draw pay from Federal funds are now administered by a bipartisan board—the Civil Service Commission. Other sections of the act forbidding Federal employes actively to engage in political campaigns are essentially a part of civil service regulations. Administration of these provisions should remain within the Government's personnel system.

The need for more strict enforcement of the Hatch Act's limitations on campaign funds and of the Corrupt Practices Act is obvious to anyone who has followed our recent political history. No doubt a nonpartisan board would do a more thorough job in this field than the Department of Justice has done. But how far should the jurisdiction of the proposed nonpartisan board extend?

The recent investigation of the National Labor Relations Board brought to light the fact that, over a long period of years, the Department of Justice has failed to enforce the Antilobbying Act. That has been true under both Democratic and Republican administrations. Federal agencies have spent public funds to influence the decisions of Congress with little fear of prosecution because they are part of the Administration which directly controls the Department of Justice.

As the problem is further analyzed, it becomes evident that all statutes, not merely those dealing with political contributions, should be enforced with the utmost impartiality. At present the Attorney General is left in an anomalous predicament. He is expected to be a loyal follower of the President and the Administration, and yet to prosecute any fellow partisan who runs afoul of the law.

The best solution might be to divorce the Department of Justice entirely from politics. Prosecuting attorneys are already barred from political campaigning. The next step might well be establishment of a career service in the Department of Justice. If a precedent could then be established for selection of Attorneys General for their legal qualifications rather than their political services, no special board would be needed to enforce a few specific acts.

A Separate Issue

The Senate approved a pay increase for men in the Army and Marine Corps as a means of making voluntary enlistments more attractive. Undoubtedly a number of Senators hope by this means to defeat the conscription bill. But this pay adjustment has no actual bearing upon the question of whether compulsory military service is essential to defense of the United States in the present chaotic situation.

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, asked Congress to modify the base pay allowed enlisted men as a means of eliminating inequalities between the Army and Navy. Young men who enlist in the Navy are quickly advanced from the initial allowance of $21 to $30 a month. In the Army, recruits may spend virtually all of their three-year enlistment period at $21 a month.

Now the Senate has voted to assure volunteers in the Army and Marine Corps that they will not be held in the lowest bracket for more than four months. That action would have been justified if no emergency had arisen. When boys in the CCC are paid $30 per month, it is unreasonable to ask men to enlist in the Nation's defense forces for less.

There is need to build up the Regular Army, moreover, regardless of whether men are drafted for one-year training periods. In this day, when battles are won by military experts trained for their tasks over long periods, there should be no relaxation of emphasis upon three-year enlistments. More professional soldiers will be needed whether or not Congress approves the conscription bill.

So this adjustment in the Army's pay scale should have no bearing upon the Senate vote for the Burke-Wadsworth bill. The Senate has properly decided to end discriminations as between Army and Navy recruits. Its decision as to whether a draft is essential ought to be guided by much broader considerations of national security.

Economic Defense

In reporting out the bill authorizing a $500,000,000 increase in the lending authority of the Export-Import Bank the House Banking Committee has cleared the decks for action on the measure.

In addition to its present functions the bank would be empowered to "assist in the development of the resources, the stabilization of the economies and the orderly marketing of products of the countries of the Western Hemisphere." The present international situation makes it essential to carry out such a program in the interests of American defense.

The principal danger which the nations of Latin America face today arises out of the dislocating effects of the war and its possible aftermath. Cut off from a large part of their European markets for surplus products, these nations are plagued by economic difficulties which may make them a prey to Fifth-Column elements. And should the war end in a German victory, each of these Latin-American republics would, by itself alone, be in no position to withstand Nazi economic penetration that might undermine their independence.

The interest of the United States in the independence and stability of the 20 other republics of this hemisphere does not rest on a sentimental basis. The establishment anywhere in this hemisphere of a government ready to take orders from the totalitarian dictators would be a menace to our own safety. It is, therefore, scarcely less important for us to safeguard those nations against economic bludgeoning by a triumphant Third Reich than to build a navy capable of warding off any invasion of this hemisphere.

To argue, as does Congressman Wolcott, that the measure "will be interpreted (presumably by Germany) as an unfriendly act" is to argue that our current rearmament program is also an unfriendly act.

It is, on the contrary, a measure of defense. That point was made emphatic in the majority report of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee:

"The bill places this Government in a better position to meet an emergency which might otherwise eventuate in irreparable economic chaos and further totalitarian infiltration in Latin America. A situation of political, social and economic instability in the Latin-American republics renders them helpless to defend against future domination and control by totalitarian forces. Such a situation demands and justifies anticipatory steps to prevent a disastrous economic and political future."

Neither the United States nor the Latin-American nations contemplate severance of economic relations between this hemisphere and a German-dominated Europe. That would be disastrous. But machinery must be created to protect those nations from duress by any non-American regime which may seek to employ its trading power to achieve political aims.

The Absent Ones

Mr. Baldwin Webb, M. P., has apologized handsomely by cable for the ungracious observations made in the House of Commons the other day concerning the celebrated English comedienne, Gracie Fields. A member had suggested that it was not precisely cricket for Gracie and her Italian-born husband, Monty Banks, to go off to America with a pocketful of money, leaving her compatriots to face the fury of Hitler without high-grade entertainment.

Mr. Webb and an undesignated number of his colleagues "deprecate" this suggestion. They recognize that "Miss Fields has always been a source of inspiration to our people."

With mutual good feeling thus restored between Miss Fields and Parliament, there remains only the case of Mr. W. H. Auden, the poet. Whereas Miss Fields is said to be in Hollywood in the interests of her health, Mr. Auden is said to be somewhere else in America in the interests of his muse. Recently a correspondent in London's Time and Tide suggested that somebody should remind Mr. Auden "that a bad poet will possibly make a good soldier."

So far as we know, no formal apology has been made for this but doubtless one will be forthcoming. For Mr. Auden's poetry is certainly not without admirers in Britain. Perhaps there are even some Britons who believe that a song by Gracie Fields or a poem by W. H. Auden is worth more to the survival of Anglo-Saxon civilization than any number of Bhrem guns or airplane motors.

Anyhow, the moral seems to be that they also serve who do not stand and wait for the blitzkrieg.

Well, anyway, we won't have to wait anything like as long to find out whether he'll win or not as we did to find out whether he'd run or not.

Asks For War

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I sincerely trust that Mr. Hoover's plea to send food to the countries overrun by Germany will not be heeded. The responsibility for that terrible situation lies squarely on the doorstep of Mr. Hitler, and he would be only too glad for the Americas to step in and relieve him of it. I hope England will not permit us to do it, though I dislike the idea of starving millions as much as anyone.

In my humble opinion, our Government should at once declare war on Germany. If we would send everything we have—ships, planes, guns, tanks, submarines et al—and fight side by side with England now, we might possibly settle Hitler and all he stands for, before winter, and before acute suffering sets in.

It is unbearable to civilized people that one man has been able to stir up the trouble and misery that Hitler has. I pray God that my country may never do anything to make his path easy.

'Frantic Opportunism'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Ever since the Republican National Convention I have been wondering how many plain Americans have reflected on what was done there and feel the bitter shame I do over the actions of the band of derelicts who directed the shabby proceedings of that body.

Half a dozen prospective nominees were available for choice at the opening of the meeting, and the public had for weeks been speculating concerning the qualifications of each, but the final action of the convention shows that the party leaders had no faith at all in any of them.

Instead, there was a pathetic scramble to pin their equally pathetic hopes on an outsider as perhaps the least objectionable of an admittedly bad lot. This is opportunism of the most frantic sort. Yet had this outsider not appeared, the party would surely not have been above selecting a man whom, in its conscience, it did not believe acceptable as a candidate for the Presidency, especially in these critical times. ALBERT SHAYER.

President Quezon And Commissioner Sayre

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A Manila press dispatch the other day states that President Quezon contemplates coming over to the United States next month to plead with President Roosevelt to oust American High Commissioner Sayre from his Philippine post.

Mr. Quezon's sudden dislike for Mr Sayre, whom he hailed as the most ideal man for the post of American High Commissioner to the Philippines at the time of Mr. Sayre's appointment, grows out of that gentleman's disagreement with him over democratic principles and his opposition to the policies with which Mr. Quezon and his Palace camarilla are aligning the Philippines with totalitarian powers.

I am not sure whether or not President Quezon is really serious about his desire of having Commissioner Sayre ousted, but I do know that Mr. Quezon has got the hot feet again, and travel he must or he will get nostalgic. It has been almost three years since the last time he was in America and Europe.

There's no doubt also that Mr. Quezon would like to show American officialdom "Who Is Who" in Manila. Mr. Quezon is irked whenever there is an indication of even as much as a spark of opposition to the way he is running things, especially if that opposition emanates from the highest American official in the Philippines. The late Gen. Leonard Wood, who undoubtedly was the best Governor General the Filipinos have ever had because of his solicitude for their welfare, was branded by Mr. Quezon as a dictator or a usurper of Filipino rights to liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Mr. Quezon wanted Gen. Wood ousted from the Malacanang Palace; he fought the valiant soldier and statesman and carried the fight to the White House, but he was rebuffed by President Calvin Coolidge.

Now Mr. Quezon wants another one of America's highest representatives in the Philippines ousted from his post, because like the late and lamented Gen. Wood, he has dared to challenge his authority and undisputable leadership in American-Philippine affairs.

Under the American Governors-General Henry Stimson, Theodore Roosevelt, jr., Dwight Davis and Frank Murphy and later under Frank Murphy as American High Commissioner, Mr. Quezon was given carte blanche in running the Philippine Government to suit his own scruples. He reciprocated by hailing them in words of oratory as the best Governors-General the Filipinos have ever had since the days of the Spanish viceroys.

In other words, what Mr. Quezon wants as American High Commissioner is a "yes-man." What they need in the Philippines as American High Commissioner would be a man like Gen. Hugh Johnson or a man of the type of the late Smedley Butler. I am certain that both men would have no patience with Mr. Quezon's political tactics. Both would tell Mr. Quezon to keep his own place, and Mr. Quezon would be more than glad to oblige.

Against Conscription

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The American home is the foundation of our great Nation. How many Congressmen will have the nerve to shatter countless new, and perhaps, old, homes by voting for peacetime conscription?

I have polled my friends, both young and old, here in Washington, and can find no one of them who is in favor of compulsory military trainingg at this time.

We ask who and what is behind all this sudden cry to force upon our young men the art of warfare and its lessons in wholesale murder! Any or all of us would be more than willing to go to the defense of our land should war actually come to our shores, but why tear us away, under the guise of law, from our families and friends for an extended period, at a time in our lives when we should be going about the business of becoming established and building homes.

We dare say that if those in Congress who wish to vote for conscription were compelled to be the first to go, although they would be financially better able to do so, they would find some excuse to wiggle out. Give the young people a chance to speak, as they are the ones designed to become the victims of this vicious bill.

Is there not an alternative way out? Perhaps the young men and women who are employed during the day would be willing to give an evening or so during the week toward learning a war trade.

Let us arm ourselves with the inner strength and follow the dictates of our conscience in this matter, rather than the hasty demands of an uneasy Congress, in order that the Nation may be in a position to chart its future course.

A YOUNG AMERICAN CITIZEN.

Back Door To War

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Can political expediency set aside the fundamental principle in domestic jurisprudence that any assistance in a wrongful or hostile operation makes the assistant a joint tortfeasor and subjects him to liability for all of the consequences of the operation?

And can political expediency set aside the established principle of international law that private citizens in neutral countries may, without assistance or protection of their governments, furnish instruments of war to the belligerents, but that it is an act of war for their governments to do so?

Can we send our vessels of war to destroy the lives and property of one of the belligerents and proclaim that this is "an act short of war"—that "we planned it that way"? Can we shoot the nationals of a country with which we are technically at peace and say that they must not shoot back till we grant permission?

If our Congress decides to declare war, or if our President and Army and Navy decide to launch us into the European conflict, against the overwhelming opposition of our people, I would like to see it done in a straightforward manner and not through subterfuge or political manipulation. I would like to enter by the front door and not the back way.

And I would like to see the artifice discarded that we will say in advance where we will or will not fight the enemy. A distinguished warrior said that "war is hell," and if we go into it we should be prepared to go all the way to hell, if necessary.

New Era In Society

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Just as the Romans, as conquerors, translated, appropriated and distributed Greek culture before the Christian era, but were themselves destroyed by the simple idea and example of "the good life" appearing among them, so the English peoples have done the same for Jewish culture, morality and ideology during recent centuries.

Summed up today, Christ, Rothschilds and Marx have internationalized the basic cooperative phase into which the world is destined next to enter by the same pains, destruction and obstruction accompanying all pronounced social changes.

It shall no doubt be the province of youth, everywhere, restless and discontented with things as they are, to take the lead in culminating that international cooperation begun by Christianity, fostered by capitalism, followed by labor and now experienced by the proletariat through large-scale, prolonged unemployment in a world of plenty, all accelerated by the means of modern communication, starting as printing.

Hatreds of threatening changes being easy and natural, the present exaggerated name-calling and emphasis upon patriotism are but indices of the desperation of resistance to the unerring march of time toward a new era in society.

As far-fetched as that may seem, when compared with our own birth of democratic institutions, emancipation of the slaves and freedom of women, it is by no means a remote contingency.

The Right To Dial

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many persons are thanking God these days that we in America still have the right of free speech.

I thank God that we still have the right to listen or not to listen to this free speech that we still have the privilege and pleasure of dialing out the Lord Haw-haws and the Lindberghs of the air.

Fabulous City

THE LLAMA stalked down center his chin at an arrogant pitch such as Lady Clara Vere de Vere herself might envy. "My good people," he seemed to say to us tawdry Sunday zoo-goers, "what do you mean by loitering around a llama's castle? Be off with you—away with you all!"

The little girl with blue ribbons on her braids exclaimed ecstatically, "Mama, it's just like the story books." Mama answered placidly: "Yes, isn't he a silly-looking somebody?"

It would not be at all improper for our city fathers to pass a regulation to forbid the zoo to everyone except children. Somewhere in the process of growing up we adults lose our imaginative perspective and in so doing, of course, lose the sense of what's strange and wonderful, the very sense that gives us quality. Children look upon the creatures at the zoo as curious and delightful inhabitants of a fabulous city, while to us adults, on the whole, they are merely vaudevillian.

One of these recent Sundays a man walked up to the cage of the tree kangaroo—a wide-eyed diminutive kangaroo which hops from limb to limb—and looked at the legend.

"Tree kangaroo . . . never heard of such an animal," he announced as though he suspected a lie somewhere. He eyed the innocent animal suspiciously and again announced, "Never heard of a tree kangaroo," with that air of saying that was the end of it, and the creature, if it had any respect for reality, must disappear. And when he walked away he flung the challenge to the four winds, "I never heard of a tree kangaroo in my life."

The little bright-eyed, busy mink must grow exceedingly bored with the triteness of grown-up comment. "How'd you like a flock of those little fellows for a coat—huh?" Husbands ask it of their wives, marines of their sweethearts, girls of their girl friends. Yet any one of them if he were on display in a cage would be highly incensed at the passing cannibals who giggled and asked one of another, "How'd you like a couple of those babies for a nice stew?" In point of fact, the mink, who is a tidy little animal with no furbelows added to his lovely fur, would have laughed himself sick if he had been walking with me up Connecticut avenue on a day last spring behind the robust woman in a mink jacket. For she had smartened that elegant garment with a pinwheel hat, a zebra-striped skirt, wedge shoes, pouch pocketbook, eye glasses and a cane.

The cage of the two-toed sloths is a place where you hear mostly disparaging comment. These furry little creatures hang upside down in a contented lethargy not greatly different from the lethargy of some men I have seen sitting with their feet on desks. But the sign says, "Spends practically its entire life hanging from limbs and vines or sitting in forks of trees," and the consensus of public opinion seems to be that there's really no excuse for the two-toed sloth. Many a person, may heaven forgive the comment, who looks as though she'd had her face in a filing cabinet for 40 years come next Michaelmas, will read the legend, give a glance at the sloth, and sniff "Imagine that!"

If I only had the courage to meet the public gaze for an hour, I'd try a little experiment. I'd show up at the sloth's cage some Sunday morning with a sign around my neck to say, "Spends practically her entire life sitting on ingeniously manufactured chairs and talking about her neighbors."

I'd have a ballot box there and invite the public to vote on the social usefulness of the two-toed sloth and me.

Now down along bear row, you have something else again. The people patronize the bears, but the bears are the politicians of the zoo and know exactly what they're getting for their tricks. They know they have a huge, burly, cute way about them. They know we will spend our money to buy them peanuts just for the look of that ossy wave of their huge mits.

In a way they remind me of the Irish. It's just guesswork, but I think I'm right. Many a time I've heard some Irishman hold forth plaintively on that pastoral existence back there among the leprechauns. Uncle Ed and Aunt Maggie used to do it by the hour, especially on those misty September evenings when the distant trains screamed like haunted things. They would sit on the front porch and talk softly of the day when they would put the fever of city life and the hurly-burly of Uncle Ed's contracting business behind them. And if anyone should strike up "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen," you'd swear that the two of them would be off and away with their packs on their backs before the dawn so much as tossed a scroll of pink above the horizon. But if they'd ever gone, they would have died of lonesomeness. Not any of the Irish could go back to stay—well, hardly any. For they love the fever of life here—they put their hearts' blood into being contractors and policemen and committemen of one sort or another.

So it is with the bears. On windy moonlight nights I have a notion they sit around their cages talking about the wonderful old days at the Arctic Circle . . . but they wouldn't go back . . . not they . . . they love it here. HAZEL O'HARA.

Necessary Sacrifices

By Ernest K. Lindley

Is Business To Be Pampered?

ONE REASON why conscription for military service is encountering an uphill struggle is the feeling that business is not being called upon for corresponding sacrifices. There are multiplying signs that the national policy with regard to business enterprise in its relation to national defense is to become one of extreme solicitude, bordering on pampering.

On one side it is proposed to compel men to bear arms. At least, they will have to take a year of military training. At most, they will be called upon to sacrifice their lives.

On the other side, it is not proposed to apply in any way the principle of compulsion to the industrial mechanism which must provide the weapons for these men, or to any other sector of the American economic system. Instead, to some who are dubious about the conscription of manpower, the official approach to business enterprise seems to be a compound of cajolery and bounties.

THE TWO CHIEF exhibits of the present approach to business are (1) taxation and (2) the efforts to throttle certain suits under the antitrust laws.

The tax question falls into two parts: depreciation and the taxation of profits. It is generally conceded that if private capital is to be induced to invest in new buildings and new tools for the manufacture of munitions, it must be given reasonable assurance of recovering the investment within the period that the orders for munitions probably will occur. Accordingly, the Defense Commission obtained an agreement among all Government agencies that companies making these special investments, useful only for military purposes, should be allowed to write them off in five years. This means that they can deduct 20 per cent for depreciation each year for five years as an item of cost in calculating the profit on which they may be taxed. The understanding is that if orders for military defense purposes do not continue over a five-year period, these companies can come back and obtain a further readjustment of taxes in their favor.

Until this arrangement is set up by law through Congress, the defense program on the manufacturing side is held up.

THIS LIBERAL allowance for depreciation supposes, however, that the industries receiving it will make very small profits. Since industries, understandably, do not want to shoulder the risk of loss through failure of Government orders to continue long enough to justify the new investment, they are not entitled to a counterbalancing reward for taking the risk.

When it comes to taxing profits, however, the policy seems to be "go easy." In the view of several influential members of Congress, the Government tax policy with regard to national defense is, for business, a "heads I win, tails you lose" proposition.

The Anti-Trust Division of the Department of Justice has pending several suits involving industries of importance to the national defense. But it is feeling the pressure to "lay off," lest it make the industries involved noncooperate with the defense program.

It already has run into difficulty in its suit against a number of the large oil companies. This was to have been filed almost three weeks ago. It was not regarded with open hostility by the oil companies, because it was a civil suit. It covered various questions which had been raised already in criminal suits and which would be raised eventually in additional suits, if this over-all civil suit were not carried through.

THE FILING of the suit, however, was deferred on representations from the Defense Commission that it might impair the psychological attitude of the oil company officials toward the national defense program. Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General in charge of antitrust work, has taken the reasonable position that he will not prosecute any practice, otherwise in contravention of the antitrust laws, which is essential to the national defense. But he balks at being asked to discontinue a suit, otherwise justified, on the ground that it might instil in the leaders of a particular industry a noncooperative psychology.

When the Defense Commission has completed its study of the specific hearing of the case on national defense, it may agree with Mr. Arnold. It may have to pass similarly on four or five other impending suits.

It seems clear enough that if a specific business practice, otherwise illegal, is valuable for national defense purposes, it should be openly sanctioned during the period of the emergency.

But the contrast between the wary solicitude for the "psychological" attitude of business and the approach to the problem of obtaining men to bear arms is griping some of the Administration's sturdiest supporters in Congress. It may lead shortly to a real political explosion.

Congress Picks Lint

THE OBJECTIONS thus far offered against the military training bill are many and good, but still they do not cover all the ground.

If students of religion are to be exempt from this duty, then surely, atheism should be similarly favored in a Nation having no established religion, and if married men be excused certainly bachelors should not be compelled to serve, for the state of being unloved seldom is voluntary and is in most cases of itself a misfortune.

The French, who are a funny race, used to have a democracy which was intensively advertised and much admired here, under the simple rules of which all citizens of certain ages were required to spend their time with the colors, regardless of considerations other than physical infirmity.

The collapse of their army was due to causes which never will cease to be discussed until they, like the Germans, in some future day shake themselves together in a furious resentment against the ignominy rubbed in by a cocky conqueror and, in the regular course of European events, redeem their pride and redress their suffering. But those causes did not include favoritism in the selection of recruits.

THEIR YOUNG MEN looked forward to a day when they would earn the rights of citizenship by serving some time with the colors, and they planned their lives accordingly under a system which favored neither class nor calling, and put no extra penalties on the unfortunates who pitched woo badly or were conscientious misogynists.

But the causes of their tragedy certainly did include parliamentary lint-picking and obstruction in other matters affecting the national defense, and this fact should, but probably will not, be taken to heart here.

The opposition to the military training bill has rolled up such a total of objections and proposals of exemption that the bill has now been made ridiculous and no longer proposes equal burdens and duties on all fit men, but a mass of discriminations against a very few.

Under the American system of education a man may stall around colleges for years after he should have spat on his hands and come to grips with responsibility, but, of course, it would be unwise and against the national interest to divert him from his books until, in his own opinion, he has become saturated with knowledge.

IF SPECIAL SKILLS are indispensable in the war factories the indispensables might be inducted into the Army establishment, too, and paid the same wages that are given to draftees who are unemployed or unskilled, but that would impair the gains of organized labor and wipe out some of the dues that rich and highly confidential union treasuries expect to skim off the rearmament appropriations.

Or men earning high incomes in legitimate but not indispensable lines of work might be guaranteed their regular rates of pay while in uniform as a means of complicating, embarrassing and thoroughly discrediting a simple and urgently necessary plan to build up a decent defense.

No proposal should or will be overlooked or withheld which will help frustrate the preparations to stand off the challenge of Adolf Hitler and his chosen people and the vengeful aspirations of antidemocratic Spain in American waters.

The present plan, plus the narrowing proposals offered to date, is so discriminatory that only a few more little amendments would be needed to kill it altogether and notify the enemy that American defense has been placed solely on the superpatriotic minority, the unemployed, the unskilled, the unlucky in love and a miscellany of salesmen, clerks and soda-jerks.

And, whereas the little minority of men without excuses will have to give their pedigrees and fingerprints and live the life of conscripts, millions of others, including without any doubt most of the saboteurs, will not even be asked to record their proper names with the cops.

Congress, it's wonderful.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

A Nazi Begins to Doubt

I have heiled and heiled for Hitler,
I have cheered him day and night;
I have never known the Nazis
To be anything but right;
I have had no doubtful moments,
But my spirit now is low
When I hear the leaders shouting,
"Beer? Nicht! Dot drink must go!"

I have groveled for Der Fuehrer,
I've done service with his troops;
I've played dead and I've rolled over—
Even jumped through paper hoops;
"He can do no wrong!" I've bellowed
In a voice both loud and clear . . .
But I do not feel so ardent
When he says, "Away mitt beer!"

I have been the hottest Nazi,
Ever there with wild applause;
I've approved of all new wrinkles,
Edicts, ultimatums, laws;
"Strength through joy!" has been my motto,
More than ever now it is . . .
But I'm skeptical when beer
Falls before "Olympic Fizz."

I have done Der Fuehrer's bidding,
And considered him divine.
When he bawled, "It is verboten!"
I just bowed and answered, "Fine!"—
In his ranks I never faltered,
As I cheered with gusto great . . .
But, ach, will I feel so stalwart
If my Pilsner gets the gate?

On the edicts of the Nazis
I have put my prompt okay;
Shorter orders of pigs' knuckles
Haven't made me feel less gay;
Of "Mein Kampf" I've yelled "Colossal
Greatest credo of all time!" . . .
But there was no chapter in it
That said lager was a crime.

I'm a loyal, faithful German;
My whole family is strong
For the theories of Hitler,
Who they felt could do no wrong;
We have had no doubts whatever,
But today we're filled with fear;
Fancy being boss of Europe,
But deprived of lager beer!

The question put by the French court to all those former leaders will be obviously, "Do you plead guilty or guilty?"

The Treasury Department reports that there were only 80 Americans in 1938 with incomes of more than $1,000,000. And nobody is more surprised over it than the Americans with the incomes.

Lusk Sees No Housing Shortage In Washington

There is no semblance of a housing shortage in Washington and Government workers who may come to the city as part of new national defense activities need have no fears of finding living quarters, said Rufus S. Lusk, real estate statistician and president of the Washington Taxpayers' Association, speaking yesterday at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Mayflower Hotel.

There are housing facilities available to easily accommodate 45,000 to 50,000 persons, he told the club. And if the present pace of construction continues during the next 12 months, there will be sufficient housing for another 50,000 persons, Lusk added.

Green Quits FCA For College Post

President Roosevelt yesterday accepted the resignation of Roy M. Green as land bank commissioner of the Farm Credit Administration, effective August 26. Green told the President he wanted to return to the presidency of Colorado State College, "one of the land grant colleges that have an important work to do in material support of the defense program of the country."

The Chief Executive accepted, with regret, and praised Green's work in agriculture during the past 25 years.

Bullitt to Broadcast To World on Sunday

Philadelphia, Aug. 15 (AP).—A world-wide broadcast of a speech Sunday night by Ambassador William C. Bullitt, his first since he returned from France, was announced today by the American Philosophical Society, sponsors of the address.

Bullitt will speak at 6 p. m. (E. S. T.) on the "World Political Situation." Roland S. Morris, president of the Philosophical Society, said the address would be broadcast over three networks and by short wave.

Fury Unending

By Barnet Nover

The Fight Over Britain

THE BATTLE of Britain continues to rage with a fury that knows no end.

It was estimated in London that 300 Nazi planes participated in the raid on England which occurred on Thursday, August 8. The ensuing air battle was described as the greatest of all kind. Yet it was picayune in comparison with what has since taken place.

On Sunday, when the aerial blitzkrieg was renewed after a pause of three days, 400 Nazi raiders took part in the assault on Europe's surviving democracy. By Wednesday, the number had increased to an estimated 800. But that day's raid, too, was only a curtain-raiser. For on Thursday no fewer than 1,000 German planes were counted crossing the Channel at one point alone and the actual number of raiders may have been twice that total, perhaps even more. According to London estimates there were 6,000 German and British planes in action on that day.

WHAT DAMAGE the Nazis have done by these unceasing air raids is not known. Until Wednesday, at least, it was not enough to prevent the British from hitting back. For the Royal Air Force succeeded on that day in carrying out raids on widely scattered points in Germany and German-held territory on the continent. They also bombed the great Italian industrial centers of Milan and Turin, 700 miles from the nearest British base.

The effect of these British reprisals is not to be exaggerated, however, for it is obvious that they did not prevent the Nazis from massing, fueling and dispatching an air armada greater than could have been deemed possible not long ago.

THE UNANSWERED and vitally important question is how long the British can stand up under such punishment without losing their capacity to take reprisals and their ability to fight back.

Air power, like sea power, is absolute. That is why the air force which the Poles had managed to build up in the years before the war proved valueless. Most of the Polish planes were never even able to leave the ground. Those that did were disposed of in short order.

As between Germany and Great Britain there was not, at the outbreak of the current blitzkrieg, the same disparity as there was between Germany and Poland. The British air force was clearly outnumbered by the Germans. But this superiority in numbers was offset to a greater or lesser extent by other factors.

Among these two are of importance. First, there is the fact that in her home territory Britain has been fighting a defensive action so that she is able to muster against the raiders all her defensive strength in the way of antiaircraft guns, balloon barrages, fighter planes; second, there is the apparent qualitative superiority of the British air force, both as to planes and trained operators.

BUT NEITHER qualitative superiority nor the circumstance that she is fighting on her home grounds will do Great Britain much good if the quantitative advantage which Germany has enjoyed in the air from the outset of the war is considerably increased. In other words, the British may, during the last week's engagements, have shot down, as they claim, four planes to every one of their own that was lost and yet come out of the affray very much the worst of it.

To reduce the R. A. F. to negligible dimensions in a short time, Hitler may be prepared to sacrifice a large part of Germany's present air strength, gambling on the likelihood that he would still have enough planes and fliers at the end to smash what remained of British resistance and to make an invasion of Britain a far easier task than it would seem to be at the moment.

He is taking vast risks. But, cost what it may, he cannot afford to delay. In particular, he cannot afford to have the war prolonged into the fall and winter when weather conditions become unfavorable for large-scale air raids of Britain or invasion of the islands by sea.

Yet it would be wrong to assume that even if the present aerial fighting proves less decisive than Hitler intends it to be, Britain's peril would be over. For even if the R. A. F. emerges from the encounter unsmashed, the damage which is being done to British shipping, British industry, Britain's transportation system, supplies, productive capacity, might be serious enough to leave the nation vulnerable to the German counterblockade.

That is why, at a moment when air power occupies the center and almost the whole of the stage in the Battle of Britain, the British are still desperately eager to buy our old-age destroyers. And if we have any realism left the obstacles that stand in the way of such a transaction would be removed as speedily as possible. For in view of the fact that after overrunning Poland, Denmark, Norway, Belgium, the Netherlands and France, Germany has sufficient strength to hurl thousands of planes against the British in one action alone, it is absurd to argue that she will be too exhausted, after she has conquered Britain, to attempt adventures outside the European continent.

Germans Drop Spurious 'Orders' To Scare British

London, Aug. 15 (AP).—Authoritative sources said tonight that German planes had dropped documents purporting to be "operational orders" in England and said they were part of a "clumsy effort" to undermine English morale.

The documents were dropped Tuesday night.

One bag of them, it was stated, was dropped in a place and under circumstances which made it obvious that the Germans wanted them to fall into the hands of British military authorities.

The same sources said the Germans also had dropped empty parachutes in the Midlands as "a clumsy hoax" on the same night.

District PUC to Sit With SEC In Power Company Hearing

Potomac Electric's Application Seeking Permission to Sell Privately $10,000,000 In 1st Mortgage Bonds to Be Heard Aug. 28

The District Public Utilities Commission will sit jointly for the first time with the Securities Commission August 28 to hear an application by the Potomac Electric Power Co., for permission to sell privately $10,000,000 of first mortgage bonds, it was announced yesterday.

The joint hearing will be the first of its kind that the SEC has ever held.

The unusual procedure was ordered because both the national and the local commission felt it would be "in the public interest" and would "facilitate the consideration of the matter."

The hearing will take place August 28 at 10 o'clock in room 1102 of the SEC Building, 1778 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Persons wishing to take part were told to notify the SEC in writing on or before August 23.

The hearing will concern Pepco's request for an exemption from the provision of provision 6 (a) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 for the issuance and private sale to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and Mutual Life Insurance Co. of $10,000,000 principal amount of first mortgage bonds, 3½ per cent series, due 1975.

Pepco has stated it planned to use the money to meet normal working capital needs during the remainder of 1940 and 1941 and to install two 50,000-kilowatt turbo-generator units and related equipment and facilities.

One of these generators is to be completed late this year at a cost of approximately $4,075,000 and the other would be begun early in 1941 and would cost an estimated $8,985,000.

Curran Receives Resignations Of 3 Assistants

District Attorney Edward M. Curran said yesterday that he had received the resignations of three of his assistants. He said he would make several appointments to his staff in a few days.

Those who resigned yesterday were Assistant District Attorneys Karl Kindleberger, Albert Goldstein and Stephen P. Haycock. Other posts to be filled are those of John Wilson, chief of the criminal division under District Attorney David A. Pine who resigned shortly before Curran took office, and of Assistant District Attorney David A. Hart, who plans to resign shortly.

Vacation Trail Leads To Delightful Old Inn

Famous House at Whitman, Mass., Serves Food According to Diner's Viewpoint, Such as Double-Thick Lamb Chops and 3-Inch Steaks

By Martha Ellyn,
The Post Food Editor.

USUALLY while enjoying the blessings of a vacation, work "piles up" and the rush when you get back takes away a bit of the pleasure you had. But this year fortunately my trail led me to places that gave me ample opportunity to gather ideas for the food columns.

My mouth is still watering with thoughts of the food extraordinary served at the Toll House, a famous old eating house at Whitman, Mass. This colonial inn was built in 1709 and is almost as celebrated for the lovely simplicity of its New England architecture as for its culinary products. In September, 1930, Ruth and Kenneth Wakefield, the owners, hat this picturesque old house and $50, plus the desire to run an eating place according to the diner's viewpoint instead of the owner's. Now, just one decade later, they have pyramided their meager nest egg into success.

Martha Ellyn

They learned early in their venture that little gestures mean much to guests. On Thanksgiving and Christmas when they serve the proverbial turkey to a family, the "master" can do his own carving, so that the family can eat to its belt's end and then take home any meat that is left.

Since the inn is but 25 miles from Boston, on Saturday night a small pot of baked beans accompanies every order. A cake complete with candles is served—on the house—if a birthday is being celebrated. Undoubtedly these gestures have been a part of the success of the inn, for this couple started with seven tables, one cook and one waitress. Today as many as 1,640 meals are served in a single day.

Every year on the inn's opening anniversary, the Wakefields invite customers of the first year as their dinner guests. Out of the many invitations sent out this year, only two did not attend.

Double helpings or extra servings of any food are also given if desired. At the dinner where I was a guest, there was served double thick lamb chops, steaks that were 3 inches thick before broiling, and 3 pound lobsters.

Toll House chocolate cookies was an item on the menu that seemed to make a hit with the persons in our party. They are crisp and crunchy and a splendid accompaniment for a fruit sherbet, or may be served with a glass of milk for that retiring snack, or to the children when they need that extra bit. The recipe for making these cookies follows:

Toll House Chocolate Cookies

Cream 1 cup of butter and add ¾ cup brown sugar and ¾ cup granulated sugar, then 2 eggs beaten whole. Dissolve 1 teaspoon soda in 1 teaspoon hot water and mix alternately with 2¼ cups flour sifted with 1 teaspoon salt. Then add 1 cup chopped nut meats and 2 economy size bars, (7 ounces each) of semisweet chocolate which have been cut in pieces the size of a pea. Do not melt the chocolate. Cut along scores as the pieces are the proper size. Chocolate cuts easily at room temperature. Flavor with 1 teaspoon vanilla and drop by half teaspoons on a greased cookie sheet. Bake 10 to 12 minutes in 375 degree oven.

While I was visiting the Hugh Campbell Theurk's in Maplewood, N. J., I unearthed a recipe for an old Dutch favorite—crumb pie. This is a pie that can be served for a breakfast or as a dessert for a dinner. The recipe for this concoction seems to be an elusive one, perhaps because the Pennsylvania Dutch mothers who use to make it as a regular, carried the process in their minds rather than written into a recipe book. But, Mrs. Theurk's mother, Mrs. Sala Bull, has worked this oldtime recipe out in her modern laboratory and gave it to me. Here is her recipe:

Crumb Pie

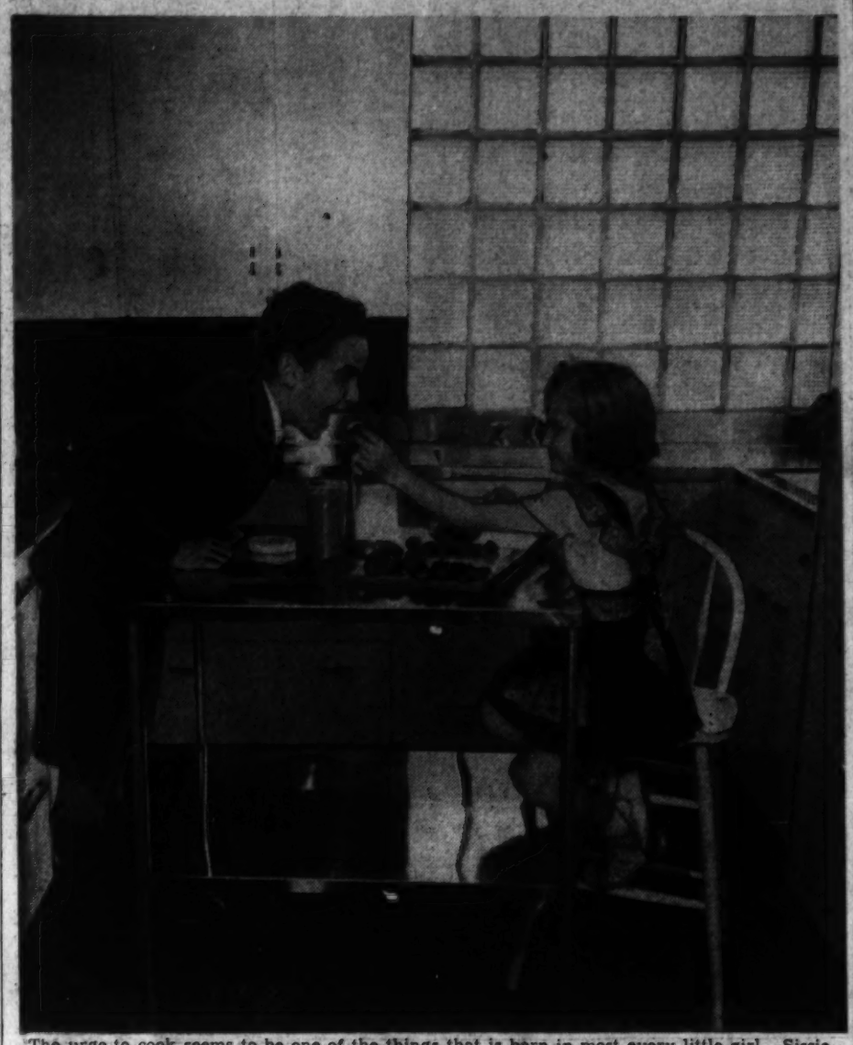
Mix together, 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 cup light brown sugar. Cut in 4 tablespoons shortening. Into a separate bowl, put 1-3 cup New Orleans cooking molasses and add 1 teaspoon soda. Stir with spoon until well mixed, then add 1 cup boiling water. Stir well and pour this mixture into the bottom of an unbaked pie shell, to the depth of about ½ inch. Then add a layer of the crumb mixture and then the molasses mixture, alternating with the two mixtures until all is used. The mixture will resemble a marble cake. Let stand for 2 to 3 minutes before placing in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, to bake for 30 to 35 minutes. Makes one 10-inch pie.

Although Jean Theuk, the 17-year-old daughter of the Theurk household, is only a freshman at Purdue University this fall, where she will take a home economics course, yet she baked some chocolate rolled biscuits—that were served with a fruit salad for luncheon—that would do honor to a professional chef. Jean's recipe for the chocolate biscuits follows:

Chocolate Rolled Biscuits

Sift 2 cups sifted flour with 5 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt for three times. Cut in 3 tablespoons shortening or work in with finger tips. Add 2-3 to ¾ cup milk gradually and mix just enough to make a soft dough. Toss on a floured board, roll out lightly until ¼ inch thick. Brush lightly with ¼ melted butbutter and sprinkle with 1-3 cup brown sugar to which has been added 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ cup chopped nuts and 1 economy size bar of semi-sweet chocolate cut into squares. Roll up as a jelly roll. Cut in inch thick slices. Brush the outside with melted butter and place close together, cut side down, in a buttered pan. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes.

M'mmm, It's Chocolate!



The urge to cook seems to be one of the things that is born in most every little girl. Sissie, the apprentice chef, in the picture above, is no exception. Evidently she has gotten off to a flying start with the chocolate cookies she has baked, for Sonny, her brother, is beaming with approval as he samples them

Mrs. Hicks' Cabbage Recipe Wins

Vegetable Venerated By Egyptians Need Not Be Monotonous

By The Post Food Editor

CABBAGE is an ancient and honorable vegetable. Long before it was prized for its dietetic value the Egyptians were building a temple to it, and the Japanese planted the seed of purple cabbage in an ornamental dish and let it grow branches to arrange on a household shrine. This is a vegetable that provides cheap food. The dishes made from it need not become monotonous if served in the fashions recommended by The Post recipe contestants. Other than coleslaw, hot slaw, sauerkraut and sauerkraut juice, there are many dishes that have special merits, such as the following winning recipes.

Stuffed Cabbage

$3 Prize.
Mrs. R. H. Hicks,
4303 Tenth street northeast

Recipe: Wilt the leaves of a medium-sized head of cabbage by pouring boiling water over them and leave in water for 10 minutes. Drain. Stew and grind ½ pound veal, add to it 1 cup cooked rice, 3 tablespoons minced onion, 1 tablespoon melted butter, salt and pepper. Fill the cabbage leaves with the mixture, and fold closely in shape, tie and then brown in 1/3 cup butter. Bake in a greased casserole in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes, covered for the first 15 minutes. Serve hot, pouring over it first a hot sauce made of ½ cup milk, ½ cup sour cream, 1 tablespoon catsup, salt and paprika.

Calico Supper Hash

$2 Prize.
Gere Dell Sale,
1428 Whittier street northwest

Recipe: Fry 18 slices lean bacon in a large skillet and then remove to paper towelling to dry. Mix 1 small head of cabbage, boiled and diced, 1 cup cubed boiled potatoes, 1 cup chopped cooked beets and 1 cup chopped cooked carrots. Fry the vegetables in the bacon fat, adding a bit of boiling water if necessary. Season with salt and pepper and celery-salt to taste. Brown on lower side only, very slowly, and turn onto a platter like an omelet. Serve the bacon slices on top with sprigs of parsley or spring onion. If fried over a slow flame, it takes about 20 to 30 minutes to cook. Serves 6 to 8 generously.

Cabbage Basket Sale

$1 Prize.
Miss Martha Ryan,
1627 Thirty-fifth street northwest

Recipe: Buy 2 heads of cabbage, 1 large red one, a smaller one of the green or white variety. Scoop out center of the red head carefully so that only a shell remains. Shred the scooped out portion of the red cabbage, add an equal portion of shredded green or white cabbage, and soak in ice water for 1 hour. Drain thoroughly, dry between folds of a clean towel. Mix with spiced tomato dressing. Use as filling for the red cabbage basket.

Spiced Tomato Dressing—Mix 1 teaspoon each of salt, dry mustard and paprika with 1-3 cup sugar. Add to the mixture, 1½ cups canned tomato juice, slowly, beating with a rotary beater until blended. Place this mixture in a large glass jar that has a tight fitting cover. Add ¾ cup vinegar, ½ cup salad oil, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 2 tablespoons grated onion. Adjust the cover on jar carefully, as in canning fruits. Chill. Shake thoroughly before using.

Contest Reveals Wide Variety Of Preparations

Cabbage Pie

$1 Prize.
Mrs. B. C. Philips,
631 Allison street northwest

Recipe: Chop one 3 pound cabbage very fine. Wash in cold water and drain thoroughly. Brown 1 medium-sized onion in 3 tablespoons butter, then add the cabbage and ½ teaspoon salt. Cover and simmer for 30 minutes, adding a little more butter if necessary. Stir frequently. Cool. Turn into a pie pan lined with cream cheese pastry and top with a perforated crust. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees, until nicely browned, about 25 to 30 minutes. Serve while hot. Serves 6.

Cream Cheese Pastry—Cut one 3-ounce package cream cheese and ½ cup butter thoroughly into 2 cups sifted flour to which has been added ¼ teaspoon baking powder an ½ teaspoon salt. Add ¼ tablespoon lemon juice, and mix. Chill and roll out thin.

Cabbage-Pineapple Salad

$1 Prize.
Miss Ruth Fullmer,
2219 Minnesota avenue southeast

Recipe: Toss 1 cup white cabbage that has been shredded fine and crisped, with ½ cup diced orange, ½ cup shredded pineapple and ½ cup white grapes, halved and seeded. Add 1 cup mayonnaise just before serving. Serve on lettuce and garnish with maraschino cherries.

An expression of appreciation to the American People

Thirty-four years ago I perfected a method for making toasted Corn Flakes from fine white corn grown in the United States. Little did I realize the tremendous expansion which lay ahead.

The American people liked my Corn Flakes. Sales grew from a few packages a day until now, after a third of a century, hundreds of thousands of packages are sold each day. Ideal working conditions, security and means of livelihood have been provided for our employees and their families. The American farmer likewise has been benefited by our purchases of grains and other products.

Today as I note with satisfaction the ever increasing sales of Kellogg's (the original) Corn Flakes and our other cereals, I wish to express my sincere appreciation to the American people for their confidence in the products which bear my name. I also wish to thank the grocery industry for their splendid cooperation.

Kellogg products will continue to be made according to the high standards which have won for them this acceptance.

The Federal Diary:

U. S. Jobs Pass Million Mark For First Time

1,011,066 on Pay Roll As Defense Drive Opens 2,886 Positions in D. C.

By Edward Ryan

The national defense drive boosted Government employment past the 1,000,000 mark for the first time, and opened up nearly 3,000 more jobs in Washington during June, the Civil Service Commission reported yesterday.

New employes were landing Federal jobs, in and out of Washington, faster during June than any month this year, with an employment boost of 2.2 per cent in the District, and 3.4 per cent for the whole service.

Total jobholders in the executive branch of the Government in June was 1,011,066, compared with the World War record of 917,780, and the previous peak of 967,857 last December.

2,886 New Jobs Here

Washington's share in the defense job boom was an increase of 2,886 jobs, bringing the total Federal employment here to 133,823, another record. It was the sixth month in a row that the local Government job record had been broken.

"The national defense program," the Commission said, "has resulted in especially significant employment increases during the past year."

Since June 1939, officials said, the total of Federal jobholders has increased by 85,806, and 82 per cent of this has come in four first line defense agencies, War and Navy Departments, Panama Canal, and the Civil Aeronautics Authority. The same agencies added 19,733 workers to their rolls during June, or almost 66 per cent of the total increase for the month.

The National Defense Council appeared in the employment records for the first time with 67 workers, 18 of them listed as temporary, but only a small proportion of their staff was working at the end of June, the report said. Now the agency has nearly 600 employes, including dollar-a-year men, and volunteers.

Along with the four agencies with the biggest share of the June increase, gains in employment were reported by the State Department, Census Bureau, and Civil Service Commission. Seasonal job increases were recorded by the Agriculture and Postoffice Departments.

Pay Roll Declines

While the jobs increased, the pay roll went down from $149,205,295 in May, to $149,076,667 in June, a decline of 0.1 per cent. This decrease was felt in the District, too, with a drop from $23,298,161 to $23,245,677 during the month.

The pay-roll drop, the commission said, was the result of fewer working days in June for per diem and per hour employes. This offset pay-roll increases resulting from added employment.

Calendar: The District Department of the American Federation of Government Employes will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the Hamilton Hotel.

Jacob Crane, assistant administrator of the United States Housing Administration for two years, has transferred to the National Defense Commission as assistant housing coordinator. He worked with the World War Housing Corporation, and has served as consultant for the National Resources Planning Board and other Government agencies.

Beauty: "Miss Interior 1940" will be chosen on a moonlight cruise for members of the Interior Department Recreation Association Monday.

Along with this announcement the association published this advertisement:

"WANTED—Several beautiful girls to act as hostesses and chaperones to our members and friends of the Department of Commerce American Legion Post who will be present. Men also will be needed."

Dance Scheduled

Meanwhile the Civil Service Recreation Association told its members, in their weekly news jottings, "The editors of this paper think that a beauty contest combined with a commission dance is just what the commission needs." The dance will be September 7, contest winner will be "Miss Commissioner."

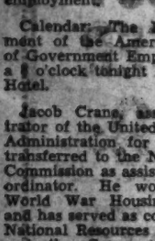
Jobs: The Norfolk Navy Yard has filled its quotas of men needed for half a dozen defense positions, the Civil Service Commission reported.

Exams have been held open for several weeks for the jobs of sailmaker, coppersmith, electric welder, pneumatic driller and boatbuilder, but yesterday the commission said that August 28 will be a deadline for more applications.

Other jobs still open at the Norfolk Navy Yard include loftsman, $7.36 to $8.32 a day; shipfitter, $7.39 to $8.35 a day, and calker and chipper, $7.10 to $8.06 a day.

Station PDS Presents Talented Pianist

The guest artist to appear on Lee Everett's PDS program is Mrs. Sabina F. Vorck, 2027 Massachusetts avenue northwest. Mrs. Vorck, who is employed in the Navy Department, will play several piano selections this morning. She has had radio experience in Colorado and appeared on a PDS program last March. Mrs. Vorck will broadcast over station WMAL.



"Station PDS Presents," broadcast by Lee Everett from the Peoples Drug Stores Studio, Eleventh and G streets northwest, is presented each week-day morning from 7:30 to 8:30 over Station WMAL for Peoples Drug Stores in cooperation with The Washington Post. Anyone over 18 years old may participate in the auditions at 7:30 a. m. Tuesdays at the R. K. O. Keith's theater. Winners are paid $5 for their appearance on this program.

Procopes Entertain for Woman From Finland's Parliament

Miss Pohjola, Former Nurse Who Has Been Touring Country for War Relief, Will Sail Next Week for Petsamo

By Dudley Harmon

A former trained nurse, now a member of the Finnish Parliament, wound up a strenuous tour of the country in the interests of Finnish relief with a cocktail party given yesterday for her by the Minister and Mme. Procope.

The guest of honor, Miss Kyllikki Pohjola, leaves Washington today and will sail next week for Finland. In wartime it takes 14 days to get there—the boats go up by the Arctic Circle to Petsamo, from which the liner American Legion sailed yesterday with a boatload of distinguished refugees.

During the Russo-Finnish war Miss Pohjola traveled all over the front as a member of the Hoover Relief Commission. She was under fire several times, but fortunately trained nurses are not apt to get hysterical about such things. Incidentally Miss Pohjola spent 12 of her nursing years in this country. She was also here two summers ago for the Swedish-Finnish tercentenary ceremonies. On this trip she has been giving lectures all over the United States.

Another Finn Centers Attention

Another prominent visiting Finn, Yrjo Saastamoinen, who has known Miss Pohjola for many years, told us that Finland was the first country in the world to introduce women's suffrage. It's been the rule there since 1907, and Finland now has 18 women Parliament members out of 200, a much bigger percentage than the United States. Mr. Saastamoinen is a former Minister to Holland, Belgium and Spain, and is here on a government mission. He has been staying at the Shoreham and expects to be here about three weeks longer.

A very special guest yesterday was Mrs. Emil Hurja, who in less than two months has raised $12,000 as chairman of the Finnish Orphans Committee. She was particularly pleased because she has just received an anonymous gift of $500. Mrs. Roosevelt is among those who have "adopted" a war orphan in Finland.

Mr. Hurja dropped in from his office and chatted with Assistant Secretary of State Henry Grady. Mrs. Grady is very proud of their young daughter, Patricia, who wants to be a newspaperwoman, and has just got a job with W. M. Kiplinger's Washington newsletter.

That was the first sizable party at which Mme. Procope has been hostess since her marriage, and she gave everybody a warm welcome. She wore a print, street length, with a corsage, and Miss Pohjola was in powder blue faille.

A Finnish cocktail and smoked oysters were among the out-of-the-way dishes served.

Mrs. Pettengill Summering Here

Erwin Piscator, newly named director of the Civic Theater, was there with Mrs. Piscator. He is internationally known for his work. Mrs. Thomas Cowell, another guest, will give a dinner for him tonight.

Mrs. George T. Pettingill, who is the object of much curiosity among her friends as she always spends all her summers here in spite of her attractive home in Connecticut, says she has solved the problem by simply living a tropical life. She wisely maintains that it is silly to rush around in the heat and isolates herself in her high-ceilinged old house in the Navy Yard until practically sunset.

Senator and Mrs. Alexander Wiley, of Wisconsin; Mrs. Sol Bloom and Vera (the Representative is home campaigning), Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, George T. Summerlin, Miss Rebecca Wellington, Ralph Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Selden Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spruks were others present.

Miss Pohjola had a strenous schedule yesterday, with calls at the local chapter of Finnish Relief, and on Red Cross Chairman Norman Davis in the morning and a small luncheon at the legation. She had hoped to visit Congress, but time didn't permit.

Two Virginias To Make Bows

Two Virginias will be feted in Virginia early next month when Miss Virginia Boy-Ed, daughter of Mrs. Karl Boy-Ed, and Miss Virginia Watkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bell Watkins, of Berryville, make their bows to society on September 7.

The party, for which invitations are being received in Washington, will be a dinner and dance at the North Wales Club near Warrenton.

Miss Boy-Ed and Miss Watkins are cousins. The former's mother was Virginia Mackay-Smith and Mrs. Watkins was Gladys Mackay-Smith. Their father was the late Bishop Alexander Mackay-Smith, of Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Watkins for many years have made their home at Annefield, near Berryville.

After her marriage to Capt. Karl Boy-Ed, who at one time was attached to the German Embassy here, Mrs. Boy-Ed lived abroad. After her husband's death, however, she returned to this country to make her home near her sister at Berryville.

Baton Rouge Guests Visiting Bob Mathewses

Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Robert, of Baton Rouge, La., have been the house guests the last week of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Bob Orr Mathews at their home in Veazey street and Reno road.

Among fetes for the visitors was a dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vernon Fowler were hosts and a party given by Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., president general of the D. A. R., at her home in Annapolis.

Commander Mathews recently reported for duty at the Washington Navy Yard after serving a tour of sea duty as gunnery officer of the heavy cruiser U. S. S. Chicago.

Mrs. Mathews is the granddaughter of the late Gen. Henry Martyn Robert., who served as chief of engineers, U. S. A., and also at one time was Engineer Commissioner of the District of Columbia.

Kalbfuses Give A Dinner Party

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Edward C. Kalbfus entertained at a dinner party last evening at Newport where Admiral Kalbfus is president of the Navy War College.

Guests were Admiral Kalbfus' cousins, Capt. Chester Wells, U. S. N. retired, and Mrs. Wells, who went to Newport from Washington. Also there were Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Frederick Furth.

Miss Anne Hagner Home From Detroit

After a visit with Miss Betty Couzens at her home near Detroit, Miss Anne Hagner has returned to her home in Bethesda. Miss Couzens is the daughter of the late Senator James Couzens, of Michigan.

En route home Miss Hagner visited with her former classmate, Miss Patsy Royster, who made her home in Bethesda before her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Royster, moved to Toledo, Ohio, several years ago.

Roy Mann Millers Are at Virginia Beach

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mann Miller have gone to Virginia Beach, where they are stopping at the Cavalier Hotel. They are accompanied by their daughter, Miss Edna Mae Miller.

Miss Miller has recently returned from Rehoboth Beach, where she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McElvenny, of this city, at their cottage in the Pines. Frederick Steiwer, jr., was also a guest of the McElvennys.

Mrs. Emerson L. Cummings, wife of Capt. Cummings, of the Ordnance Department, poses with young son, Gerald (Jerry) Emerson Cummings, and their dog, Brownie, in the garden of their new home at 3020 Macomb street. Capt. Cummings has recently come to be on duty in the office of the Chief of Ordnance. He was formerly stationed at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

A LETTER FROM Countess Lasocka, who is visiting Donna Julia Brambilla at Hamilton, Mass., says that she begs pardon for not writing sooner, but "the time goes so quickly and Julia always invents something to amuse me which makes it go even quicker."

COUNTESS LASOCKA

Donna Julia is spending the summer in the house of her brother at Hamilton. The house is most attractive and adjoins that of Donna Julia's sister, Mrs. Philip Coffin, of Washington, both houses being set in one big garden.

Both Countess Lasocka and her hostess are famous bridge players and have been taking part in tournaments at Hamilton. In fact, Countess Lasocka was first in the most recent trial of skill, having been second in two previous tournaments.

Count Lasocki, who is Second Secretary of the Polish Embassy, expects to join his wife for a holiday about August 23 and they will return to Washington together the first week in September.

STELLITA STAPLETON is taking time out from her work at the Red Cross to visit her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hamilton, jr., at Camp Percy, N. H. Meanwhile, Stellita's mother, Mrs. Daniel C. Stapleton, has come back to Washington after a vacation trip North.

Two of Washington's pretty post-debutantes, Elsie Ekengren and Diana Rowland, are vacationing at Rehoboth Beach and are staying at the Corner Cupboard.

Other Washingtonians staying at the same popular retreat in the pines are Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Dier, Mrs. David Clark with her mother, Mrs. C. H. Hutchinson, and Mrs. Charles Wilcox and her daughter, Caroline. Mrs. Wilcox has the rare privilege of living at historic Dumbarton House in Georgetown, headquarters of the Colonial Dames.

MRS. ROYAL JOHNSON and Mrs. John Hamilton motored down to Rehoboth to be the house guests of Mrs. Winslow Van Devanter and her mother, Mrs. George Earling. Mrs. Earling has reversed the usual direction of the summer trek, having come down from her home in Salisbury, Conn., to spend the vacation with her daughter in Rehoboth. The four ladies find plenty to do even in the midweek calm. They are all very fond of the beach and between swims make an excellent foursome at bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Winslow have staying with them at Rehoboth Mr. Winslow's sister, Miss Harriet Winslow, and Mrs. Winslow's mother, Mme. Bryn. The latter will return shortly to her home in New York.

Mrs. Albert Walker has returned to Rehoboth after spending a few days in Washington.

During the recent storms in other parts of the country, Rehoboth has been waiting its turn at bad weather, but to date the worst weather experienced has been occasional dark clouds and rather steady high wind. The latter naturally has kicked up some tallish waves and has caused more timid bathers to resort to some very original tricks in order to take their daily dip unbruised.

One elderly and rather cautious lady amused the more daring surf riders by standing in water scarcely up to her ankles—and solemnly ladling the health-giving sea water over her shoulders with a large tin can.

Mr. and Mrs. Casey In Atlantic City

Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Casey, whose marriage took place in Mount Rainier, Md., on Monday, are now spending a few days in Atlantic City.

Mrs. Casey is the former Miss Kethryn Virginia Campbell, daughter of Mrs. Harriet Campbell and the late Daniel A. Campbell. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick M. Casey.

The Rev. J. Edward Malloy officiated at the nuptial mass, at the St. James' Catholic Church. The bride wore a traveling costume in a becoming shade of brown with blending accessories. Her corsage was of yellow orchids.

Mrs. Dorothy Willard, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Her gown of Copenhagen blue was set off with wine-colored accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Francis P. Casey, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Parties Honor Betty Fischer And Fience, Grant Boss

Julie Cahill Entertains at Dinner For Couple Who Will Be Married Wednesday in Washington Cathedral

A flurry of parties has been planned in honor of Miss Betty Fischer and Grant Boss, whose marriage will take place next Wednesday at 4:30 o'clock in St. Mary's Chapel in the Washington Cathedral.

After the ceremony there will be a small reception at the home of the bride-elect's godmother, Mrs. W. Calhoun Sterling. Miss Fischer is the daughter of Mrs. Beatrice Dulin Cornwell and Capt. H. E. Fischer, U. S. N. Mr. Boss is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry K. Boss.

Last night Miss Julia Cahill entertained at a dinner party at the Chevy Chase Club for members of the bridal party and a few other guests. The long table was centered with white dahlias, baby's breath and white gladioli. Mrs. James Cahill was hostess at a table nearby for a group of her friends, including Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cahill.

Wedding Party Among Guests

Among those attending the dinner party were Miss Nancy Hoskinson, who will be maid of honor and Miss Doris Becker and Miss Nancy Rheem, who will serve as bridesmaids. Britton Browne, who will be best man, was there, as were the ushers, Godfrey Kauffmann, Rudolph Kauffmann 2d, and George Wheeler.

Yesterday afternoon Robert Neipold entertained at a cocktail party in honor of the couple at his home in Wesley Heights. Mr. and Mrs. George Wheeler will gather in a group of friends for cocktails this afternoon in honor of Miss Fischer and her fiance. On Saturday a group will travel down to Warrenton, Va., for a cocktail party which Miss Doris Becker will give.

Miss Rheem Plans Dinner

Tomorrow night Miss Nancy Rheem will give a dinner party at the Chevy Chase Club for members of the bridal party, and on Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Thacher Winslow have invited a group of guests to their place in Virginia in honor of the couple. On Monday Miss Nancy Hoskinson will give a shower for Miss Fischer, and that evening Jim O'Grady will entertain at a dinner to be given at Olney Inn. On Tuesday evening Miss Fischer will gather members of the bridal party in for a buffet supper following the rehearsal.

Mrs. M. J. Ferris And George Clark Are Betrothed

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney S. Jarvis, of New York and Wheelbarrow Hill Farm, Great Barrington, Mass., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Mrs. Margery Jarvis Ferris, of Darien, Conn., to George E. Clark, of New York.

Mrs. Ferris is a granddaughter of Gen. and Mrs. Jay Hale Sypher, of Washington. She attended Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., and is a member of the New York Junior League.

Mr. Clark is a son of Roy Wallace Clark, of St. Paul, and the late Mrs. Clark. He was graduated in 1929 from Princeton University, where he was a member of the Elm Club.

The couple will be married early in the fall.

Mrs. Simpson Fetes Daughter

Mrs. Peter B. Simpson entertained at a luncheon yesterday in honor of her daughter, Miss Dorothy Simpson, who was celebrating her birthday and anniversary.

Attending the party were Miss Eppa Melville, Miss Margaret Carroll, Miss Sally Witten, Miss Ann Hudgins, Miss Marian Mitchell, Miss Mary Kathryn Rosenberger and Miss Barbara Segar.

Roger Scotts On Nuptial Trip

On their return from Eagle Rock Lake, Maine, where they are spending several weeks, Dr. and Mrs. Roger Burdette Scott will take up their residence in Baltimore about September 1. Dr. Scott is one of the resident physicians at Johns Hopkins Hospital. Mrs. Scott was formerly Miss Martha Gooding Fitts.

The marriage of Dr. and Mrs. Scott took place last Saturday afternoon in Chevy Chase Methodist Church, with the Rev. W. Harold Snape officiating. The bride entered the church with her father, Harrison F. Fitts, who gave her in marriage. She was gowned in white chiffon, made with long full skirt, bishop sleeves and sweetheart neckline.

Instead of the customary wedding veil, this August bride wore a small hat fashioned of real bride roses, trimmed at the back with bow and streamers of white taffeta ribbon. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of the same bride roses.

Mrs. Donald F. Proctor, of Baltimore, who served as matron of honor, wore a full skirted gown of chartreuse. Her small hat was of talisman roses and she carried a similar bouquet of the rose buds.

Dr. Parry M. Scott, of Beverly, N. Y., was best man for his brother. The ushers were Dr. John Ridley, Dr. Gerold Galvin, Dr. Donald Woodruff and Dr. Donald F. Proctor, all of Baltimore, and Dr. Levering Neely, of New York.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Franklin Fitts, in Blackthorne street. The company was served with ices and cake in the garden. Mrs. Fitts wore a long gown of gray chiffon, with matching hat trimmed in purple asters and corsage of the same flowers. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Scott, who came from their home in Morgantown, W. Va., for the wedding of their son, also assisted in receiving. Mrs. Scott wore deep blue chiffon, with a corsage of talisman roses.

Samuel O. Clarks Are on Vacation In the West

Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Samuel O. Clark, who are vacationing in the West, recently spent several days at Paradise inn, Rainier National Park. They went from there to Seattle to visit Mr. Clark's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elias Clark.

Before returning to their Washington home the latter part of this month, the Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Clark will make a series of visits in the West.

Mrs. Welles In Bar Harbor

Mrs. Sumner Welles, wife of the Under Secretary of State, has arrived at the Malvern in Bar Harbor. Mr. Welles will join her this week-end.

Mrs. Welles spent several weeks earlier this month at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull are also on vacation.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Minister of Denmark, Henrik de Kauffmann, returned yesterday by plane from a business trip to San Francisco.

Mrs. Dow W. Harter and her son, Jack, who have been spending the past three months at their home in Akron, Ohio, have rejoined Representative Harter in their apartment at the Shoreham. Mrs. Harter and Jack will return to Akron early next week.

Rodman Wanamaker, of New York and Philadelphia, has come here to work for the National Defense Commission and has taken an apartment at the Shoreham.

Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss is in Newport for the remainder of Tennis Week. She has been at the St. Regis in New York for several days.

Mrs. John P. Story, of Washington, has been joined at the Blackstone Hotel in New York by Miss Eleanor Schuyler, also of this city.

Edward Van Devanter has gone to Blue Hill, Me., where he will remain until after Labor Day as the guest of Mrs. Henry H. Rousseau, widow of Admiral Rousseau, U. S. N.

Mrs. Theodore W. Chase and her young son, Theodore, jr., are visiting her grandparents in Arlington County, Va. Mrs. Chase is the former Virginia Day, of Arlington. She and her husband several months ago were selected by the editor of Ladies Home Journal for their wage-earning group in one of a series of articles entitled "How America Lives."

Mrs. Rebekah Johnson has left the city for a visit with friends in Syracuse, N. Y. Before returning home she will tour Canada.

300 Guests Attend Party Given by Noels

Mr. and Mrs. F. Regis Noel entertained at a party yesterday afternoon at their home, Selsdon, in Kensington, Md., between 5 and 7 o'clock.

Some 300 guests, all local lawyers who plan to attend the bar convention early in September in Philadelphia, attended.

Engaged

MISS MILDRED WEST

whose betrothal to Frank Lee Hewitt, jr., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Marion West, of Houston, Tex. The bride-elect recently was graduated from Fairmont College here. September 28 has been set as the wedding date. Mr. Hewitt's parents are Capt. and Mrs. Hewitt, of Silver Spring, Md.

Preston Arnolds Return This Week From Me. Holiday

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Arnold will return this week-end from Maine, where they have been vacationing for several weeks. Mrs. Arnold is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Wrightson, of Chevy Chase.

Another daughter, Miss Patricia Wrightson, will leave for New York City tomorrow for a brief stay. Miss Aileen Wrightson is in Quincy, Ill., visiting Miss Annabelle James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guido James. She plans to return early next month.

A guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wrightson is Mrs. John L. Phillips, widow of Col. Phillips, U. S. A., who plans to be here for a month or so renewing acquaintances with her many friends before returning to New York.

Mrs. Samuel Reber To Give Tea Today

Mrs. Samuel Reber, of Washington, who is at Tyringham in the Berkshires for the summer, will entertain at tea today at her home there in honor of the Tyringham artists who will open a three-day exhibtion as a Red Cross benefit.

Mrs. Walter W. Palmer and her sister, Miss Rosamond DeK. Gilder, who has just returned from Hollywood, will preside at the tea table. Landscapes, portraits, sculpture and sketches will be shown by Mrs. Edward M. Perkins, Miss Polly Perkins, Mrs. John Stewart McLennan, Mrs. Robert Lamont, Sir Henry Hudson Kitson, Richard G. Burlingame, Walter DeK. Palmer, John Skier Rudd, Paul Westcott, Alison Farmer Westcott and Robin Osborn.

Coyles to Spend 2 Weeks on Isle Off Maine Coast

Author and Wife Plans to Depart Last of the Month

With his latest book, "Our Forests," just published by the National Home Library Foundation, and his new pamphlet, Total Defense," being quoted far and wide, David Cushman Coyle well deserves the vacation that he and rMs. Coyle will take the latter part of this month.

They will spend two weeks at the island they purchased last year off the Maine coast, and they can hardly wait to get there—to see how those hundreds of trees they planed last summer are getting along.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Coyle entertained a few friends at dinner in their apartment on H street. One of Washington's cleverest hostesses, Mrs. Coyle can always be counted on to collect at her dinners congenial groups of guests, who come away with memories of a delicious meal and a delightful round of conversation.

Miss Anne Coyle, daughter of the household, left a few days ago for Chicago where she has accepted a position with the National Planning Association. The past year she studied housing and city planning in New York.

Princes Plan Boston Home

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Webster Prince, jr., who have been on a wedding trip to New York and New England, will go to Boston the latter part of this week to make their home.

The bride is the former Miss Mary Palmer Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McCulloch B. Wilson, of Wilmington, N. C. Mr. Prince is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Prince, of Washington. The wedding took place at the Central Presbyterian Church on July 31, with the Rev. James H. Taylor officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white organdy, worn with a fingertip veil. Miss Mary Budd Wilson, maid of honor, had chosen a frock of delphinium blue organdy. Donald H. Prince was best man for his brother.

Mr. Prince is a graduate of William and Mary College and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Arnolds Postpone Marionette Show

The supper and marionette show which was to have been given at the home of the Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold yesterday afternoon has been postponed until tomorrow.

The affair in McLean, Va., will be for the benefit of St. John's Episcopal Church in McLean. It is to be held from 5 o'clock on.

Harem Song

I

They tell the things we want to know
And never guess they've done it.
They play their small role in the household show,
And blithely think they run it.

II

They miss the sight they shouldn't see,
Even though it's in their orbit,
Oh aren't they dumb about little things?
And don't we love 'em for it!

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Many Truthtown socialites are hurrying home from their vacation resorts because of the arrival here of several celebrated war refugees. Among them are Baron and Baroness Belfry, the Countess of Raspberry and Lady Skipmunk and her daughter, the Hon. Verbena Moss-Thistle.

Mrs. Dartwood Diddle is rounding up debs and dowagers for her new society, "The Cheery Callers." In event of war, members of the organization would visit nursing homes and hospitals to talk to and entertain patients. They would also write letters to soldiers at training camps.

Wedding Bells

Mrs. Chitterton Plunkette yesterday remarried her second husband, Philander Plunkette, for the second time in a large public wedding at the country estate of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Caspar Chitterton. The bride, who at her first remarriage to Mr. Plunkette four years ago, wore a flesh color outfit, this time chose dusty pink for her ensemble. The bridesmaids, all of whom were recent divorcés, were in bilious green.

Mr. Plunkette was recently divorced at Reno by Maisie Mooch whom he married two years ago following his second divorce from Mrs. Chitterton Plunkette. Mr. Plunkette is also the former husband of Mrs. Nottingham Plunkette and Mrs. Brown Plunkette Toddy.

The happy couple received many beautiful wedding presents. "The lovely part about it," said the bride, "was that none of the donors duplicated their gifts of four years ago when our first remarriage occurred or even of our wedding of eight years ago. Our friends have been most thoughtful."

Report on Mrs. Beetle

Not content with keeping Truthtown society in hot water, Mrs. Bartholomew Beetle, eccentric dowager, is now stirring up a hornet's nest at Clamport, where many Truthtown socialites are vacationing.

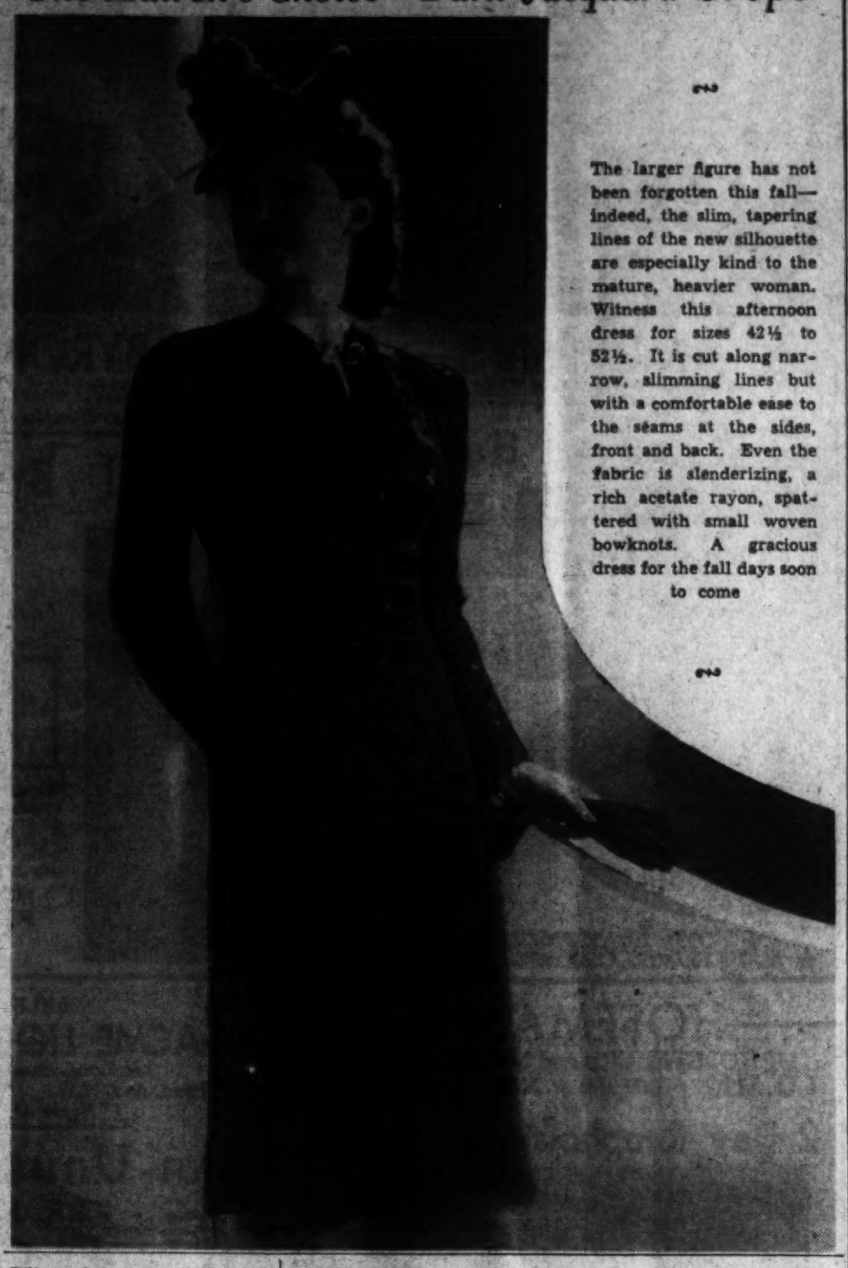
Hearing that Mrs. Montmarte Sinbad-Smythe, of this city, had opened her Clamport cottage, Marble Front, to titled war refugees, Mrs. Beetle announced she would open her "cottage." The Billows, to refugee children of London cockney parents.

"I had not intended to go to Clamport this summer," said Mrs. Beetle yesterday, "but if I carry out the program planned in opening my cottage, I shall certainly be there to supervise things—and see the fun."

Away From It All

The Stuveysant Spatts have purchased an island in the St. Lawrence to which they expect to repair each summer to lead the simple life. They are having the island renovated and modernized by electric lights, gas, roads, etc., and are building an airfield, polo field and racetrack. Architects are working on plans for a summer cottage which will include a ballroom, a movie and television theater, an indoor swimming pool and a music room with a pipe organ.

The Matron's Choice—Dark Jacquard Crepe



The larger figure has not been forgotten this fall—indeed, the slim, tapering lines of the new silhouette are especially kind to the mature, heavier woman. Witness this afternoon dress for sizes 42½ to 52½. It is cut along narrow, slimming lines but with a comfortable ease to the seams at the sides, front and back. Even the fabric is slenderizing, a rich acetate rayon, spattered with small woven bowknots. A gracious dress for the fall days soon to come

If you contemplate touching up your woodwork with a little gold leaf, don't do it. It comes off when you dust. The State Department library is trimmed with the leaf, and the only solution seems to be not to dust it. "I rather like it this way," says one member of the staff. "It looks mellow and dignified, the way a foreign office ought to."

WHATEVER BECAME OF . . . Doris Major, the Shoreham cigarette girl, who ran away to join the circus in 1937? She's back in town and is married to J. Grant Gilkison, of the D. C. Fire Department. At present she is manager of the Alto Towers, Wisconsin avenue apartment building. She likes the job, though she admits it doesn't give her wanderlust much chance.

STREET SCENE—An elderly colored woman has found a way to beat the traffic during rush hours. About 8:30 a. m. you can see her roller skating at full speed up Thirteenth street, presumably en route to work.

TIPS ON MARKETING
From the D. S. Department of Weights and Measures

Selling wrapping paper at 29 cents a pound would be a profitable business. Yet that is what the District weights and measures department recently found some fish dealers doing. As housewives know, fillets of haddock and other fish similarly prepared come wrapped in white paper, which becomes thoroughly wet from contact with melting ice. Several retail dealers, it was found, were including the weight of the paper—about two ounces per pound of fish—when they sold customers how much their purchases weighed. As a result, they were getting 29 cents a pound for fish and paper alike. All such dealers paid a fine, and Washington women now get full weight when they buy fillet of haddock.

A WOMAN'S WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

Maria Ley, French Actress, to Aid Husband At the Washington Theater Next Winter

"SHE can make you laugh with her hands," a critic once said of Maria Ley, the French actress. Miss Ley, who since has given up the stage in favor of writing and teaching, has brought those expressive hands to Washington. Her husband, Erwin Piscator, will direct the Washington Theater next winter, according to present plans; she will assist him and give a course during the 18-week student seminar planned by the new theater group. "The Psychology of Movement'—it sounds highbrow, but it's not," she says.

Maria Ley

Six years as choreographer for Max Rheinhardt at Salzburg convinced Miss Ley of the close relationship between body movement and acting. By telling a person to walk in a certain way, she says, she can determine whether he has talent, previous training, the ability to grasp ideas, the courage to let himself go. She plans to put her students through this test and to record their movements with motion pictures. Thus they can watch themselves move and see what changes must be made.

Learn Facts On Insurance

A TIME of urgent questions—when you take out life insurance. Even afterward, the thought persists: "Have I done the right thing?" Or "Could I make a better arrangement?"

Only by being well-informed on insurance can you be sure you have made the choice best for you.

There is the delicate weighing of the protection and investment advantages of your policy.

Perhaps you are a young married ma with small children and a limited amount for insurance. Then, you will want to spend this chiefly for protection—and the ordinary life policy will give you the most protection for the money.

If you have no young dependents or if you have more money for insurance you may prefer the investment advantages of the endowment policy. Your heirs are protected during the course of the policy and at the end of a stipulated time you receive its face value.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "What You Should Know About Life Insurance," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Suburban Housewives Ask How to Cope With Rude Newcomers, Who Disturb Their Quiet Routine

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been designated by the women in our neighborhood to ask you to help us with our problem. To begin at the beginning—we live in a small, closely knit community in Virginia. Until recently, harmony reigned. Our numerous offspring have played together since babyhood. We adults have always been friendly and—except for one care—not particularly intimate.

All of us have friends and interests outside the immediate neighborhood, but groups of us would get together frequently for bridge or poker or an exciting game of croquet. Life had been going on this pleasantly for approximately six years. But now the peace and congeniality are shattered, alas.

Six months ago, one of our group sold her house and moved away. The advance reports on the newcomers sounded fine. Man, wife and son aged 6. But we have lived to learn that the boy is as spoiled and mean a youngster as could possibly exist. Our motley crew of neighborhood youngsters often have their spats. But we mothers have always tried to let them settle their own differences. If one of them came running home bawling, he or she was kept at home until peace again reigned supreme.

But now, the minute the neighborhood "infant terrible" runs home to mama, she immediately sallies forth to fight his battles with the other children—and frequently with the mothers. Also, we have our children pretty well trained to come home at appointed hours. Or we go fetch them. Inasmuch as the newcomer's schedule is erratic (to put it mildly), when she wants her son she just opens the back door and yells for him. As I have one of the three new babies in the neighborhood, you can appreciate my reaction to that.

Her list of crimes is endless. She comes for advice or to borrow things and stays two hours. Recently, she asked me in a hurt manner why she wasn't invited when I had a few of my husband's office group in for poker. And so it goes, ad infinitum.

Now, what can we do? All of us own our homes and probably will be living together for the next 20 years, and we'd like to keep the atmosphere harmonious. Your advice to the lovelorn is excellent. Can you also help those who are no longer in that category? Sincerely,

SUBURBANITE.

Old Settlers' Attitude Is Less Than Adult

DEAR SUBURBANITE: Without condoning the newcomer wife's behavior, I must say that the attitude of the tight little clique of Pioneer Wives toward the situation she creates is definitely less than adult. You may retort that your surface manners toward her are impeccable. And so they may be. But I am talking about your collective attitude of self-congratulatory complacency, when you compare your virtues to her vulgarities. And your somewhat primitive assumption that it is your communal responsibility to take her, or the situation of which she is the spearhead, in hand and "do" something about her or it. And, also, about your naive (which is to say, your childish) distress and consequent total loss of poise, at having your little earthly Eden invaded by a disturbing element.

Where have you been, all you Pioneer Wives, that you hadn't learned long before now, that it just isn't possible to live any where for any length of time without coming up against the fly in the environmental ointment? Live in an apartment building, in a hotel, in a boarding house, in an attic, in a house in the country; or go aboard ship or to an Army post or flee to the mountains or the desert; or even go to work and spend your days in an office, and still you'll find the pestiferous element close on your heels, in one form or another.

And the extent of its power to vex will be just as great—no more, or less—as the degree of your emotional reaction to its existence. If you offer no resistance; if you actually accept it for just what it is and perhaps even remark it as an interesting variation of Life or Human Nature or Whatever You Want to Name It—it simply can't touch you in a chafing way.

I can't see that it's going to do any of you any harm; indeed, I think it might do all of you a bit of good—to be yelled and jostled out of your erstwhile pattern of smug neighborly sameness. It prods you out of a sort of social vegetating. It gets you to reacting, thinking and—I hope—adjusting and adapting to human or earthly imperfection in a large-minded, spiritually exemplary way.

It may seem to you all a dreadful thing that your moderately well-behaved, casually well-disciplined children should be obliged to associate daily, on a neighborly footing, with an "infant terrible," whose mother is worse (as defined by your standards and vocabulary). But such association is an inescapable portion of realistic social education. Sooner or later your children would come up against just such individuals, influences and examples—both juvenile and adult.

And isn't it well that it should be happening right under your alert noses—at the period in your children's lives when they are most receptive and responsive to your teachings? Here you have a wonderful opportunity to teach them, by brilliant diplomatic indirection, how to adapt to undesirable personalities if need be, without sacrificing one iota of your more civilized code and creed.

Lucky is the child whose variegated social experiences under his parents' aegis, provide him with an expanding philosophical grasp of the less beautiful aspects of human nature. For he can be brought to see the Facts of Life, in the larger sense, through his parents' eyes; and he can be trained by them in the techniques of making an instinctively self-protective, yet withal humane, adjustment to certain disagreeable social realities.

However, you wanted to know how to keep the community atmosphere harmonious for the next 20 years or so—in spite of the crudities of the eccentric newcomer. Well, you can take her to the collective bosom and gradually civilize her, if you are yourselves as civilized (as positively serene in spirit and demeanor) as you think you are. Or you can absent-mindedly erase her from your collective consciousness (when she is out of sight and sound) and sooner or later she will bow herself and hers out of the picture. But you can't help either yourselves or her by talking the subject threadbare over the community back fence.

Pigeon-Toed Walk Will Slim Ankles

Hollywood, Calif.—While doing some private research for her role in "All This and Heaven Too," Bette Davis learned that girls of 1830 gave their long, full skirts a gay and graceful tilt by walking pigeon-toed. Bette doesn't advocate that the modern girl follow this practice, but she does like the pigeon-toed exercise for slimming the ankles and strengthening the arches.

Beauty Secrets

Make-up Brushes

BRUSHES are often the difference between an expert and an amateur make-up. You frequently use the same cosmetics as the Hollywood actresses, yet you fail to achieve the same degree of perfection in the finished job. Do you know why?

For one thing, Perc Westmore, Hollywood make-up expert, always uses a variety of brushes to apply cosmetics. Furthermore, he insists that stars learn how to use them correctly. Their technique is easy to acquire and applicable to your own beauty regime. Here are a few tricks to remember:

Cleanse the face with a complexion brush. Dip the suds in soap and go lightly over entire face and neck. This treatment helps slough off dark, dead skin cells and thus brightens your color.

Apply eye shadow with a long slender brush designed for that purpose. With it you can place color just where you want it, a trick that is hard to do with the fingers. Dab the brush in the eyeshadow; then run it just above the lashes, where the shadow should be heaviest, and blend off toward brow.

Use a slim camel's hair brust to apply lipstick. You can get the clear sharp outline so difficult to attain when you want your lips to appear more perfect than nature made them. Rub brush on lipstick, then carefully draw the shape you like.

State Police Open Drive to Curb Traffic Deaths in North Virginia

Unmarked Cars Patrol Roads in 3 Counties; Speeders Face Arrest

Virginia State police are determined to curb the mounting traffic death toll in Arlington, Fairfax and Prince Williams counties, "if it becomes necessary to call up every patrolman in District 1 for duty in the northern Virginia area," Lieut. Wayne Carr, director for the Alexandria area, announced yesterday.

Pointing to a record of 19 deaths in Fairfax County, 14 in Prince William and 7 in Arlington since January 1, Lieut. Carr said he had instructed all officers in the district to arrest drivers who violate any of the State road laws. The maximum speed limit of 55 miles per hour will be rigidly enforced, and reckless driving charges will be entered against drivers who persist in straying from their allotted highway lanes, he declared.

State Patrolmen this week are concentrating on Route 1, between Alexandria and Triangle, where a number of fatal accidents have occurred in recent weeks. The officers are driving cars not identified as State police autos, and a number of arrests have already been made, Lieut. Carr said.

114 Unmarked Cars Used

The traffic director said police throughout the State had been informed the department would begin using unmarked autos almost exclusively, in an effort to apprehend "those habitual reckless drivers who drive carefully, only when a police car is within sight." The department has already ordered 25 autos of varying colors, which are not distinguishable from ordinary passenger cars, it was learned.

Fairfax County records show the Lee highway to be the most dangerous road in the county, with a record of 41 accidents and three deaths since July 1. The Little River pike has been the scene of several crashes, while eight have occurred on the Washington-Richmond highway in the six-week period.

Defense Committee To Name Chairman

The national refense committee of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce will meet at 4 p. m. today to elect a permanent chairman and to hold at the new trade body's headsidered vital to defense preparations in this area. The session will be discuss two major problems conquarters in the McGuire Building, corner of Prince and Washington streets.

Originally appointed to include three members, the committee was increased to ten this week with the appointment of seven additional members by Chester G. Pierce, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

One of the principal topics scheduled for discussion today is an acute housing shortage created by a steady influx of workers to the Alexandria Naval Torpedo Station. With approximately 450 men employed, many are already forced to live outside Alexandria, and plans for the plant call for a maximum of 2,400 when full-scale production it attained in about 18 months.

The committee is also studying a recommendation that an additional bridge or traffic tunnel be constructed to link the District of Columbia with northern Virginia. According to a preliminary survey, the three existing bridges would not be adequate in the event heavy troop movements were necessary to the defense of the Capital, and an additional span or subway capable of supporting heavy tanks and mechanized equipment is a vital necessity.

Hospital Faces Delay In Blood-Test Plea

The Alexandria Hospital laboratory may not obtain State approval for the performance of premarital serological tests at least until November, according to information given Mayor Richard L. Ruffner by Dr. I. C. Riggin, State Health Commissioner, yesterday.

The State health department will not conduct tests for laboratories applying for approval until November, Dr. Riggin informed the mayor, and there is little chance the hospital will be given an opportunity to qualify until then. His letter was in response to a request by Mayor Ruffner that the hospital be given formal approval as soon as possible.

Despite Dr. Riggin's announcement, however, the hospital will seek a special test to qualify for the examinations before the department's serological survey is conducted. Clarence J. Robinson, president of the institution, said he would go to Richmond this week to determine what steps might be taken to speed up the process in an effort to meet an "emergency" created by the premarital law in the city.

Under present conditions, Alexandria applicants must wait five days until blood samples have been sent to the State health department for analysis and returned to the health office. If a laboratory were available in the city, hospital officials declare, the tests could be completed in less than three hours, and applicants would be able to marry the same day they apply.

Dr. W. Lewis Schafer, city health officer, said he is referring applicants to Winchester, where reports on the blood tests can be made within 24 hours.

Red Cross Shipment Ready in Arlington

Arlington County Chapter American Red Cross yesterday prepared for shipment to Red Cross warehouse in New Jersey cases containing 123 girls' dresses, 23 operating gowns, 39 children's sweaters, 28 adult sweaters and 28 boys' shirts. They will be later shipped to England, Mrs. Virginia Bray, executive secretary, said.

With several units of volunteer workers at work in differen. sections of the county, another large shipment of surgical dressings and bandages will be ready in a few days, Mrs. Bray said.

U. S. Farm Policies Hit at Md. U. Parley

Cooperatives Hear Expert Condemn Artificial Scarcity

Unemployment, reliance on Government action, Government debt and, finally, war are the inevitable results of Government restriction and artificial scarcity, Murray D. Lincoln, secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau, yesterday told the 300 delegates to the first annual Cooperative Institute at the University of Maryland.

"The individual farmer, laborer, or white collar worker does not now have sufficient purchasing power to buy back the products of his own efforts," he asserted. "Underconsumption is still the black plague of the twentieth century and will continue to be until we distribute abundance instead of dividing up scarcity."

Lincoln's talk was the closing feature of the three-day institute. The afternoon program was highlighted by a tour of the dairy and livestock plant at the university and the National Research Center at Beltsville, Md.

Thomas R. Carskadon, of the Twentieth Century Fund, an endowed fact-finding agency, presented results of a survey in which it was demonstrated that "it costs more on the average to distribute goods than to make them."

Of every dollar spent for finished goods by the consumer, according to the survey, 41 cents represented cost of production and 59 cents the cost of distribution. "Manufacturers' distribution costs take 24 cents, transportation takes 23 cents, wholesale takes 18 cents and miscellaneous costs 2 cents," Carskadon said.

Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the university extension service, told the cooperators that "the idea that cooperative buying and selling is an efficient method which can result in benefits to both buyers and sellers has not been sold to the general public."

"Too many people think of cooperatives," he said, "as attempts of farmers to exercise monopoly control of their products and prices."

Police Boys' Club Fund Set at $10,000

$10,000 has been set as the goal for the third annual funds drive of the Prince Georges County Police Boys' Club, it was announced yesterday by officials of the club. The drive will open September 3 and extend to October 3.

The increased fund sought this year is to erect a clubhouse on four lots owned by the Boys' Club adjoining Magruder Park, Hyattsville. The organization has never had a permanent location for its indoor athletic facilities.

All members of county and town police forces will be invited to attend the next meeting of the board of governors of the club to be held Wednesday in the County Service Building in Hyattsville. Final instructions for the opening of the drive will be announced.

Play Day Is Set For Next Thursday

The Prince Georges County WPA playground division will conduct a progressive play day at the District Heights Elementary School next Thursday.

A parade and flag-raising ceremonies will open the program at 10:30 a. m. Winners will be announced at conclusion of the exercises at 3:30 p. m.

Children 10 years of age and older from the following playgrounds will participate: Hyattsville, Brentwood, Decatur Heights, Beltsville, Colmar Manor, Berwyn, Riverdale, Branchville, Seat Pleasant, Glenn Dale, Camp Springs, Silver Hill, Capitol Heights, Bradbury Heights and District Heights.

150 Attend Supper

The supper sponsored by the Auxiliary to Arlington Post, American Legion, last night at Legion Hall was attended by more than 150 persons. The proceeds will be applied to the building fund.

Mayor Opens Pistol Range Built by Takoma Park Police

Mayor Oliver W. Youngblood and members of the town council of Takoma Park, Md., last night officially opened the police pistol range off New Hampshire avenue at Sligo Creek.

Built by the town policemen under the supervision of Sergt. Earl Thomas, who originated the project, the range is now one of the finest in nearby Maryland. Situated in the Prince Georges section of the town, it will probably be used mostly by Montgomery County officers, Sergt. Thomas announced that persons may use the range providing they have permission of the police and are accompanied by a policeman.

Merchants in Takoma Park and Silver Spring have contributed material to make the range, long a dream of the town's force, a reality. Mayor Youngblood gave the roof to cover a reconditioned chicken coop which will house the target racks and supplies.

In their spare time Policeman Charles Seek, George Altman and William Whalen have constructed the range over a period of three weeks. Seeing a story announcing the police were at work on the range in Monday's W[illegible]ington Post, many, Takoma Park men volunteered their services.

Carnival Planned In Sandy Spring

Sandy Spring's annual one-day firemen's carnival, to be highlighted this year by a greased pig contest, will be held Wednesday at the Sherwood High School grounds, it was announced yesterday.

On the program will be baseball, midway games, a fried chicken supper, and a dance in the high school gymnasium, according to Spencer J. H. Brown, president of the Sandy Spring firemen.

Chairmen of the carnival committees are: A. A. Lamar, supper; L. C. Burns, bingo; N. E. Dailey, program; F. A. Thomas, midway and concessions; Lewis Lethbridge, construction; Paul Gore, soft drinks; A. J. Thompson, ice cream; Richard Lethbridge, parking; Spencer Brown, electric; Henry Becraft, finance; Henry T. Clark, jr., dance, and Harry Musgrove, jr., baseball.

Col. Goodloe Plans Quarters In Clarendon

Republican Seeking Seat of Rep. Smith From 8th District

BUREAU OF THE POST
Arlington, Va., Tel. OXford 0800

Lawrence W. Michael, campaign manager for Col. Henry B. Goodloe, Republican candidate in the Eighth Congressional District, announced yesterday that campaign headquarters would be opened Monday in the Spaulding Building at Clarendon. The seat is now held by Howard Smith, who is seeking relection.

Col. Goodloe

Declaring he was prepared for a vigorous campaign, Michael issued the following data about the candidate:

He was born and reared on a farm in Albemarle County, Va., and is a graduate of electrical engineering from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Following eight years as a sales engineer for an electrical goods manufacturer, Goodloe was graduated from Washington and Lee University in law in 1913.

His legal practice was conducted from 1913 to 1917 in Roanoke and Hopewell. He was a United States commissioner in Roanoke. In 1917 he was a captain in the United States Army and held this rank until September, 1919. Since that time he has been an active member of the United States Army Reserve Corps, in which he holds the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Infantry.

As a practicing attorney in Charlottesville, he is now a member of the American Legion, Crozet Lions Club, past president of the Department of Virginia Reserve Officers Association, president of the Albemarle County Historical Society and member of the Emergency Defense Council of Charlottesville.

Weather Postpones Mt. Rainier Parade

Inclement weather forced the postponement until tonight of the parade scheduled for last night by the Mount Rainier American Legion Post. American Legion posts throughout Prince Georges County will march with Odd Fellows, Job's Daughters and Boy and Girl Scout troops.

The part of the program at the Cameo Theater was held as scheduled. A movie, "The Flag Speaks," was shown, followed by a musical program and a short address by Mayor Norman A. Pruitt.

Allan S. Waldo Heads V. F. W. District 2

Allan S. Waldo, Prince Georges County publisher, has been elected commander of the Second District Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, to complete the term of Joseph Waldo, who resigned recently, it was announced.

Waldo is adjutant of the Thomas N. Fenwick Post, No. 749, and said yesterday that he would continue to serve in that position while heading the Second District posts in Hyattsville, Takoma Park and Bethesda.

As commander, he plans to work for more V. F. W. posts in Prince Georges and Montgomery counties. One post is now being considered for Greenbelt, Waldo said.

Requiem Mass For Frank Betz Set for Tomorrow

Funeral rites for Frank L. Betz, 70, Veterans' Administration attorney for 22 years, who died Wednesday at his home, 4222 Thirty-seventh street northwest, will be held there at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow. Requiem mass will be celebrated at St. Ann's Church, 440 Wisconsin avenue northwest. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

One of the first employes of the Veterans' Administration, Mr. Betz was to have retired August 31. His last post was as adjudicator.

A native of Jasper, Ind., he practiced law in his home State before moving to this city.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, the B. P. O. E. and the Holy Name Society of St. Ann's Church.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Rose H. Betz, he leaves a son, Raymond S.; a foster son, Marcus L., and a daughter, Mrs. Violet LaMar.

Land Damage Suit Filed in Rockville

Glen Echo Heights.—Representing in her declaration that the appearance of property owned by her at Glen Echo Heights was "irreparably destroyed" as a result of agents of the defendants cutting down trees on the property and dragging stumps, trees and other heavy objects over the land, Myrta Ethel Cawood, of Glen Echo Heights, has filed suit in the Circuit Court at Rockville, against Cushing Daniel, Clarke Daniel and Raleigh Daniel, trading as Daniel, Daniel & Daniel, claiming damages in the amount of $5,000. It is also charged that other trees have been scarred and mutilated. The plaintiff is represented by Attorneys William A. Daniel, jr., and J. Guy Neel, of Rockville.

Horse Show Set For Montgomery

The eleventh annual horse and pony show of the Montgomery County Horse Show Association will be held September 14 on the farm of T. Alexander Barnsley, near Olney, it has been announced by the secretary, Robert H. Miller, jr.

As heretofore, it will specialize in heavy draft classes, but the program will also include the usual light draft and pony classes and, for the first time, a 4-H class. Maj. Frederick D. L. Comfort, of Fort Myer, Va., will judge the heavy draft classes and Prof. Frederick Leimbach, of the University of Maryland, and David A. Adams, Buckeystown, Md., will be the judges in the other classes.

Buses to Start Rosslyn-Vienna Run Tomorrow

Serve Part of Route Old Dominion Railroad Plans to Abandon

The Washington - Maryland - Virginia Coach Co. tomorrow night will institute bus service between Rosslyn and Vienna, Va., partially covering the route of the Washington & Old Dominion Railroad, which will discontinue operation.

The railway decided to stop passenger service between Rosslyn and Purcellville because of "tremendous operating losses incurred," officials announced.

Citizen groups in Arlington and Fairfax counties had protested that discontinuing the rail line would leave without transportation residents of the area who do not own cars. Several mass meetings were held in an effort to forestall the expected move.

The bus service, to be operated by the Washington-Virginia-Maryland Coach Co., will cover approximately a third of the territory now served by the railroad.

Organization of Fairfax County's committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies was completed at a meeting last night with the election of Charles Pickett, Fairfax attorney, as chairman.

Other officers elected were Edward M. Jones, of Falls Church, secretary, and R. D. Wharton, of Centerville, treasurer.

It is planned to enlarge the committee by naming members from every community in the county, Chairman Pickett said.

The group adopted resolutions urging Congress to extend all possible aid to England, and to support the conscription bill now before Congress.

Charles Harrison Mann, chairman of the Arlington County committee, assisted in the organization.

Recommendations of the civic and business league of Herndon looking to improved parking conditions in the business section have met with approval of the town council.

S. F. Hutchison, representing the league, has suggested angle parking as a solution to the problem.

The town sergeant has been instructed by the council to warn owners of vacant lots covered with weeds and undergrowth that the town ordinance gives the council power to clear the lots and bill the owner. If conditions are not improved the council will act.

Funeral Services For John F. Dull Set for Today

American Legion funeral services for John Frederick Dull, 52, a past commander of American Legion Post No. 1, will be held at 8:30 p. m. today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest. Military burial will be at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Dull died Wednesday in Garfield Hospital after a brief illness. The Rev. Howard E. Snyder, post chaplain, will officate at services this evening and tomorrow.

The deceased was born in Baltimore, Md., and served overseas with the Seventy-sixth Infantry Division. An active worker in Legion circles, he was formerly a contractor. He resided at 3227 Hiatt place northwest. Surviving is a sister, Mrs. Ida M. Cairns, of Baltimore.

Heart Ill Fatal To Lena Dyson

Laytonsville.—A heart ailment which she had long suffered caused the death in her home at Laytonsville, Wednesday night, of Mrs. Lena M. Dyson, 68, wife of Dr. Vernon H. Dyson.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Frances Webb, Washington, and two brothers, Dr. Robert C. Warfield, Rockville, and Elisha Warfield, New York City. She was a daughter of the late Israel G. Warfield.

The funeral will take place at 2 p. m. Saturday from her late home. Burial will be in Monocacy Cemetery, Beallsville, Md. The Rev. Thomas F. Opie, rector of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, Laytonsville, will conduct services.

Driver Cheats Death As Auto Overturns

Stanley A. Dowiat, of Cicero, Ill., narrowly escaped serious injury when his car overturned yesterday on the Lee-Jackson highway about 2 miles west of Fairfax.

According to the police, the accident was the result of slippery pavement. The car was badly damaged.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Weekend Brings Another Visitor From Hollywood

Loraine Day Arriving Saturday for Two Days; 'Tournament Day' Again at Marshall Hall; This, That and the Other About the Theater

BRIAN DONLEVY having recently slipped into and out of the Capital in the interests of his diverting serio-comic film, "The Great McGinty," and the "Virginia" company similarly having come and gone in the dead of night, another screen celebrity now is about to pay Washington a week-end visit.

BELL

She is Laraine Day, whose most notable recent work before the cameras was in the tragic role of Maeve in Edward Small's picturization of Howard Spring's novel of "My Son, My Son." As a reward for that excellent performance, Miss Day next will be seen as a full-fledged feminine star in Walter Wanger's production of "Foreign Correspondent"—which does not even retain the title of Vincent Sheean's "Personal History," upon which, purportedly, it is based. But it will be time enough to get around to that when the film finally reaches here. The important thing at the moment is Laraine Day.

This, so one is given to believe, is Miss Day's first visit to the East. A native of Salt Lake City, Utah, and a descendant of a famous Mormon leader, the eager transcontinentalist will arrive in the Capital late Saturday night and remain through Monday morning—just about long enough to make her want to pay the National Capital a real visit and really see what makes it tick.

Although only now coming to deserved prominence, Miss Day has been a resident of southern California for some eight years or so, having arrived there in her early 'teens. Her first dramatic training was secured as a member of the Long Beach Players Guild. In 1936, one of those ubiquitous agents "discovered" her in a Guild play and she was forthwith signed for a minor part in "Scandal Sheet." Nothing much happened after that, so she returned to the Guild for further dramatic experience. Then, of a sudden, she came to attention with George O'Brien in a succession of his more successful screen chores. Another period of inactivity about the studios. Then Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer rubbed its eyes and Miss Day found herself with Wallace Beery in "Sergeant Madden." She also has been among the "Tarzan" principals, off and on, and more or less prevalent in the "Dr. Kildare" pictures.

And that would seem to be about all you need to know beyond the repeated fact that she will bob into town sometime late Saturday and begin her two-day scramble with the autograph hunters.

Chivalry undergoes a sure but brief rehabilitation in these parts at least once a year. That is when "Tournament Day" is revived annually at Marshall Hall Park. This year that will be on Wednesday, August 21, when Maryland's boldest knights will joust for the privilege of crowning their chosen lady. This event will mark the fifty-sixth year in which the intrepid knights from Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia will have participated in this revival of an ancient tourney. It will be a gala event, momentarily resuscitating the lost art of tilting. Knights will assemble at Marshall Hall Park at noon and the tilting will begin at 12:30 p. m., under the supervision of A. D. Langley, who has presided at the tournaments for many years. Transportation to and from, of course, will be via the Wilson Line's streamliner, the S. S. Mount Vernon.

Through the courtesy of the Warner Brothers local organization, an American Red Cross War Relief Benefit will be held in the Silver Theater, Silver Spring, Md., on Saturday night, August 24, at 11:30 p. m. The entire proceeds will go to the Red Cross. All seats will be reserved and will be on sale at the theater from Saturday night, August 17, through Friday, August 23. In addition to a complete screen entertainment, the program will include Eileen Ritter, Connie Randall, singer; Gene Archer, N. B. C. barytone; Johnny Burke, from the Earle stage show, and Jean Darling from Loew's Capitol—all under the direction of Barnee, conductor of Maxim Lowe's Shoreham Orchestra, who will act as master of ceremonies.

Emphasizing again the superlative quality of the work that is being done at Charles Coburn's Mohawk Drama Festival, on the campus of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., announcement is made that starting Tuesday, August 20, Walter Hampden will be presented in the title role of Sir Edward Bulwer-Lytton's "Richelieu." The engagement will run a full week and mark Mr. Hampden's return to one of his most famous and most successful characterizations.

Meteorological Note

Never mind the little back-lash. Just be grateful we didn't get the full fury of that tornado that has been pushing the South around these past few days!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Aug. 15.

We hear daily the cry from prominent producers who should know better, yelling for new faces. Yet the old faces, which aren't too old and are known from coast to coast, worshiped by the kids—people who do their own dangerous stunts instead of turning the job over to somebody else who might be killed—never get a chance. Such a one is Richard Arlen. I happened to go East on same train with him a couple of years back. The train was filled with super-sophisticates of the screen who had been getting million-dollar salaries, and ditto publicity build-ups.

HOPPER

Dick kept to himself, until we landed in Chicago. Then the press made one swoop at him, never looked at the other gang, and he got headlines. In Hollywood, if he gets one line written about him, it's a miracle. You see, he's of no importance. He just does six pictures a year at Universal, makes around $90,000, has four months vacation and no worry.

The present picture is "The Devil's Pipeline," with Andy Devine, which has a heck of a good story. Dick's pictures are third in popularity to the Hardy and Kildare series. Just give him a good part and watch his smoke—he has a following.

If you want fun, you'll get it in "He Sstayed for Breakfast," which is another ribtickler that kids everything except America. It makes fool out of Communists, Fascists, and big businessmen. Af-er Communist Melvyn Douglas becomes "bourgeois" enough to fall in love with Loretta Young, they decide that the "land of the free and the home of the brave" is the only decent place on earth to live—that lobster-fishing in Maine is better than singing the "Internationale" on the streets of Paris. It's pro-American propaganda for a change. Una O'Connor, as Loretta's maid-of-all-work nearly steals the darned thing.

With so many theatrical families in town, here's one which carries on together. Harry Carey gave up a picture job to do "Ah Wilderness" in Skowhegan, Me., so his son Steven could make his debut. Now daughter Ellen has been cast as his daughter in the same play. While here, swell actor Dick Bennet pays to watch daughter Connie across the footlights.

Don't know why Kenneth Hopkins, after designing a baby blue bonnet for Beulah, Elsie's offspring, went right home and did a beauty for me. Now, I'm asking him—was he thinking of "Ooomph"—or just bovine?

The Abbotts are back—those well-chaperoned dancers who were in Jack Benny's last picture. Came all the way from Chicago to get a good look at Fred Allen in "Love Thy Neighbor." Yes, they've seen Benny.

That Purest Raye, Not So Serene!

MARTHA RAYE

in her completely ungraceful demonstration of how an ancient Grecian dance should not be done, in "The Boys From Syracuse." This whimsical bit of nonsense, aimed at olden and modern times, is being held over for a week on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater, with Allan Jones, Joe Penner, Rosemary Lane and Charles Butterworth prominent in the cast

Those 'Boys From Syracuse' Extend Their Visit at Keith's

By Richard L. Coe

Slap-stick in Ephesus, hi-jinks in ancient Greece, hi-de-ho in togas and hot-licks on a Grecian urn is what you get in "The Boys From Syracuse" and if you've a taste for such, you'll like what you get. This illegitimate offspring of Wm. Shakespeare's "A Comedy of Errors" began its second week at RKO-Keith's yesterday.

As you've very likely heard, "The Boys From Syracuse" is filmland's version of that Rogers and Hart musical comedy which was the pride and joy of Bagdad-on-the-Subway a year or so ago. It was described as sophisticated and a bit shocking then, but now it has Martha Raye and Joe Penner as its chief funsters, comics whose humor is anything but sophisticated. Which lack of hoity-toit is a refreshing quality in this day of brittle comedy, making "The Boys From Syracuse" like a couple of buckets of cold water on a hot day.

Strictly speaking this treatment of the glory that was Greece is not so iconoclastic as it might seem. For his fourth-hand version of the comedy, bearded Bill S. envisioned a Greece in contemporary Elizabethan style, tossing in the customs of his day just as the current farce does. All you need to know of the story is that Antipholus of Ephesus and Antipholus of Syracuse were twin brothers, didn't know it, had slaves who also were twins, both named Dromio, who didn't know it either and that the understandable happened when both sets of twins were in the same city at the same time.

Wife trouble, front and back stairs, naturally developed in Greece and in good Queen Bess' glorious days just as Hollywood should wish. Marital farce rules the coop, with two Allan Joneses and two Joe Penners.

The gag elements are many: a swing fanfare each time Duke Charlie Butterworth flicks an eyelash; taxi and trolley service in the neatest chariots a stage manager could conceive; floor so glossy that skates are no end of a help; a sideways straight-arm for a Fascist salute and beskirted barkers who talk Brooklynese.

Butterworth, too, has his own up-to-the-ultimate-treasury-release burlesque on the needs of taxation, coming to grips with a firm of tailors, Eric Blore and Alan Mowbray, caught in the mesh of not being able to pay their taxes because government officials haven't the money to pay for them. Get it?

For song there's "Sing for Your Supper" and "This Can't Be Love" which remain as hummable as they were when you first heard them over the air lanes. Martha Raye has an early chorus ditties "The Greeks Have No Word for It" and Jones also sings "Who Are You" to his unsuspecting sister-in-law, Rosemary Lane. The whole shebang closes with a chariot race in 100 per cent Gold Coast horse-carts.

Also continuing into the new week is "Spoils of Conquest," a "March of Time" release on the Dutch East Indies, those fabulous possessions of a conquered nation that belie our isolation by supplying the United States with an important proportion of rubber and tin. As usual, "Time" takes the large view of what may become an important issue for us.

A strangely tepid "Information Please" is the second short subject, a release that lacks the sparkle that has become a hall-mark of these inquisitions. Clarence Buddington Kelland joins regulars Oscar Levant, F. P. A. and John Kieran for this one.

The New Yorker

(JACK BENNY, radio and screen comedian, is pinch-hitting today for Leonard Lyons, who is on vacation.)

VISITORS who go through a motion picture studio during the daytime really miss seeing what a lot really looks like. All they see is a lot of actors. What they miss are the workers who are busy about 7 o'clock in the morning.

I stride in about 7 a. m. at Paramount, brisk and eager for the day's fray with Fred Allen. On all sides are evidences of tremendous activity. Janitors are just finishing up their stints; gardeners are watering the little plants; a crew of make-up artists is ready to try to do something with the Allen pan; the night shift is just getting off.

ONE OF THESE early birds is George, the janitor. He has a merry quip for each arrival. He polishes a spot with his broom, while he talks. And helpful!

"If you've got any junk in your dressing room," says George, "just toss it out in the street between 7 and 8. I'll take care of it."

(I must have Rochester remind me to throw out Allen.)

"LOVE THY NEIGHBOR" is my new picture. It's about a couple of guys named Jack Benny and Fred Allen who live 3,000 miles apart and hate each other. That's why it is called "Love Thy Neighbor." Mary Martin and I play the love interest, with Allen trying to act like a heavy. When I let Paramount put Allen in the picture I made them promise we wouldn't have to do any scenes together.

SO FAR Allen has worked every day, and I have hardly worked at all. I don't know whether the studio thinks I need a vacation or whether I've been written clear out of the picture. But I know they'll have to put me in one scene. I've got to be there in the final clinch with Mary, even if they only shoot the back of my head. And I'll guarantee the back of my head will show more dramatic talent in that one scene than Allen will in the whole picture.

BUT I'M REALLY not worried. Mark Sandrich is a nice guy. I don't know of a finer producer-director. At least I won't know of any until I find out what he's done to my part in this picture. Then we'll see.

BUT THERE'S NOTHING to worry about. Besides Allen and Miss Martin we have Rochester, Verree Teasdale and the Merry Macs in the picture. So I can see where there won't be much room for me. Mary has three songs and a couple of dances, and the Merry Macs sing, and Rochester does a routine with Theresa Harris. So if they don't want to use me—well, they just don't want to use me, and that's all there is to it.

IT'S HAPPENED time and time again. A gentleman, always anxious to please, willing to help others, suddenly finds himself shunted right out of the picture by the very people he helped.

I can be nice about it. After all, a man can't have everything. I've still got Carmichael. And my violin. I'll get along. They don't have to worry about me. They don't have to feel sorry. Nobody will ever be able to point a finger at me and say, "Benny couldn't take it."

MAYBE I'll take myself a nice vacation. I know I just had one in Honolulu. But as long as they don't want me around here, I'm not going to be camping on their doorsteps.

Maybe I'll go back to Honolulu, and take Carmichael with me. He'd love it over there. I can just see him riding one of those surf boards and wearing a little grass skirt. Say! That might be an idea for an act—a polar bear in a grass skirt! That would wow 'em!

BUT THERE'S NO vaudeville. Allen killed it, and now he's out here killing the motion picture business. Paramount's going to be mighty sorry it ever signed him to appear in a picture with me. Or without me.

MAYBE I'll go back to Little Old New York. Or to Waukeegan. They still like me back there. Why, they've even made a shrine out of the house where I was born. All my pictures always do big business in Waukeegan. I'd like to bet Allen's picture won't even draw a dime. Maybe they won't even play it.

OR I MIGHT go over to see the Grand Canyon. Do you know that birds can't fly across the Canyon? A fellow can pick up a lot of interesting scientific facts like that by traveling around. And then maybe—pardon me, folks, somebody's at the door.

S'long, gang! They want me on the set! I'm going to kiss Mary Martin!

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 15 (INS).—Eddie Albert, Warner Brothers actor and the lad who got himself lost for days in Mexico, for the past six months has been doing intensive research work on South America. Today his hard work began to bear fruit.

PARSONS

He lunched with Harry Warner, who was so intrigued with Eddie's idea for South American propaganda that he engaged him to write ten documentary shorts, praising the heroes of the Latin-American countries and creating better feeling between the Americas. H. M. plans to take the completed series to Cordell Hull in Washington and ask for the help of the Government in distributing them.

As I understand it, these shorts will be sent to the South American countries free of cost. The first of them is the life of Bolivar, the great savior; another will tell the story of San Martin de Jose, liberator. One of the shorts will deal with the Ibero-American Institute in Berlin, an organization which sends Germans to the South American countries to disseminate Hitler propaganda.

The very happiest lad in town today was Addison Randall, known to fans all over the country as Jack Randall, hard-riding, gun-toting screen cowboy, who was formerly Monogram's star player, left there some months ago with the idea of building up Addison and forgetting Jack. Well, the chance came when he was signed to play the romantic lead in the Marx Brothers next comedy, "Go West," with an option for additional pictures. I am very happy for Addison because he was so depressed after Louise Stanley walked out of his life, and for so many days there was no role offered him that he cared to accept.

Robert Preston can't seem to get his romances straightened out since he and Dorothy Lamour called it quits. He's been attentive to Patty McCarthy, Dottie's secretary, and also to his old flame, Kay Feltus. But be that as it may, his career is rolling along nicely. Bob has been signed to play the lead opposite Claire Trevor in "Silver Queen," the picture Century Productions will release through Paramount. Since Bob is under contract to Para it was a mere twist of the wrist to get him signed to the new deal. Allan Dwan will direct "Silver Queen" and is also working on the script.

John Shelton didn't have time to step in Las Vegas, Nev., for his divorce because M-G-M wired him to return for retakes on "Dr. Kildare Goes Home." But an even more important reason to young Shelton is that he will know today whether or not he gets the role of the boy in "Kitty Foyle," with Ginger Rogers. If he does, there's quite a human interest yarn in it, because it was Ginger, who really discovered John and got him a six months' contract at RKO before he ever went to Metro. The studio turned down the loan of Shelton to Herbert Wilcox for "No, No, Nanette" in hopes that he would get the "Kitty Foyle" part, instead.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Fred MacMurray, who saw his little adopted daughter, Susan, for the first time today, is just as enthusiastic over her charms as Mrs. Fred; Barbara Hutton has donated a quarter of a million dollars to the British and American Red Cross within the last 30 days; Charlie Chaplin showed up at the preview of "Lucky Partners" all by his lonesome; Nils Asther, just as handsome as ever, dining at the Brown Derby; Rosemary Lane and Buddy Westmore have kissed and made up and he is smiling once more.

Jean Arthur made one of her few public appearances at Ciro's and she looked so well. She and Frank Ross leave in a few days in their station wagon for Puget Sound. From there they take a boat to Alaska; RKO Casting Director Ben Piazza's daughter, Rita, has gone to New York for a try on the stage. She's so independent she refused her father's aid in getting a movie job; Mrs. Howard Morton is arriving in Hollywood to be the house guest of Jane Darwell. Her late husband, for whom I worked on the New York American, was on the Hearst papers for 35 years and a great editor.

George Bancroft is laid up with flu and "Little Men" is being held up for him; Reggie Gardiner, the most amusing man in town, and Hilda Kruger, blonde New York stage actress, a Ciro twosome; Rosalind Russell leaves shortly to attend the marriage of her sister, Mary Jane, to S. Kenneth Bierne, in Waterbury, Conn., on September 7; Laraine Day sends word she is still in the East with Walter Wanger, making appearances with "Foreign Correspondent." She denies that she has any immediate matrimonial plans.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

The Three Stooges Explain How They Make Mayhem Pay!

Hollywood, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Chaplin generally is considered tops in the field of pantomime. Allen leads the parade of drawling wits, but when it comes to the mauling, roughneck type of comedy, boxoffice returns indicate that those refugees from an insane asylum, the three stooges, are in a class by themselves.

Being of sound limb and desiring to remain so, it was with some hesitation that we approached these three exponents of mayhem for a close-range study of brute comedy, the kind that runs almost entirely to physical violence.

But, strangely enough, aside from a few warming-up punches at each other, the stooges were relaxing and evidenced no desire to take another passenger on their merry-go-round of maul.

"What the devil," said Moe. "We should give an outsider a going over for free. It's against union rules."

"Yah," agreed Curly, puffing a big cigar. "He might steal our routine."

"A good punch in the snoot might put him away for keeps," observed Larry.

An armistice having been agreed upon, we observed Moe Howard is the stooge with a full head of hair and the dignified manner of a retired prize-fighter; Curly Howard is the bald stooge who rarely has very much to say, while Larry Fine is the blond with the receding hairline.

Seven Years of Violence

"And what do you boys do?" we asked, throwing out a feeler.

"Huh," said Moe, "we've been making two-reel Columbia comedies for seven years and from the looks of things we're going to be making them for a good many years more. Besides making the pictures, we go on the road for about 15 weeks every year.

"What makes people laugh at us? I don't know, unless it is that we offer people the chance of seeing us do what they themselves would like to do—slap somebody around. You've seen some dignified guy that you'd like to upset by pulling his nose or tripping him, haven't you? Well, when I poke Curly in the eye, and Curly is looking dignified like a banker, you get a great laugh out of it.

"You know Curly isn't hurt but he puts on such a pained expression, it's funny. Once in a while we get a little too rough, like the time I forgot to open my fist when I socked Curly. He was out on his feet and about ready to keel over when Larry and I grabbed him and we pretended to go into huddle.

"The trouble with the roughhouse comedians of valudeville used to be that they'd get a good routine and keep working it year after year without a chance. We don't do that. We have eight different acts we use and sometimes, on the road, we even change acts from one performance to the next because the musicians don't laugh."

On Her Way to a Capital Visit

rapidly rising young screen star, who will be a Washington visitor over the week-end. Miss Day will be remembered for splendid work in "My Son, My Son" and will next be seen in the feminine starring role in Walter Wanger's production of "Foreign Correspondent," based on Vincent Sheean's book, "Personal History"

They're Topping the Timber Again on Columbia Screen

They will be running America's most famous cross-country, steeplechase race for another week on F street.

Beginning this morning, at Loew's Columbia Theater, the chief screen attraction will be the Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor production of "Maryland," dedicated in the large view, to the glories of the Fre State and, more particularly, to the opulent manor life of its "horsey set." While the running of the Maryland Hunt Club Steeplechase, with all of its hoary traditions preserved, provides the major thrill of the picture, there is an abundance of other diverting matter contained in it.

The story is one that embodies, if it does not always blend, romance, thrills, humor and an uncommon amount of clever characterization. The whole thing centers in the ownership of a thoroughbred hunter and the climactic running of the big race, the winning of which is a matter of keen suspense from the start right down to the wire. "Maryland," quite naturally, does for our neighboring State what "Kentuck" did for the Blue Grass Country—except that it is perhaps a little better done this time.

The cast is one to conjure with, as the man said. With Walter Brennan and Fay Bainter providing the chief sources of conflict, excellent performances also are turned in by Charlie Ruggles, Brenda Joyce, Hattie McDaniel, Sidney Blackmer, John Payne, Marjorie Weaver and a long list of others. The announcing of the big sporting event is done by that professional in the field, Ed. Thorgersen, familiar in the newsreels and on the radio.

Interspersed wih the dramatic action is a large amount of Negro hymn-singing that lends the picture an added fillip—and a great measure of its comedy.

New Film Star Is Unspoiled By Hollywood

Elsie, Famous Bovine, Is Wrapped Up in Her Daughter, Beulah

By Alexander Kahn.

Hollywood, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Found at last in Hollywood, the one female in all the world whose head cannot be turned by the glamour of the film capital—a clean-living, virtuous matron who has participated in the gayety of movie night life and still remains a simple country girl.

This saint among sinners, this paragon of purity, is Elsie, the World's Fair cow, who after a month of Hollywood life is still the same Elsie, the unaffected favorite of the kiddies.

Elsie may be the oomph girl of the pastures but in Hollywood she has remained faithful to her Elmer, spurned the attentions of Ferdinand and been a model of virtue, it is our happy job to report today after personally consulting with Elsie and her fellow actors.

Between munches of hay, Elsie told us of her first month in Hollywood. Being a foreigner—to Hollygood—Elsie's story was interpreted by Gary McBride, graduate veterinarian and her constant companion.

Proud of Daughter

McBride reports that Elsie is convinded, after ten days, that her little daughter Beulah, who was born on a studio lot, is the brightest, smartest and cutest youngster in the bovine world.

Beulah arrived a week ago Saturday with Dr. McBride in attendance.

"Elsie was a perfect patient," he reported, "the best I've ever had. And she was so proud of Beulah that negihbors for blocks around the studio heard her announcement of the event."

Today we saw Beulah while Elsie hovered in the background, the proud and happy mother. Beulah, still a little wobbly on her underpining, is just the dignified calf you would expect to find as the offspring of Elsie. She bowed gravely when introduced and licked our fingers politely.

Beulah's birth on the RKO-Radio lot is still the talk of the studio, and Elsie's sponsors in her film debut, Gene Towne and Graham Baker, are so proud of both Elsie and Beulah that they have written a new sequence for Elsie's picture, "Little Men," and involving the birth of Beulah. Thus she will become the youngest bovine actress on record and will receive screen credit for playing a supporting role in the picturization of the Louisa M. Alcott story.

"But what about the bright lights and gayety?" we asked McBride. "Has Elsie always been the perfect lady while joining the whirl of Hollywood night life?"

"Always," he said. "Elsie never forgets she belongs to royalty in the bovine world. She never gets giddy and sh ealways has the dignity that commands respect.

"Her activities have been varied and colorful and I think Elsie will treasure the memory of her trip to Hollywood. As you recall, she was the guest of honor in a huge parade when she arrived from New York That was followed by a pasture luncheon at an exclusive hotel and then a party at the leading night club.

"Last week she was one of the guests of honor at the charity baseball game, along with the Gables, Lombards and other top stars of the business. Elsie has been on the radio twice and I'm proud to disclose that, in addition to her other accomplishments, she had a perfect radio voice."

It turns out also that Elsie and Gracie Fields weer guests at the Masquers' Club, exclusive organization of actors, at whose clubhouse women rarely are admitted.

Smiles of Gratitude

Blonde Polish War Refugee Translates Work to Thanks

Blonde, 24-year-old Isabelle Potocki smiles as she start work as a translator in the Inquiry and Information Service at National Red Cross headquarters because she is paying a debt of gratitude.

When the Nazis invaded her native Poland, Miss Potocki worked her way to Genoa, Italy, from Warsaw. The Baltimore Chapter of the American Red Cross aided in securing her passage to this country where her father, former chaplain in the Polish army, had once been pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Baltimore.

ISABELLE POTOCKI IN 1918 RED CROSS AMBULANCE

The Red Cross later procured transportation to the United States for her sister, Mira, and her stepmother. Isabelle and Mira had lived in Warsaw since 1934, when they left this country. They now live in Baltimore.

The chief desire of Miss Potocki now is to get her father to this country from a Russian concentration camp in Poland.

At present she is commuting daily to her job in Washington. She feels, she says, that in working with the department of the Red Cross which has handled more than 50,000 inquiries from friends and relatives of war victims, she is, in part, aiding the organization that brought her peace and security.

Reese Injured, Lost for Season; Dodgers Bow

Hudson Wins 12th as Nats and A's Divide

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Boston, Aug. 15.—Young Ted Williams has kicked up an awful fuss here in staid old Boston. He is mad at the town, and vice versa, in spades, the erstwhile darling of Red Sox fans, now rating lower than sea level with the same folks who, a year ago, were giddily acclaiming him.

POVICH

The great schism was precipitated this week by Williams, himself. With whatever he uses for brains, he came right out and said that he didn't like Boston people or Boston baseball writers. "And you can print the whole rotten mess," he told our friend Austen Lake, of the American.

The "whole rotten mess" seems to be that the bleacher fans have taken to booing the rookie outfielder, that the Boston baseball writers no longer think up complimentary nicknames for him and that the Red Sox management won't trade him to another club.

Up to the point of Williams' blast at Boston fans and things generally it was the custom around the league to put the gangling rookie star down as merely another of baseball's eccentrics, or screwballs, but now Williams qualifies as just a stupid sort of guy. As does any ball player who puts the rap on the customers who pay the freight.

The Metamorphosis of Williams' standing in Boston is no less than remarkable considering the speed and the completeness with which it occurred. No later than this spring Boston fans were lavishing their praises on him, and Boston baseball writers all but defied the fellow who was last year's outstanding rookie.

Williams was playing good ball for the Red Sox earlier in the season, but no better than several other Red Sox and not as good as Lou Finney or Roger Cramer, his colleagues in the outfield. There were cheers for Cramer and Finney, too, and Williams began to understand that he was not top dog in the Boston line-up. It began to affect his play. He loafed on balls to the outfield and he didn't run out infield hits.

That fact didn't escape the notice of either Boston baseball writers or the customers and there was a sudden cooling toward Williams. Jimmy Foxx, however, was an innocent party to the start of a burning bitterness between Williams and the fans and writers. When Williams failed to extend his hand to Foxx after the later hit one of his homers, it was too much. No Boston player could get away with that kind of treatment to Foxx.

Williams' complaint against Boston baseball writers is no less than surprising. Because Boston writers are more tolerant toward ball players than the press box occupants of any town in the league. They invent pet names for their good ball players, they are prone to overlook any lapse and they are quick to hop on the bandwagon of any good ball player who comes to their town.

With Williams they had been specially tolerant. The bulk of Boston's writers are Irish to the core and live for the day when they can uncover a stand-out Irish player for Boston. But in the case of Williams they buried their preferences and went whole-hog for the fellow they loved to call "Thumping Theodore" or "Terrific Ted" or "Williams the Great." A month ago Williams decided that he was being persecuted by the Boston writers. On the bench, in the hotels, on the trains, he made it plain he didn't want to talk to 'em. That was all right with the writers. "Thumping Ted" simply became "Williams" in their dispatches and when he loafed on an outfield ball or failed to run out an infield grounder, they made haste to say so.

Williams wants to be traded. He said so under the heading of "that's one of the things you can print." He admitted that he has asked Joe Cronin and Tom Yawkey to trade him several times this year. He hasn't singled out any club for himself, but he'd like to be sent to New York or Detroit.

He hasn't a chance, of course, of being traded. He'll play his best for the Red Sox or he won't play for any club. Tom Yawkey is that kind of an owner. The fact is that Williams no longer is the prime essential in the Red Sox that he appeared to be last year. Young Dom DiMaggio is a better outfielder. And Yawkey is not in need of cash to the etent that he would trade Williams to any club Williams might help with his batting. The Red Sox have pennant ideas of their own.

They're paying him $12,500 for this year's work, but among the things he says he'll demand is more money next year. Echo answers "Wanna bet?" It is difficult to conceive that Yawkey will raise the pay of a ball player who has declared against home-town fans, particularly a ball player who has not given 100 per cent to the club.

Unless there is a drastic reform by young Williams he has succeeded in blighting what appeared to be a brilliant big league future. His every lapse henceforth will be magnified in the eyes of the Boston fans he said he didn't like. He has given 'em the green light to boo. That's always a mistake.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 15.—Sportin' around:

As great as he is, Bobby Feller will find it next to impossible to win the 30 games which most fans (and rivals) have conceded him. The Indians have only 42 or 43 more games to play, which gives Robert ten starts. He needs ten wins to reach 30, but that's asking too much, even of Robert. His main chance lies in getting relief assignments, between regular chores, and it's a cinch that Oscar Vitt won't stick him in there when Cleveland is losing. His relief pitching, if any, will be in the nature of protecting slim leads—for which he will get no credit, if successful."

CONSIDINE

No young heavyweight is being handled any more ably than young Charley Kentchuck, of Binghamton, N. Y. Piloted by the astute Jersey Jones, Kentchuck is headed for a June (1942) fight with Joe Louis. At least that's the schedule, as outlined by Jones last year and adhered to since. Kentchuck is a better all-around fighter today than Pat Comiskey, his more famous contemporary among the better hopefuls. He doesn't have Pat's paralyzing punch, but he's a better boxer and body puncher, and seems to be smarter.

Jones admits that it is none of his business, but he thinks Comiskey will be criminally hurried if he is thrust into a fight with either of the Baers. "His two bouts with Steve Dudas in the Garden proved that he isn't ready to go against experienced campaigners," Jersey says. "As for Kentchuck, I don't intend showing him on the alleged big time until I'm positive the kid is properly seasoned. He is learning his trade the way it should be learned—against the right sort of opposition. I've seen too many brilliant prospects ruined by avaricious or over-enthusiastic handlers. When Kentchuck turned pro in July of 1939 we gave ourselves three years to get ready for Louis—one year for practical experience, the next for a more advanced course and the third for the big drive for the championship."

Jock Sutherland doesn't think the big league pro football teams block as well as the better colleges, and he means to amend that failing so far as his Dodgers are concerned . . . Bimelech, back at Saratoga from Chicago after a fruitless round-trip to the American Derby (he was scratched when the track muddied) will tackle Your Chance and other toughies in the Travers tomorrow on Saturday.

Jimmy Foxx told us the other day that he would have been out of the league by now if he had remained behind the plate. The everlasting full-knee bends, in order to give the signal to the pitcher and get ready for his pitch, take at least five years off the playing lives of players. "Catching affects your hitting, too," Foxx said. "When you come up to the plate you're all hot and bothered and tired." Foxx didn't volunteer to do the Red Sox catching. Joe Cronin suggested it, after making certain that it wouldn't aggravate Foxx's leg ailment. And Foxx, who broke in as a catcher, readily agreed. But he's glad it is only temporary. Incidentally, Foxx hasn't been bothered by sinus trouble since he had his appendix removed.

Dodgers Attempt To Sign Kinnick

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 15 (AP).—John (Shipwreck) Kelly, vice president of the Brooklyn football Dodgers, left today for Chicago in an effort to sign up Nile Kinnick, last year's No. 1 college football player from Iowa.

Kinnick, working out with the All-Stars for the game with the Green Bay Packers, announced he would not play pro ball soon after the Dodgers selected him in the "draft" last winter.

Last-Ditch Rally Fails In Nightcap

Washington Takes Free-Hitting Game, 9-4, Then Drops Tough 6-5 Decision

Special Dispatch to The Post

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 15.—The Senators were inches from a double victory but had to be content with an even split in the doubleheader against the Athletics here today.

While some 14,000 sopranos yelled themselves into hoarseness Sid Hudson throttled the Macks, 9-4, in the opener while the Elephants barely managed to score a 6-5 nightcap verdict, giving both sides nothing to rave about in the four-game series.

Hudson was belted hard yet seemed to have the color of a master when the A's were on the cushions and chalked up his twelfth win with ease, despite the 14 solid licks.

Fortunately while Hudson was waiving the magic wand the Nats were slapping George Caster slap-happy for 15 smacks and piled up enough runs in the early rounds to coast along.

Macks Take Lead

It was different in the finale, Sam Chapman's third-round double gave the Elephants a two-run advantage, which Bill Beckman defended stoutly until the sixth, when the Nats flared fast to put across the equalizer. It looked like a win for young Walt Masterson in front of the home folks when George Case beat out a bunt, advanced on an out in the eighth, stole third, his twenty-seventh, and counted on Gee Walker's fly, but an explosion ensued in the home half.

Dick Siebert singled and scored on Frankie Hayes' double, tying the count. Then after a bunt, Pinch-hitter Dee Miles was passed, and Emergency Swinger Chubby Dean, slow afoot, hit a perfect double-play grounder to Charley Gelbert, who promptly wheeled to throw to second, only the ball had gone through his legs. Before Joe Krakauskas could retire the side, four runs had been counted.

Ed Heusser retired the first two men in the ninth and the bat boy was packing the bag when Pofahl, Early and West singled in succession. Then Fred Chapman fumbled Case's grounder so the tying run was on third. Southpaw Porter Vaughan, of Richmond, relieved Heusser and walked Lewis. Walker hit a grounder, which a few inches either way might have been the blow, but instead Gantenbein took it, stepped on third and it was all over.

Error Proved Downfall

Thus Gelbert's error was the finish of the Nats, otherwise there is little doubt they would have twice conquered the listless Mackmen.

Case almost defeated the A's single-handed in the opener with three base hits and four runs scored personally. Washington put across one in the first, three more in the third on West's double, two in the fourth and for good measure a trio in the sixth.

Hudson had a shutout going for him and the Macks made their first run off this lad in 16 innings when Gantenbein tripled home a seventh-round marker. The other three came in the ninth.

Cubs' Passeau Blanks Reds With 5 Hits, 1-0

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 15.—The stumbling Cincinnati Reds fell before the puzzling slants of Claude Passeau today, losing a 1-to-0 decision to the Chicago Cubs in the series opener before 6,944 spectators.

Passeau allowed only five hits in winning his thirteenth game of the season, no two coming in the same inning. Paul Derringer likewise yielded only five hits, but the Cubs paired two of them in the fourth inning for the game's only run. It was Derringer's third straight loss as he tried for his seventeenth victory and it was the league leaders' ninth defeat in their last 14 games.

Herman Singles

The Cubs produced their only run when Bill Herman opened with a single, went to second on Gleeson's sacrifice, to third on an infield out and scored on Hank Leiber's single to center. The Cubs also threatened in the first inning when Herman tripled with one out. But Gleeson bounced out and Nicholson whiffed.

The Reds made their most serious scoring threat in the first inning after Bill Werber had flied to Gleeson. Mike McCormick singled through the pitcher's box and Lonnie Frey walked. Frank McCormick then drove a low liner to left. Gleeson made a spectacular diving catch, tossed the ball in for an easy double play at second base.

The Reds then went hitless until the fourth when Mike McCormick singled and was forced at second by Frey. Then another double play

Des Moines Offers Fight To Promoter Jacobs

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 15 (AP).—Promoter Pinkie George today telegraphed Mike Jacobs, New York promoter, an "inducement" to hold a heavyweight title bout here next month between Champion Joe Louis and Lee Savold, Des Moines challenger.

George said in the telegram that the fight would draw between 30,000 and 40,000 fans. The match site would be the Drake University Stadium.

'Bridegroom' Snead Leads Canadian Open

Breaks Course Record With 67 in First-Round Play; Stanley Horne, Canadian Pro, Second With 68; Worsham Has 74

By the Associated Press

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 15.—Sam Snead, belting bridegroom of four days, cracked the Scarboro course record with a brilliant 67 today to lead the field in the first round of the annual Canadian Open Golf championship.

Followed for the entire 18 holes by bride, Audrey, Slammin' Sam chopped two strokes off the course record by going out in par 36 and coming home with a sizzling 31—four under par.

Snead, who won this tourney in 1938, set the pace for the select field of 129 entries, but 13 of the top-ranking professionals in the United States and Canada were hard on his heels, bunched within three strokes of his figure.

Stanley Horne, tiny Montreal pro, was second with a 68, while at 69 Bobby Alston, of Ottawa and Ray Mangrum, of Oak Park, Ill., were deadlocked with the defending champion, Harold (Jug) McSpaden, who won the $1,000 top money and the Seagram gold cup last year at St. John, N. B.

Three U. S. entries occupied the 70 bracket; Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J.; Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., and Dick Metz, of Chicago. At par 71, Ky Laffoon and Ralph Guldahl, both of Chicago, were berthed with four Canadians.

The only amateur to approach par on this tricky 6,685-yard layout was Ted Bishop, of Boston, who registered a 72. Ellsworth Vines, former U. S. Davis Cup tennis ace, came in with a 79.

Leader of Washington, D. C.'s three-man delegation, Buck Worsham, the 20-year-old Chevy Chase Club assistant, whose round of 74 included a back nine of 33, starting with an eagle 3 on the tenth hole.

Young Warsham was out in 41, 5 over par, but his subpar back nine left him with a 74, within speaking distance of the leaders.

Al Houghton, Beaver Dam pro, who finished third in this tournament in 1933, trailed with 41-36, 77, while Robert T. Barnett, of Chevy Chase, was back with 43-37, 80.

Mrs. Samuel Jackson Snead

Mrs. Snead, the former Audrey Elizabeth Karnes, of Hot Springs, Va., watched her husband of a few days top the Canadian Open field yesterday with a 67. Mrs. Snead and Slammin' Sam have been sweethearts for years

Little Rookie Fractures Bone in Heel

Injury Is Blow to Brooklyn's Pennant Hopes; Wyatt Beaten, 4-2, by Phillies

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 15.—The Brooklyn Dodgers suffered their bitterest loss today.

Peewee Reese, their great rookie shortstop, fractured a bone in his left heel while sliding into second base in today's game with the Philadelphia club—and will probably be lost to the club for the rest of the season. The Phils won the game, 4-2.

With Reese, who leaves tomorrow for his home in Louisville to recuperate, goes most of the Dodgers' hopes of overhauling the Cincinnati Reds in the National League pennant chase.

Ailing Durocher to Play

For the 21-year-old had taken Manager Leo Durocher's place and kept the Dodger infield the best-knit outfit in the National League. Now Durocher, who has been bothered by ailing legs and arms, will have to resume his old post for the stretch grind.

When Reese singled in the first inning of today's game, it marked the twenty-seventh consecutive contest in which he has been on base. His sensational defensive playing and his timely hitting had made him almost a unanimous choice for "Rookie-of-the-year" honors. He was hiting at .273, including today's game.

The accident happened in the seventh inning when Pee Wee slid into second base. His spikes caught in the bag, twisting his ankle under him. It was believed to be only a sprain when he was helped off the field by teammates, but X-ray examinations at a hospital revealed the fracture.

Joe Marty Homers

And even with him the Dodgers weren't much today. Whitlow Wyatt served a home run ball to Joe Marty in the fourth inning with a mate aboard, and that tied the score at 2-all, which was the last time the Brooks were close.

In the sixth singles by "Ham" Schulte and Joe Marty and an error by Joe Medwick put the Phillies ahead by one run and they sewed it up in the seventh when Emmett Mueller doubled and Merrill May singled.

Kirby Higbe went the route for the Phils and held the Brooks to five hits, three of which were bunched in the first inning for both their runs. Wyatt was credited with the loss, his tenth of the season.

Indians Pound 15 Hits, Beat Chisox, 5 to 4

Thornton Lee Charged With Defeat; Tribe Maintains 2-Game Lead

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—The league-leading Indians pounded Southpaw Thornton Lee for 15 hits, including five doubles, today but failed to connect in the pinches and barely nosed out Chicago, 5 to 4.

Cleveland scored the winning run in the eighth when Roy Weatherly singled, went to second as Taft Wright fumbled the ball, and scored on Lou Boudreau's two-base smash.

Johnny Allen relieved Al Milnar with the score tied in the seventh inning and received credit for the victory, his seventh against four defeats. The setback was Lee's ninth against a like number of triumphs.

Fourth Straight Victory

It was the fourth straight decision for the Indians and enabled them to sweep the two-game Sox series and hold their margin of two games over Detroit. They now play the Browns four games before entraining on their final Eastern tour.

Milnar gave up eight hits, walked three and allowed all the Chicago runs. The visitors tallied one in the first on singles by Luke Appling and Mike Tresh and an infield out and another in the fourth on Julius Solters' double, Appling's single and Beau Bell's fumble of the latter hit.

Chicago pushed over its other two runs in the sixth on a double by Cincinnati, Aug. 15.—Willie Boteler, Washington Typos hurler, personally attended to the first setback suffered by Detroit in the Union Printers thirtieth annual baseball tournament today. The score was 7 to 1. He slashed a triple to right with the bases loaded to run Washington's first inning scoring to six tallies.

The inning started with Holloran, of Washington, getting a life on an error. Hofberg doubled, Schneider singled, scoring Holloran, and a wild throw sent them both home. Gartland was safe on another error, Schneider scoring, and three more singles—by Wapie, Boundford and Grier—followed by Boteler's triple wound up the inning.

Then Boteler went out to throw a slow, tantalizing curve at the Detroit batters, who got seven scattered singles. In the eighth they loaded the bases on two infield singles and a walk but Boteler made the next batter pop out and the next grounded out.

The victory left Washington the only unbeaten club in the tourney and put it in a favored spot to continue its hold on the Garry Herrmann Cup biggest prize of the meeting.

And Detroit plays Boston tomorrow in the semi-finals.

Dedication Of Flagpole Marks Regatta

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 15.—A 123-foot flagpole, tallest single stick mast on the Atlantic Coast, will be dedicated tomorrow at ceremonies preceding the Annapolis Yacht Club's fifth annual regatta.

The principal address will be made by Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, following a welcoming talk by Commodare Peter H. Magruder.

The invocation will be given by Chaplain William N. Thomas, of the Naval Academy, and Miss Jane Martin will unveil a commemorative tablet at the base of the mast, located on the club grounds.

Others expected at the ceremonies include Senator and Mrs. George L. Radcliffe; Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, Naval Academy superintendent; Capt. Francis A. L. Vossler, midshipman commandant, and Mrs. Vossler; State Senator Louis N. Phipps and Mrs. Phipps, and Annapolis Mayor George W. Haley and Mrs. Haley.

The 26 clubs of the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Racing Association, comprising 26 groups, will rendezvous at the club starting tomorrow.

The first of 51 races on the program will be held Saturday and more than 100 entries have been received, including all types of sailing craft from moth boat to ocean sailing yacht.

The club will present 125 trophies at the conclusion of the regatta Sunday, at 5 p. m.

About 40 boats of the West River Sailing Club fleet will race from the home club to Annapolis tomorrow. The Coast Guard cutter Pamlico will arrive tomorrow from New Bern, N. C., to act as committee boat during the regatta.

Sheriff's Office Up in Arms Over Hunters' Wild Shots

By the Associated Press

Frederick, Md., Aug. 15.—Roving hunters, who unthinkably take pot shots at tin cans, sign posts and other handy targets have finally got the Frederick County sheriff's office up in arms.

It was bad enough, Deputy Sheriff Horace M. Alexander said, when residents reported thoughtless gunners had shot their mail boxes so full of holes "they looked like sieves."

But when a fisherman at Buckeystown Dam reported a stray bullet knocked his fishing rod out of his hands, the sheriff decided it was time to act.

"Anyone caught shooting rifles along highways or along creeks, rivers or streams will be prosecuted," Alexander warned. Inaddition, their guns will be confiscated, the officer declared.

Frederick residents said they docked their boats along county streams at night and returned the next morning to find the craft full of water with the bottoms peppered with shot.

Other gunners send bullets "skipping" along the surface of streams, with several narrow escapes from injury, Alexander said.

The mail boxes that look like "sieves" are along the new Design Road and the Gas House Pike.

Alexander pointed out that it was legal to carry arms during the hunting season later this year, but said "things had reached such a state" it would be necessary to confiscate rifles carried by persons along the public highways and streams.

Last fall, the officer recalled, a hunter "bagged" a farmer's cow near here.

D. C. Duos to Compete In Lancaster Pro-Am

Nine or 11 Local Teams to Golf in Thorn's Invitational; Doerr Shifts Publinx Dates; Pros Tie at End of 18 Holes

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Nine and possibly eleven District teams will make the annual trip to Lancaster, Pa., on Monday, for Arthur Thorn's Invitation pro-amateur tournament, one of the best events of its kind in the near East, that always attracts a half-dozen big-time pros.

Thorn, former professional at the Woodmont Club here, is the main reason the local boys make the trip. District tandems have carried away their share of the prize money in the past, Roland MacKenzie and Roger Peacock winning the tournament several years ago, while two years ago Lewis Worsham tied Big Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, for the pro sweepstakes.

Peacock will be the amateur half of the District's strongest team this year, with Leo Walper as a partner. The Indian Spring amateur ace and Walper will leave tomorrow afternoon and paly an exhibition match at the club on Sunday.

Spencer Teams With Rooney

Cliff Spencer, East Potomac pro will play with Mike Rooney, York, Pa., C. C. amateur, while an all East Potomac team will be Tommy Doerer, jr., and Bobby Bowers.

Two Manor teams will be Al Treder and H. L. Lacey, and Eddie Stevens and Bobby Brownell, while George Diffenbaugh and George Vass will play from Kenwood. Two other District pros, Mel Shorey and Lewis Worsham, jr., will compete, but their partners are not definite.

Bob Barnett, Chevy Chase mentor, will stop over on his way back from the Canadian Open championship and will be joined by Ralph Quinter, jr., of Chevy Chase.

Although the two tournaments did not conflict from the standpoint of entries, Tommy Doerer, jr., has shifted the dates of the city public links championship so as not to conflict with the District Amateur, both scheduled the wee kof September 16.

Doerer did it more as a favor to the players and the sports writers.

The qualifying date for the public links championship will stand, September 16 over three courses, Rock Creek, Anacostia and East Potomac. However, the match play rounds have been shifted to: first and second rounds, Monday, September 23, at East Potomac, quarter and semi-finals, the 24th and 36-hole finals on the 25th.

The number of qualifying places at East Potomac was increased to 16, the same as last year, instead of eight as previously announced. The other courses will be allowed eight qualifiers.

How often will four golf professionals, playing an 18-hole round of golf, come to the last hole with identical scores? It happened yesterday at Bradley Hills where Al Jamison called three of the boys together for a rainy-day round, when things were slack.

Jamison, Gene Larkin, George Diffenbaugh and Lewis Worsham all played the first 17 holes in one over par, and were all tied up for the little sweepstakes purse. Only two were tied when it was over. Jamison hooked out of bounds and took five on the finishing par three. Larkin was trapped and took four when his putt rimmed the cup while Diffenbaugh and Worsham halved the hole in threes for 6ds.

Godoy Starts Drills For Possible Bout

Summit, N. J., Aug. 15 (AP).—Arturo Godoy, the South American heavyweight who stayed 22 rounds in two bouts with Joe Louis this year, went into training here today for a possible bout with either Max Baer, Lee Savold or Buddy Walker this fall.

His manager, Al Weill, said Promoter Mike Jacobs is trying to arrange a fight with Baer in Madison Square Garden in November. Weill added that Pete Lectour, Buenos Aires promoter, has offered Baer $25,000 to take on Godoy there in October. In addition, Godoy has received an offer to box Savold in Des Moines or Buddy Walker in Columbus next month. Walker, a Negro, has been piling up a considerable string of victories recently.

Midget Class Outboards to Open Regatta

By the Associated Press

Solomons, Md., Aug. 15.—Commodore O. P. Webster of the Solomons Island Yacht Club announced today that midget class outboards would begin the program for the club's fourth annual regatta Saturday at 12:40 p. m. in Drum Point Harbor.

Many of the country's outstanding inboard and outboard speedboat drivers have entered the two-day event, held under authorization of the American Power Boat Association, said Webster.

Outboard races will be held on the inner course Saturday, with sailing races and inboard events on the outer course Sunday.

The destroyer Ellis, of the Atlantic Coast neutrality patrol, has been ordered by the Navy Department to attend the regatta and is expected to anchor in the harbor, where the Patuxent River enters the Chesapeake Bay, Saturday morning.

In addition, the Coast Guard cutter Calypso will conduct the racing events.

Besides the midgets, the class A, B, C and F outboards will race Saturday.

The commodore's dinner for visiting yachtsmen, racers, officials of the American Power Boat Association will be held Saturday night.

Nassau Aquatic Team Bows in Meet Here

Washington Golf and Country Club Swimmers Win, 31-25; Rain Interferes With Event; Bill Wright Is Individual Star

Washington Golf and Country Club swimmers upset the visiting Shoreham Aquatic Club team of Nassau, Bahamas, yesterday, 31-25, as the rain interfered with the scheduled aquatic program of the host club.

The match, and brief diving and swimming exhibitions were the only events carried out due to the inclement weather.

Bill Wright was the individual star of the winners as he was first in the 50-yard free style and was a member of the winning 150-yard medley relay team.

The Nassau team stopped en route to Canada and the British Empire swimming championships. Cecil Cook was outstanding for the Nassa uaggregation.

50-YARD JUNIOR FREE STYLE—Won by Cecil Cooke, jr., Shoreham Aquatic Club; second, Dub Walker, W. C. and C. C.; third, John Drudge, S. A. C. Time, 27.2 secs.

850-YARD JUNIOR BREAT STROKE—Won by Bill Roney, Washington Golf and Country Club; second, Don Butler, Shoreham A. C. Time, 36 secs.

100-YARD SENIOR BACKSTROKE—Won by Tom Harrell, Washington Golf and C. C.; second, John Drudge, Shoreham A. C. Time 1:11.6.

50-YARD JUNIOR BACKSTROKE—Won by Hugh Farrington, Shoreham A. C.; second, Dub Walker, Washington G. and C. C. Time, 33.1 secs.

50-YARD SENOR MEN FREE STYLE—Win by William Wright, Washington Golf and C. C.; second, Al Hamm, Washington Golf and C. C.; Cecile Cooke, Shoreham A. C. Timt, 26 secs.

150-YARD JUNIOR MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Shoreham A. C. (Hubert Farrington, Don Butler, Cecile Cooke, jr.); second, Washington G. and C. C. (Dub Walker, Bill Roney, Sonny Young). Time, 1:37.4.

150-YARD SENIOR MEDLEY RELAY—Won by Washington Golf and C. C. (Harrell, Austin, Wright); second, Shoreham A. C. (Drudge, Farrington, Cook). Time, 1:38.5.

Bill Ackerman ON FISHING

Potomac Still Not Clear Enough for Good Bass Fishing; Branches Have Catfish Aplenty; Good Spot Fishing on the Bay

The Potomac is still not clear enough for good bass fishing, but without much hunting around anyone who wants to fish badly enough could find tributary creeks that are clear. Above Washington, catfish are giving the few fishing for them all the sport they want. And one need not go any further than Joe Fletcher's at New Cut and Canal roads. Good crappie fishing might be had here also, with just a little clearer water.

ACKERMAN

Hardly a dozen anglers have fished Gunston Cove from Aubrey Shepherd's since the season opened June 15. Lately that is understandable, because of the extreme warm weather, yet one lone angler last Saturday afternoon brought in five weighing up to 2 pounds.

The water hyacinths have started to die down and by September they should be gone, but even now there is plenty of good fishing water.

There should be good spot fishing anywhere on the bay this week-end and bloodworms will be the best bait. With a falling barometer throughout the week there have been some fine catches in Herring Bay on the hard bottom from northwest buoy to the Chesapeake Beach buoy. Catches were made by West River boats fishing the Three Sisters off South River and in the mouth of Eastern Bay. The advantage of this latter fishing is the increased chances for trout and even a few rock.

The largest smallmouth bass ever caught in western North Caroline was taken last week in Lake Santeetlah. It measured 23 inches and weighed 7 pounds after it was dressed (why anglers will dress such fish before they weigh them is more than we can understand.)

Though so-called small-mouth bass are caught in the eastern part of North Carolina weighing 9 and 10 pounds, and dutifully recorded as to species, the western North Carolina small-mouth bass is an entirely different brand.

Lake Santeetlah is one of the many man-made lakes dotting the terrain of this part of the State as part of the South's electric power system. This lake has been stocked with bass, bream, crappie and other freshwater game fish.

One reader writes in about the 55 pound channel bass that was caught several weeks ago on the North Carolina coast and at that time was leading the Ruppert Contest. Evidently he has been down and snagged one larger for he wanted details for entering.

A blank is in the mail for him now. Any others with ideas on taking some of this real money George Ruppert has posted for the three largest of 12 species of fish may have a blank by writing this column.

For those anglers who like to fish off the beaten path, here is one from Don McCarthy of the Miami Rod and Reel Club. He says: "Gregory Lopez, ace tarpon guide of Everglades City in the Ten Thousand Island section of southern Florida, will take six anglers to Broad or Shark River for a two or three day trip for $50 per day. This includes his houseboat, guide boat, motor dory, crew and bait. The anglers furnish the food, which should not be over $1 a day each. The boats are good, the houseboat clean, screened and comfortable."

Inky and Spy Capture Two Blue Ribbons at Berryville Show

Opening Day Held Despite Driving Rain

Barker's Gelding Scores Surprises In Victories; Lewis Astride Spy

By Anne Hagner

Berryville, Va., Aug. 15.—Although rain fell almost incessantly on the Clarke County Horse Show's opening session here today, the event was by no means a washout for two toppy Virginia-bred horses.

The lucky pair was made up of Mrs. George Watts Hill's Inky and J. Edward Barker's Spy, each winner of two blue ribbons during the day. Inky's triumphs, coming in the middle of what is apparently a record season for the lop-eared little mare, were no surprise to the 300 spectators on the grounds, but Spy's activities were something in the nature of a major upset.

The Barker-owned gelding, a compactly built 4-year-old with little ring experience in back of him, scored an exceptional round in the class for 4-year-olds and under, to defeat such well-known juveniles as Christopher Greer, jr.'s Blaze Terpin, Springsbury Farm's Roma Gino, and Mrs. Fay Ingall's Sauntering.

Lewis Astride Spy

Charles Lewis, one of the Nation's outstanding riders for the past two years, took over the saddle work on Spy in line of the youngster's owner, who was busy with Ernest Redmon's string of hunters. Lewis also rode Spy to victory in the event for hunters under saddle.

Inky, a championship winner nearly everywhere she has appeared this year, was favored for the same award here until Spy's doings upset the dope. However, both horses have a number of important classes tomorrow that will prove the deciding factors for the tricolor.

Although hunters events are granted the emphasis in the prize list, the jumper classes stole the limelight this afternoon as Herman Piggott's Brazil and J. B. Lacey's Rock Tea, with tiny Ann Clay Bayly up, jumped off twice in treacherous footing for the handicap jumpers' blue ribbon. Brazil finally conquered, but Ann Clay was the hit of the show as she gave the rapid little bay gelding a faultless ride over 4½-foot fences for second place.

Redmon's Youngsters Win

Ernest Redmon, for years one of Middleburg's leading hunter breeders, saw his young stock run true to form as they took complete charge of the lead-in classes that opened today's card. No Mistake, Our Time and Rascality each took one blue in the respective divisions, and Lucille II, from the same barn, won the brood mares' class over a nice field.

Although Spy and Inky annexed most of the big classes, Ellie Wood Keith's Primerva romped off with the top ribbon in the working hunters' class, one of the toughest to judge on the entire card. Miss Keith, who recently rode the mare to double for Madeline Carroll in the motion picture, "Virginia," had a clockwork round to defeat Inky, Mrs. Haggin Perry on Village Miss, and Mrs. Hill's Lucky Buck.

The four races, attracting a long list of entries from the half-mile tracks, were run over a slow track. First event, at about 6 furlongs, went to R. P. Gillette's Kitty's Rival, who defeated F. M. Leith's Tuleyries Star and W. B. Casnear's Wood Dear in a blanket finish.

Alice Marble Loses Set, but Wins Match

World Champion Beats Dorothy May Bundy, 6-4, 2-6, 6-0 in Tourney

By the Associated Press

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 15.—A tennis rarity occurred here today—Alice Marble lost a set.

The world champion, undefeated anywhere for almost three full years, dropped her fifth set of the 1930 campaign while defeating Dorothy May Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., 6—4, 2—6, 6—0, in the quarter-finals of the sixteenth annual Essex County Club tournament.

The victory placed the Beverly Hills (Calif.) star in the bracket opposite Sarah Palfrey, of Reno, Nev., her doubles partner, who advanced in the day's only other singles match by overwhelming Valerie Scott, of England, 6—2, 6—0.

The only other match on the day's program, a doubles quarter-final, provided a 7—5, 10—8 victory for Pauline Betz, of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Margaret Osborne, of Los Angeles, over the Los Angeles team of Virginia Wolfenden and Pat Canning.

The Betz-Osborne tandem remained as the only unseeded pair in the doubles semifinals, and Miss Betz, ranked eighth nationally, had the added distinction of being the only unseeded semi-finalist in the singles. Tomorrow she will play Mary Hardwick, of England, top-foreign seeded, following the Marble-Palfrey match.

A summer cold almost broke Miss Marble's great victory streak today. Just a touch off form through the first two sets, she failed to follow through on her shots and dropped her drives several yards short of the baselines, enabling Miss Bundy to force the play.

After the intermission it was a different match. Miss Marble regained her confidence and form and started belting services and streaking placements to the corners. Miss Bundy, ranked sixth nationally, was able to win only 12 points in the last set.

Miss Scott, runner-up to Miss Marble here last year, was off form in her duel with Miss Palfrey. She overdrove throughout the match and all but quit after eight games. Miss Palfrey rode through on the form that has made her the country's third-ranking star.

Don McNeill, Joe Hunt Win At Newport

Shields Bows in Straight Sets; Grant Loses to Midshipman

By the United Press

Newport, R. I., Aug. 15.—Top-seeded Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, Okla., played according to form and Midshipman Joe Hunt, of Annapolis, upset form today to win berths in the semifinal round of the Newport Casino Invitation Tennis Tournament.

McNeill, playing a workmanlike game, scored an easy 6—2, 6—2, 7—5 win over Frank Shields, of New York, former Davis Cupper, and Hunt wore sixth-seeded Bryan (Bitsy) Grant to near exhaustion with masterly backhands and a smashing net game to win 6—2, 6—1, 6—2.

Two Californians, Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, and Fred Schroeder, of Glendale, won the other semifinal berths yesterday.

There was one upset in the quarter-final double matches. Kovacs and a fellow Californian, Edwin Amark, defeated John H. Kramer, of Los Angeles, and Frederick Schroeder, the second seeded team, 6—4, 6—4.

The other double teams that reached the semifinals were McNeill and Frank Parker, of Pasadena, Calif.; Charles Matman and Robert Harman, both of Los Angeles, and Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, Fla., and Robert Bobbitt, of Atlanta, Ga.

Congressional Golf Club to Be Sold Soon

Legal Advertisement Announces Property On Block Sept. 4

The Congressional Country Club property will be offered for sale at public auction on Wednesday, September 4, at 4:30 p. m., in front of the main entrance to the clubhouse, according to a paid legal advertisement in a suburban paper.

Although the sale is the first step in a plan of reorganization that has already been presented to club members, and is more or less a formality for working out future arrangements, it is, of course, possible the club may be sold to an outsider.

The sale was announced through Trustees William Montgomery, John T. Meany and Lee P. Steuart, through Attorney Roger J. Whitford.

The property includes 398 acres clear of roads, including an 18-hole golf course, tennis courts, a swimming pool, and all the up-to-date country club facilities including all buildings.

Mortgages of approximately $450,000 are outstanding on the property.

Bees Trounce Giants, 12 to 1, Collect 18 Hits

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 15.—The Boston Bees continued their winning surge in the National League today by combing the offerings of three Giant pitchers for 18 hits and a 12-to-1 victory in the final game of their current series, which they captured, three games to one.

Lefty Joe Sullivan was the real hero of the game. He went in at the start of the second to replace Bill Posedel, starting Bee hurler, who developed a kink in his throwing arm, and he blanked the Giants for the last eight frames with a four-hit job that had all the earmarks of a masterpiece.

The Giants' lone run came on Burgess Whitehead's double and Frank Demaree's single in the first frame off Posedel.

The Bees made five runs in the first inning and chased Cliff Melton off the mound before he could retire anyone. They repeated with another cluster of five in the third when Relief Pitcher Paul Dean was blasted to pieces.

Joe Heving Handcuffs Yanks for Bosox, 11-1

Relief Hurler Makes First Start by Only Allowing Champions Three Hits; Boston Breaks Four-Game Losing Streak

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 15.—Joe Heving, a relief pitcher, who was making his first start of the year, was a real relief to the sagging Boston Red Sox today.

Handcuffing the world champion New York Yankees with three hits, he broke a four-game Sox losing streak and a six-game Yankee winning streak by an 11-1 score.

While Joe was keeping the Yankees at bay, his mates were lustily clubbing four Yankee hurlers for 14 blows—including home runs by Jimmy Foxx (his twenty-ninth) and Ted Williams (his seventeenth).

Ernie Bonham, who started for the Yanks, was ousted in the third, being followed by Bump Hadley, Marvin Breuer and Johnny Murphy in that order.

The Sox thus managed one victory out of the four-game series with the Yanks. A slim crowd of 7,344 sat through the proceedings, and watched the Sox get away to a 6-1 lead by the third inning and then build it to insurmountable proportions with a five-run attack in the fifth inning.

Mike Kreevich, a single by Solters, a walk and an infield out.

Singles by Ray Mack and Milnar and a double by Ben Chapman plated the first Cleveland tally in the third. In the fifth Boudreau doubled and Hal Trosky singled him home. The Redskins came from behind to knot the score in the sixth with two runs on Ken Keltner's double, singles by Rollie Hemsley and Weatherly and two walks.

The attendance was 5,000, marking the first time this week the figure has been under 15,000.

Buck Newsom Wins 15th Game Over Browns

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 15.—The Detroit Tigers, with Louie (Buck) Newsom contributing six-hit pitching and a double in the sixth inning that put his teammates in the lead, beat the St. Louis Brown, 5 to 2, today.

It was Newsom's day, his first good one since he broke his right thumb in Boston about a month ago. He struck out nine and walked four.

The Tigers touched Southpaw Howard Mills for eight hits, including Hank Greenberg's twenty-fourth homer and George Tebbetts' third.

The score was tied at 2-all when Newsom's double brought in Tebbetts, who had walked. The Tigers added two more in the seventh, when Mills passed Gehringer and Greenberg homered.

Sure Touch Scores in Manley Handicap at Cumberland

Jockey Kelly Rides Winner Before 10,000

Derrico's Charge Pays $19.30; Daly's Seneschal Is Second With Red Wrack 3d

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 15.—Finding the slow track and a fast pace that killed off several rivals to his liking, Sure Touch drove to a three-length victory in the annual running of the Harry A. Manley Handicap. Performing in the green and white of A. Derrico and handled by Jockey W. Kelly, one of the saddle stars of the meeting, Sure Touch forced Mrs. M. V. Daly's Seneschal into second position. Miss M. Knieriem's Red Wrack got up in the final jump to take third money from Thoa, owned by R. E. Gerth, jr.

In a rather open betting affair, Sure Touch found only a scattered backing and paid a $19.30 mutuel while racing over the 6½-furlong course in 1:23. The track was slow as the result of rain last night but the downpour failed to dampen the enthusiasm for racing here. Another 10,000 crowd was out and the mutuel tote buzzed as usual with the wagering.

Thoa Takes Command

Thoa was rushed up on the inside to take command in the early stages. She had a tussle for the pacemaking honors with Seneschal and Butterman and then drew out to a good lead on the backstretch. Butterman faded, Seneschal held on and Sure Touch, taken wide for racing room, moved up.

Thoa began to tire approaching the stretch. Jockey Joe O'Malley then sent Seneschal into the lead and went to the whip, but Sure Touch had too much punch for the Daly star. Kelly kept the 5-year-old to a drive and he was opening plenty of daylight at the end.

Owner Derrico was presented with a chest of silver and was given a leg on the costly silver Manley Tropay which must be won three times for permanent possession. In five years of competition no owner has won the race twice.

Martinez Rides Three Winners

The riding spotlight for the day was centered on Jockey A. F. Martinez. He won both of the key races in the daily double. He booted Farmlands home in the first race at an $8.70 mutuel. Jockey Skeets Holland, who rode Erin's Girl into second position, made an unsuccessful claim of foul. The Cuban rider came back in the next event to bring Red Idol to the wire at an individual pay off of $16.80. Those who coupled his two winners collected $137.20 in the double.

Martinez rode his third winner aboard Chalotaur, a $5.70 favorite, owned by Danny Galotta, Washington attorney. Galotta was presented with a gold wrist watch which he gave to Martinez after the presentation on the infield platform.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FARMLANDS, $8.70, $5.70, $6.00; ERIN'S GIRL, $10.20, $5.50; MISS SOOT, $3.60.

FARMLANDS, hustled on outside to get to front, was vigorously handled to draw clear in closing stages. ERIN'S GIRL, in close quarters at first turn, moved up menacingly approaching stretch and was held safe at close. Holland's claim of foul against winner was not allowed. MISS SOOT, slow to begin, came wide for racing room and closed fastest. INDIAN SEA bore out at first turn and weakened gradually in closing stages.

SECOND RACE—About 6½ furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:41½. Off 2:42¼. Winner, C. M. Peltzer's ch. s. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED IDOL, $16.80, $6.10, $3.50; GOLDEN KEY, $3.60, $2.70; CAUTIOUS BO, $2.70.

RED IDOL, within striking distance from start and forced to race wide, responded when shaken up to closer with good energy and outgamed GOLDEN KEY. The latter was hard ridden to dispose of ENAGALA and was under pressure through stretch. CAUTIOUS BO, steadied close up, came with good courage in closing test. AUTUMN ECHO could not keep up early and was held safe after making mild bid entering stretch.

Daily Double, FARMLANDS and RED IDOL, Paid $137.20

THIRD RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $500; claiming, steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Royal Cunning. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:13. Off 3:14. Winner, M. B. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHALOTAUR, $5.70, $4.20, $3.00; WORTHOWNING, $9.90, $5.50; EMMA H, $12.00.

CHALOTAUR shook off FRANK H. to take command and drew out gradually under strong handling. WORTHOWNING, slow to begin, worked way to contention gradually and closed with rush. EMMA H. was hard ridden on inside and held on gamely. SUNNY ROSE was taken up several times when in close quarters and can do better.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. The Harvey Jewelry Store Purse. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:24. Off 5:25. Winner, C. L. Pearson's b. g. (5), by Blue Seville—Wilcknorm. Trained by F. G. Simms. Value to winner, $300; second, $65; third, $25; fourth, $10. Time, 1:53.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLOX, $8.90, $4.30, $3.90; PETEE LAD, $3.80, $3.60; BUD'S KING, $12.20.

BLOX, allowed to settle into best stride, was raised after reaching contention, responded when placed to punishment and was in command during stride. PETEE LAD, well placed early, was taken up when blocked by BUD'S KING, went to front when clear, but could not resist winner while under strong handling. BUD'S KING came through on inside to set to front and weakened in closing 3 furlongs. WISE MONEY tired.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 6:00. Off 6:02. Winner, M. J. Tighe's blk. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRAZEN HUSSY, $16.80, $7.50, $4.30; KISSIN KID, $6.20, $3.90; FOXTON, $3.40.

BRAZEN HUSSY, first away, was steadied while setting pace, responded under hand riding when challenged by KISSIN KID and drew out under drive in stretch run. KISSIN KID, close up from start, closed gamely. FOXTON could not threaten seriously while under strong handling. STOP LIGHT, off slowly, was not a serious factor.

At The Post

Selections at Cumberland.

Dear Al:

Good neighbors day will be celebrated today. Congressman Jennings Randolph, Bill Kern (West Virginia football coach) and Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, are some of the important guests. Jack Bussey, veteran handicapper and originator of Jack's Green Card, is vacationing here and visiting with his son Bobby. There's a drink sold hereabouts called a "Zombie." One of them makes you think you are going a mile and a sixteenth and two makes you believe you are an entry in the Kentucky Derby. Some day a horse is going to get hold of one and jump right over the mountain. There is a trophy or watch presented to virtually every winning owner at this meeting. The horse, Albert D., is not dead as reported. He has a bad leg but it is on the mend. Apprentice Jockey Al Bocson was not injured in his fall off Black Mill in the first race. He was shaken up, however, and was forced to cancel his other mounts. After winning both ends of the daily double, Jockey Martinez was asked to make a speech. He tried to go to town in English and got mixed up. Some one asked him to speak in Spanish and really let the crowd have it. The track people are making headquarters out of Keyer's cabins on the road to Frostburg (Plug.) I should get an extra towel. Starter Ira Gregory and the Puett starting gate have been clicking off smooth getaways throughout the meeting. I knew I would bring rain when I harped on the long string of fast tracks here. This track may enlarge its grandstand and betting ring before another meeting. Both improvements are needed. Clocker Mike got a big hand from several angles for picking Sure Touch on top in yesterday's feature. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—Strolling In has been coming from behind in recent races and should be helped by the long sprint route of this test. Needs only the right ride. Pops Sister did everything asked last out and is the one to beat. Fall Hasard demonstrated plenty of foot in that recent victory.

Second race—Tavern shapes up as a solid horse in this field. Likes the distance and gets a moderate weight assignment. Fredrick will go well with the promise of a soft track. Blind Talk for the minor award.

Third race—Star On has speed and may open a good lead on this field of timber toppers. Could be the right one in an open affairs. Bay Arnold's jumping ability it not known, but he can go the route and anything can win this. King Dominant would be a threat if taken off the reserve list.

Fourth race—Repeat is a doubtful starter. Probably would gallop if sent postward. Serrano promises to do a lot of running in this group of maidens. Brown Chair is a possibility.

Fifth race—Pandoramint may get an off track. Has plenty of speed and is not shooting too high in this company. Way Out and Redwings are dangerous off their best efforts.

Sixth race—Yankee Lad won his last in impressive fashion. Meets sharp horses, but seems capable of carrying the 115-pound assignment. Dohoev was never better and is a threat. Bellthorn for the show end.

Seventh race—Lady Solace gets in light and seems to be rounding into best form. A well judged ride will turn the trick. Ace of Trumps should take part of the money. Black Demon, if sound, will be a keen contender.

Eighth race—Kal-Min looks like the best bet of the day in the finals. Kenner has the early speed and could stick it out long enough to be a threat. James Pal is a good one on the reserve list.

Best bet—Kal-Min.

Izzy Janazzo, Williams Meet Here, Aug. 26

10-Rounder Carded For Griffith Stadium; 5th Mixed Match

The fifth mixed match for the District, a ten-round bout between Holman Williams, and Izzy Janazzo, respective third and fourth ranking welterweights, was agreed to yesterday for Monday, August 26, at Griffith Stadium.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez announced the contract signing from New York. John Roxborough, who manages Williams for Joe Louis, was on hand.

Heinie Miller is expected to give the bout District Boxing Commission sanction today.

Williams, a Detroit product, scored an easy victory over Wild Bill McDowell here several weeks ago. Janazzo's last District appearance was several months ago when he scored over Steve Mamakos.

Capital Ranks Sixth in U. S. In Building

Seven-Months Volume Is $20,532,030, Dun's Reports

Dun & Bradstreet reported yesterday that Washington ranked sixth among 215 cities in value of building permits issued in the first seven months this year.

Local building volume totaled $20,532,030 from January through July, against $21,741,871 in the corresponding period last year, the report stated. The Capital was outranked only by New York with $139,758,999, Los Angeles with $42,534,668, Detroit with $39,443,105, Chicago with $21,384,152 and San Francisco with $20,708,273.

Baltimore followed closely on Washington's heels with $20,390,588.

According to the review, total building permit values throughout the country during July resumed the upward course which was interrupted by the moderate falling off noted in June.

Permits issued in 215 cities last month were valued at $124,709,126, according to the monthly compilation. This represented a gain of 21.4 per cent above the July, 1939, figure of $102,750,445, and a rise of 8.4 per cent as compared with the June aggregate of $115,028,090. The usual seasonal change from June to July is a drop of about 10.5 per cent.

Group to Meet in D. C.

The Retail Development League, an organization for appliance retailers and salesmen and sponsored by the General Electric Co., will hold its first national convention in Washington. Dates for the meeting are tentatively set as February 6, 7, 8, 1941. There will be approximately 100 people in attendance.

Military Orders Tax Capacity of Woolen Plants

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—United States Army and Navy orders for fabrics have taken the capacity of a number of woolen mills, the New York Wool Top Exchange reported today.

"With the Army insisting on quick delivery," the report said, it now appears that considerable tonnage will be tied up over the remaining months of the year."

Some knitting mills are busier than they have been in years filling Government orders for wool socks, it was noted.

The military business it was said, has offset slack in buying for civilian requirements.

The National Association of Wool Manufacturers announced the industry added 6,800 workers to its payrolls in June and $200,000 to the weekly payrolls.

Aircraft Firm Gets Huge Rubber Slabs

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 15 (AP).—Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. said today big rubber slabs it has manufactured for the Douglas Aircraft Co.'s blanking presses, which stamp out airplane parts from sheet metal, are the largest pieces of rubber ever designed for commercial application.

The rubber compound slabs—more than 13 feet long, and about 3 feet wide and 11 inches thick—weigh about 4,000 pounds apiece. They are used as a base for stamping operations and help shape the parts at the same time the die stamps them.

Pennsy Handlings Dip

New York, Aug. 14 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad reported yesterday revenue freight cars handled during the week ended August 10 declined to 112,275 from 114,226 in the preceding week. A year ago the total was 96,426.

Consolidated Fiscal Returns For Corporations Seen Needed

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
Economic Commentator.

It is etxraordinary that Congress should be considering a stiffer excess profits tax without permitting corporate taxpayers the privilege of making consolidated returns. In the circumstances, it is not surprising that spokesmen for organized business, appearing before the joint Congressional Committee should have emphasized the desirability of this change.

Mr. Rukeyser

The answer of Senators Harrison and King that if the question of consolidated returns was gone into, too much time would be consumed, with corresponding delay to the tax program recommended by the Administration and the defense commission, seems inadequate.

As a matter of fact, this country has had long fiscal experience with the consolidated return, and only abandoned it for regular taxation a few years ago during the New Deal.

Under the principle of the consolidated return, the whole corporate family is treated as a unit for tax purposes. Thus inter-corporate transactions are thoroughly eliminated.

Moreover, if one organ in the corporate family is highly profitable but another loses an equal amount, one is offset against the other.

The consolidated return enables the corporate taxpayer to apply to the tax payments the same accounting principles which record for business purposes the operation of a group of enterprises.

If the consolidated return is a sound principle for ordinary taxes, it is indispensable for excess profits taxes.

Because profits are not excessive unless the overall profit result for the entire corporate group is excessive. This can be measured through a consolidated return.

At present, it is difficult to translate the emotion behind excess profit tax legislation into sound fiscal measures.

This time the sentiment has taken form in the slogan that no millionaires shall result from the American quickened preparedness program.

As a means of accomplishing this objective, the Administration proposes through excess profits legislation to indulge in what is tantamount to price fixing on the profit side.

But it is one sided price fixing such as was done in the Esch-Cummins Transportation Act of 1920, which limited maximum railroad profits without guaranteeing minimum profits.

What is commonly called profit is more accurately a business cost—growing out of a payment for the use of tools or other corporate assets. The excess profits formula is designed to limit the rate of payments on tools which can be made during war time or national emergency.

The intention is noble enough, but practical difficulties are confronted in working it out. If the rate is dependent on results during a previous test period. There always arises the question of whether the test period works out fairly for a particular enterprise. On the other hand, if invested capital is the criterion, this principle works against good management which buys tools wisely and economically, and which makes a good return on them through efficiency of operation.

On the general formula of depreciation and amortization or emergency war plants, there has already been a meeting of the minds between the Administration and industrialists, and in the circumstances it is desirable to get Congressional action in order to remove the psychological bottleneck on defense plans which comes from lack of clarifying legislation on this vital subject.

Norway to Pay Bond Interest

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—Funds have been received from the Norwegian Government for the payment of interest due today on the Kingdom of Norway 6 per cent bonds of 1943, the National City Bank of New York announced.

License to disburse the funds has been granted by Federal authorities, the bank said.

Of $20,000,000 originally issued, there remain outstanding $5,529,000 of the bonds.

The bank commented the payment of the interest was "heartening to bondholders who have been in doubt about the safety of their investment in view of the extremely difficult conditions under which the Royal Norwegian Government is functioning."

August 1 interest was met on the 6 per cent loan of 1944 and the 4 per cent loan due in 1963.

Con. Oil Earns $2,080,027 In First Half

Nets 15 Cents a Share; Loss Was Reported In Like 1939 Period

Consolidated Oil Corporation and Subsidiaries, Nation-wide marketers of petroleum products, reported for the six months ended June 30 net income of $2,080,027, equal to 15 cents a share on the common stock, contrasted with a loss of $872,671 in the first half of 1939.

Included as nonrecurring income was $850,513 "arising from the sale of wholly owned subsidiaries to Mexican government."

The Mexican government petroleum agency in May announced an initial payment of $1,000,000 had been made toward a total of $8,500,000 agreed as compensation for the Sinclair properties taken over by Mexico.

Vanadium Corporation

Vanadium Corporation of America and subsidiaries for the six months ended June 30 showed profit of $916,890, equal to $2.43 a share on the capital stock, against a profit of $380,095, or $1.01 a share, in the initial six months last year.

Columbian Carbon Co.

The Columbian Carbon Co. and subsidiaries reported for the six months ended June 30 net income of $1,858,280, equal to $3.46 a share on the common stock, compared with net income of $1,633,599, or $3.04 a share for the first six months of 1930.

United Biscuit Co.

United Biscuit Co. of America for the six months ended June 30 reported net profit of $434,842, equal to 87 cents a share on the common stock, against a profit of $475,401, or 95 cents a share, in the like 1939 period.

Led by New York, Bank Clearings Drop 13% in Week

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—Bank clearings for 23 leading cities for the week ended August 14 totaled $4,397,607,000, a drop of 13.3 per cent from the $5,070,478,000 recorded in the same week last year, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

The turnover was $1,095,207,000 under the total for the preceding week. A factor in the decline, the credit agency said, was that the period was untouched by first-of-the-month or mid-month settlements.

New York clearings were $2,306,942,000 against $2,979,421,000 a year ago, down 22.6 per cent. Turnover for the 22 outside cities was $2,090,665,000 against $2,091,057,000.

Percentage gains included Detroit, 29; Portland, Oreg., 12.5, and Pittsburgh, 11.6. Richmond was down 10.3 per cent and New Orleans, 11.6 per cent.

Chicago clearances were $284,700,000 against $280,700,000 a year ago.

Brokers' Loans Drop $5,000,000 in Week

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $270,000,000. The week ended yesterday and the total represented a decrease of $5,000,000 when compared with the previous week. Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $525,000,000.

Copper Price Lower

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—The average price of copper, net at Atlantic seaboard refineries (about .225 cents under Connecticut Valley), declined during the week ended yesterday to 10.525 cents a pound, compared with 10.827 cents the previous week, Engineering and Mining Journal reported today.

Ayres Sees Business as Usual So Far Despite Defense Plans

Cleveland, Aug. 15 (AP).—Col. Leonard P. Ayres looked back today on the first half of 1940 and declared:

"Certainly the statistics of business reveal little evidense to indicate that we have been putting our maximum energies into a great national effort for rearmament.

"All in all the record has been one of business as usual, and on a comparatively low level of industrial and financial activity. Perhaps the next six months will be less usual."

National income the first six months was about 5 per cent greater than the same period of 1939 as physical volume of industrial production increased 13 per cent, the economist-statistician calculated.

Railroad freight loadings increased more than 10 per cent and business transactions settled by check payments were up 5 per cent, but "There are not very impressive increases."

The Cleveland Trust Co. vice president pointed out there was about a 7 per cent increase in employment which "Still left some 9,000,000 of unemployed in June of this year."

"Despite widely discussed instances of industrial building for increasing capacity to produce war materials, and of new housing to make homes for the workers, the total of new construction of all kinds in the first half of 1940 was about 5 per cent smaller than that carried through in the first six months of 1939.

"There has been little new corporate financing in recent months, and almost none for the purpose of increasing industrial capacity for producing war materials."

Revenue Rise Of Power Firms Traced by SEC

Pepco Shows Gain Of $5,276,252 in Ten-Year Period

Revenues of public utility companies have been increasing during the past several years, especially during 1939, a ten-year survey of 188 operating companies, released by the Securities Commission yesterday, showed.

The 206-page study, replete with vital statistics on the utility industry, presented a unique picture of operating companies whose assets totaled approximately $14,500,000,000 on December 31, 1939.

Clarence A. Turner, of SEC's Public Utilities Division, traced the operations, income and dividend policies of the utility companies over a ten-year period and gathered the information into a compact volume.

Willkie Firm Listed

Of interest were tables showing substantial increases in the income of subsidiaries of Commonwealth & Southern Corp., which Republican Presidential nominee Wendell L. Willkie formerly served as president.

The study also revealed wide differences between depreciation charges recorded for income tax purposes as against depreciation charges shown on the companies' books. In every case the charges for tax purposes were larger.

In a letter to the SEC, Commonwealth & Southern complained that these large depreciation charges were due to Treasury policy, which forced firms to take a large charge-off in order not to be at a future disadvantage.

The depreciation charges allowed by the Treasury are "arbitrary," Commonwealth & Southern contended.

"Taxpayers are virtually forced," the giant holding company said, "to deduct in their income tax returns, the maximum amount of depreciation which is allowable under the arbitrary standard which is fixed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue."

Pepco Revenues Reviewed

Locally, the Potomac Electric Power Co. showed operating revenues climbing almost steadily since 1[illegible] from $10,563,960 in that year to $13,842,212 in 1939.

Last year Pepco earned its fixed charges 7.51 times, which compares with 14.29 times in 1920. Pepco earned fixed charges preferred dividends 4.67 times last year, but 6.80 times in 1930.

The study revealed that Pepco's depreciation charges for income tax purposes, following a national trend, were higher than shown on the company's own books, but the gap has been narrowing in recent years.

The study also showed a substantially greater coverage of fixed charges and preferred dividends over the last few years, particularly 1939, for most firms in the country.

Former Commissioner George C. Matthews, a Republican, originally ordered that the study be made.

Report on Steel Firms

The Securities Commission reported yesterday that 12 steel corporations, each with assets of more than $100,000,000, had a combined profit after all charges of $121,000,000 last year, compared with a loss of $8,500,000 in 1938.

The figures were made public in the third of a series of supplements to the survey of American listed corporations.

The steel companies studied were the American Rolling Mill Co., Bethlehem Steel Corporation (Del.), Crucible Steel Co. of America, Illinois Steel Co., Inland Steel Co., Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, National Steel Corporation, Republic Steel Corporation, Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., United States Steel Corporation, Wheeling Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

The combined volume of business was $2,255,000,000 in 1939, an increase of $596,000,000 over 1938.

Rail Revenues Lead

Meanwhile the Association of American Railroads reported that 87 Class One railroads had estimated operating revenues of $292,500,660 in July compared with 267,729,097 in July, 1939, and $387,342,430 in July, 1930.

The association said the 87 reporting railroads represent 80.5 per cent of total operating revenues of all Class One railroads.

The reporting carriers had freight revenue of $238,598,093 in July compared with 211,349,471 in July, 1939, and $279,873,982 in July, 1930.

Abbott Laboratories Votes Extra Dividend

Chicago, Aug. 15 (AP).—Directors of Abbott Laboratories today declared an extra dividend of 10 cents per share on no-par common stock in addition to the regular quarterly common dividend of 40 cents per share, both payable September 30 to stock of record September 12.

The directors also declared a regular quarterly dividend of $1.12½ on the $100 par value 4½ per cent cumulative preferred stock payable October 15 to stock of record October 1.

International Harvester Co. directors today declared a quarterly dividend of 40 cents a share on common stock, payable October 15 to stockholders of record September 20.

Wholesale Commodity Index at 1940 Low

The Labor Department reported yesterday that the index of wholesale commodity prices declined 0.1 per cent in the week ended August 10 to the lowest level reached this year. The index ended August 10 to the lowest level reached this year. The index for all commodities stood at 76.9 per cent of the 1926 average, which was a decline of 3.3 per cent from the year's high of 79.5 for the week ended January 6.

Oil Output Steady

Tulsa, Aug. 14 (AP).—Daily crude oil production in the United States declined 2,136 barrels to 3,492,081 for the week ended August 10, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

Stock Prices Hold Firm in Calm Dealings; Aviations, Steels and Rails Edge Higher

New York, Aug. 15.—Still handicapped by the war news, particularly by the impossibility of appraising the actual damage wrought by the German bombers, the stock market, nevertheless, was firm to higher today. Its advance was in line with the action of the London market, which is a puzzle to New York traders.

Throughout the four days of heavy bombardment from the skies, the London market has refused to become panicky, and there has been no session there similar to that we had Tuesday.

Judged by the composite average, the New York list gained 0.14 point today. Trading was dull, only 223,880 shares changing hands. The best performance was turned in by the aviation group, followed by the steels and better grade rails. Stores were set back a mite after their recent good performance and the utilities were neglected. An impressive group of leaders added a point or more, and Wall Street went home in a better frame of mind, although nervous.

Evidence that the major aviation companies are going ahead with expansion programs, on the promise that they will not be penalized in later years for expenditures made now to forward the defense program, brought these stocks to the fore.

The man in the street cannot comprehend why Congress has not long ago made it possible for expenditures incurred in connection with the vital arming program to be written off in a period of five years or less, instead of in the normal 20 years. This problem is quite distinct from the excess profits tax discussion, and it has been the great bottleneck in carrying out the program. On verbal assurance from Washington, however, the aviation companies are going ahead, which makes it possible for them to accept the orders which the Army and Navy have in blueprint form.

United Aircraft added more than a point and fractional advances were scored by Sperry, Douglas, Grumman, Martin and North American Aviation Corporation was the most active of the group and eased a fraction.

International Paper issues continued in popularity with the common, the day's most active stock, and the preferred up 1¼. Reports of a high level of business for the Chrysler Corporation, including contracts in connection with the defense program, brought a good following into this leader and it gained more than a point. General Motors also was in demand and added a point. United States Steel and Bethlehem led this group into higher ground, and there were a number of individual features, including duPont, up 1⅛, and Westinghouse. American Smelting was well liked in the metal division, while Pennsylvania set the pace for the rails.

Supporting the rails was a favorable report on carloadings, which had been expected to show a setback. Instead there was a contraseasonal rise of 1.2 per cent over the previous week and the betterment compared with a year ago is 10 per cent.

Less favorable was the report on heavy construction as compiled by Engineering News-Record which showed a drop both from the previous week and the same week a year ago. For the year to date, however, private awards are 21 per cent ahead of 1939, while public awards are down 6 per cent.

Leading business indices indicate some slowing down at the moment but the outlook is favorable if the defense program gets into full swing. Expenditures of $15,000,000,000 on defense within the next two or three years is a possibility; an amount which will make previous pump-priming expenditures look small.

Listed bonds were steady to firm in another quiet session today. Trading totaled only $2,980,000, with the dullness plainly attributable to the growing uncertainties of the European war. The strictly investment section was quite calm.

United States Treasury issues moved up a 1-32 of a point, when changed at all. Best rated utility, railroad and industrial bonds were steady.

In the foreign section the British Empire issues of Canada and Australia improved, notwithstanding the furious Nazi attacks on the home country. German bonds were irregular, while both Italian and Greek issues fell on the sinking of a Greek warship. Obligations of countries occupied by Reich troops were mostly better. Argentines advanced 1 to 2 points, while other Latin-Americans were dull.

Speculative railroad issues of domestic origin managed to move up by small fractions, with a few bonds showing larger gains. Alleghany Corporation bonds showed strength, and a little interest also was shown in utility holding issues. The obligations of companies with extensive foreign investments were not in demand, but there was a little improvement among other special groups.

Firm Guarantees Jobs For Drafted Employes

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Johns-Manville Corporation, a leading manufacturer of building supplies, notified its 10,000 employes today that any of them called for a year's military training under the proposed selective service on National Guard acts would be reemployed without loss of company benefits.

During the peace-time training period, the company said it would keep up premium payments on life, health and group accident insurance carried through the concern.

Cotton Carryover Lower on July 31

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that this year's cotton carryover, or cotton on hand at the end of the 1939-40 cotton year which ended July 31, totaled 10,595,720 bales. A year ago there was a record carry-over of 13,032,513 bales. There were 11,533,439 bales two years ago, and 4,492,848 bales three years ago.

The bureau reported that cotton consumed during July totaled 597,850 bales of lint and 80,000 of linters, compared with 556,850 and 79,254 during June this year, and 521,353 and 73,382 during July last year.

Grain Weaker, Other Staples Remain Firm

Dealers Preoccupied With War Reports; Trading Limited

By the Associated Press

The speculative commodity price structure had a good foundation but trading was limited by dealers' preoccupations with the Battle of England.

Grains recorded losses. Chicago wheat closed ⅝ to 1 cent a bushel lower and corn dipped slightly.

Prices were unchanged to moderately higher for zinc, copper, cottonseed oil, Santos coffee, cocoa, rubber, silk and hides.

Fluctuations in other leading New York futures markets were mixed and narrow. Cotton ended 2 points higher to as much down.

Despite the improvement in futures the Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staples declined to 69.40 per cent of the 1926 averages from 69.48 per cent Wednesday.

Apple Estimate Revised Higher In Piedmont Area

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 15.—While commercial apple growers of Virginia expect to harvest a crop somewhat under that of 1939, the output in the Piedmont area, around Albemarle, Nelson and Amherst counties, is expected to exceed the early spring forecast.

According to a local broker, approximately 400 cars of apples will be shipped from this section, compared with 450 cars a year ago. Albemarle Pippins are a good crop, with Winesaps fair. Seventy per cent of the fruit will be packed in bushel baskets, 20 per cent in barrels, 5 per cent in boxes and 5 per cent bulk.

Reports from various sections of Albemarle vary. Crozet growers say prospects are for a fine crop, with better quality than a year ago. North Garden estimates a 75 per cent crop, with 60 cars for shipment, as compared with 80 a year ago. At Greenwood the yield will be lighter than last year, while at nearby Ivy an increase of 50 per cent is estimated.

Building Awards Shrink in Week

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—A lull in big defense contracts dropped engineering construction awards this week to $45,305,000, a level 41 per cent below the previous week and 26 per cent smaller than the corresponding week last year, Engineering News-Record reported today.

Private awards were 49 per cent greater than the previous week but 22 per cent lower than last year. Public construction was 57 per cent and 27 per cent smaller, respectively, than the week before and a year ago.

Bank Reserves Up 60 Millions During Week

Increase Declared Due to Treasury Gold Buying

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday lendable excess reserves of banks increased $60,000,000 to $6,390,000,000 in the week ended August 14.

The increase was due almost entirely to Treasury gold purchases.

The board's statement said:

"During the week ended August 14 member bank reserve balances increased $54,000,000. Additions to member bank reserves arose from increases of $121,000,000 in gold stock, $24,000,000 in reserve bank credit and $2,000,000 in Treasury currency, offset in part by increases of $17,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks, $15,000,000 in money in circulation, $5,000,000 in Treasury cash and $57,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts. Excess reserves of member banks on August 14 were estimated to be approximately $6,390,000,000, an increase of $60,000,000 for the week."

Changes in member bank reserve balances and related items during the week and the year ended August 14, 1940, were reported as follows:

Note Circulation Rises

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—A rise of about $4,000,000 in Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation was reported by the New York Federal Reserve Bank in its weekly condition statement today.

Reserve balances of member banks increased around $11,000,000 and gold certificates on hand and due from the United States Treasury were up about $47,000,000.

Holdings of United States Government securities were unchanged. The condensed statement follows:

Vacations Depress Machine Tool Index

Cleveland, Aug. 15 (AP).—Vacation schedules sent the National Machine Tool Builders' Association operating rate down to 88.3 per cent of estimated capacity in July from 92.3 per cent in June, the association reported today.

The operating rate, 74.6 per cent in September, was between 91.2 per cent and 93.4 per cent from November through June. However, actual production has increased much more than the operating rate shows because capacity, measured by pay roll hours, now is 29.9 per cent above the first month of the European war.

Welders Get FTC Rules

Health Budget, Up 37%, Plans 2 New Clinics

Dr. Ruhland Asks $3,541,457 in '42, 235 More Employes

Health Officer George C. Ruhland yesterday sent to the Commissioners his 1942 budget estimates totaling $3,541,457, an increase of 37 per cent over the current appropriation.

Features of the new program are:

Employment of 235 additional employes to augment all branches of the medical services, Gallinger Hospital and the Glenn Dale Sanatorium.

A $250,000 health center for the northwest central area of the District, a territory which has the highest death rate in the city.

Plan Mental Clinic

Establishment of a mental hygiene clinic, as proposed in the Kepecs report.

Creation of a cancer-control clinic, recommended several years ago by the United States Public Health Service.

An item for $250,000 to begin construction at Gallinger Hospital of a children's ward building, four two-family staff houses, one interns' quarters for 80 physicians, a hospital laboratory, and remodeling of the kitchen and laundry buildings.

Dr. William Mann yesterday also submitted his estimates for operation of the Zoo next year. He asked for $458,135, almost double the present appropriation of $239,910. About half of the increase would be used to repair and resurface the roads in the Zoo Park.

Other increases were $37,000 to replace the bird-house roof; $4,000 to recover the silver gull cage; $2,405 for the great flight cage; $2,000 to reroof the antelope building; $2,500 for the reptile house interior; $2,500 to reroof the lion house; $5,000 for bear den repairs; $3,000 for remodeling the Zoo office building; $5,000 for miscellaneous repairs, and $30,810 for 17 additional personnel.

Asks More Employes

In preparing the Health Department budget for next year's needs, Dr. Ruhland used the pruning knife very sparingly.

Deficiencies in the Health Department's personnel have been costly to the District, the health officer pointed out. In requesting four new social workers for the hospital permit bureau, Dr. Ruhland stated he would be able to investigate properly all admissions to the municipal hospitals. This would result in many more rejections on the ground that the patient is able to pay the bill and therefore in increased collections from these patients.

For the 11-month period, July 1, 1939, to May 31, 1940, there were 37,560 hospital admissions. Of this number 11,527, or 41.8 per cent, were cleared by the bureau.

Cancer Control Clinic

Establishment of a cancer control clinic to combat the disease which is the second largest cause of death in the District has already been established in many cities Dr. Ruhland stated. Only $9,240 is required to place this clinic in operation.

Because of the comparatively high infant mortality rate for the District, Dr. Ruhland made an urgent request for 32 additional employes for the Bureau of Maternal and Child Welfare. He pointed out that the District ranks twenty-third among the 26 largest cities in infant mortality. Last year 671 infants died along with 67 deaths from puerperal causes. Child hygiene work is one of the most important activities of the department, Dr. Ruhland stated.

The mental hygiene clinic would concentrate in services for children. To set up the clinic Dr. Ruhland requested $11,600, which he declared will merely "scratch the surface" of the need.

More Nurses Asked

The health officer renewed his requests for additional nurses for the nursing bureau, following the recommendations of the U. S. P. H. S. He requests 20 additional nurses and two supervisors to augment the 81 now on the staff.

To fight tuberculosis, which last year caused the deaths of 568 persons, the health officer made a request for ten additional aides, for the tuberculosis clinic. Washington had the second highest tuberculosis death rate out of 26 cities in 1937.

Almost daily at Gallinger Hospital, some 80 children are housed in a compartment located in the physchopathic group. The surroundings of this ward, Dr. Ruhland commented, "are obviously far from ideal . . . and all things considered, are not in keeping with modern standards." The hospital this year received two new buildings under the PWA program but no provision was made for the children, internes or the laboratory. The $250,000 requested would make possible a beginning on the building requirements at the hospital.

More Sanatorium Employes

Reason for most of the increase of $165,105 requested for the Glenn Dale Sanatorium is found in two items—personnel and new equipment. Forty-seven new employes to be paid about $70,000 and equipment costing $80,910 are requested. The total budget for the sanatorium is $807,365. This compares with $642,260 for this year.

The Gallinger Hospital budget totals $1,325,540, and compares with a 1941 appropriation of $1,003,440. Forty-nine new employes would be added to the staff. With the beginning of this fiscal year the hospital found it "imperative" to institute a 44-hour work week for all employes, Dr. Ruhland stated.

New Law Demands Her Fingerprints

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

READY AND WILLING—A number of New York night club entertainers are protesting the new police decree requiring performers to be fingerprinted. One of the entertainers who do not object to having their carmine-tinted, well-manicured nails smudged with ink is Yvette Dare, dancer, who performs with Einstein, her sarong-pulling parrot.

Bill Offered Ceding D. C. To Maryland

House Surprise Move Fails to Budge Representation Bloc

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Congressional supporters of national representation for the Capital vigorously reaffirmed their positions yesterday in the wake of a surprise move in the House to cede the District to Maryland.

"I don't think I could approve such a measure," commented Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, on being informed of the introduction of a bill by Representative Jack Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, which would incorporate into the State of Maryland all of Washington except the White House, Capitol, Mall and whatever other land was held vital to the Federal Government's needs.

"I'm against it," said Chairman Jennings Randolph, of the House District Committee.

Withholding direct comment on the Nichols bill, Representative Hatton W. Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the Judiciary Committee and sponsor of legislation aimed at giving the District a voice in the Federal and municipal governments, pointed out that only the day before he had deprecated cession to Maryland as a possible solution of the problem.

Representative E. E. Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, who, at a Rules Committee hearing Wednesday, asked Sumners and Representative U. S. Guyer (Republican), of Kansas, if they didn't think cession was the best solution, declined to comment on Nichol's proposal.

Exceptions Specified

Here are the salient features of the plan of the Oklahoman, who is a member of the House District Committee:

The Capitol grounds, the White House grounds and the Mall, plus such other land adjoining the Mall as a five-person board shall decide, is to remain in custody of the Federal Government, will be exempt from incorporation in Maryland.

Members of the board will be representatives, one each, of the Senate, House, Interior Department and National Capital Park and Planning Commission, also one "free holder" who resides in the District but is not a Government employe. He would be named by the President.

When this commission completed its task, the President would appoint another five-person board to negotiate with the Governor of Maryland. This group would comprise one representative each from the Senate, House and Interior Department and two non-official District residents.

Upon ratification of the cession by the Maryland Legislature, the issue would be put up to District residents through a referendum. An adverse vote would kill the plan. Passage would be the last step necessary to make what is now the District of Columbia a part of Maryland. City and county governments would be chartered by the State Legislature and Congressional apportionment altered to fit the new scheme.

Holds Amendment Unnecessary

There's no need for a constitutional amendment to give Washingtonians the vote," said Nichols. (The Sumners resolution, requiring passage by a two-thirds majority in both Senate and House, provides for submission to the States of a proposed amendment which, if adopted, authorizes Congress to give the District national representation and the voting franchise).

Rites Tomorrow For Capt. Goodhue, Gun Shop Chief

Funeral services for Capt. Wells Eldredge Goodhue, 49, U. S. N., retired, formerly in charge of the gun shop at the Navy Yard, will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow at the Lee funeral home, Fourth street and Massachusetts avenue northeast, with burial in Arlington Cemetery at 10 a. m.

Capt. Goodhue died yesterday at Cedarcroft Sanitarium, Silver Spring, Md. He was taken ill at his home in Annapolis a few days ago.

Capt. Goodhue was born in Evanston, Ill., and was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1911. During the World War he served in Europe. He was executive officer aboard the U. S. S. Marblehead when the vessel convoyed transportation of marines to China following the Panay incident.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Anna Harrison Goodhue; a son, Wells E., jr., and a daughter, Jacqueline, all of Annapolis; a sister, Mrs. Louise Hermesch, of San Diego, and an uncle, Capt. E. E. Goodhue, U. S. Naval Supply Corps.

Simms' Funeral To Be Held Today

Private funeral services for Robert T. Simms, 25, branch manager of the Melchoir, Armstrong & Dessau Air-Conditioning Co., will be held at 11 a. m. today at the Lee funeral home, Fourth street and Massachusetts avenue northeast. Mr. Simms died Wednesday in Doctors Hospital after a long illness.

He was born in Frederick, Md., and educated in the public schools of Philadelphia. He had lived in the Washington area for the past seven years. At the time of his death his home was at 8712 Reading road, Silver Spring, Md.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Doris Fraser Simms, and a son, Robert T. Simms, jr., both of Silver Spring; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Simms, and a brother, Harvey Simms, all of Washington.

Contract Bridge

Charles H. Kesler, New York patent attorney, made an overtrick at four spades by an end play on today's hand during a recent duplicate tournament.

East opened the ace of clubs and, receiving a high card from his partner, continued. Mr. Kisler ruffed this trick. He saw that his game was certain even with both kings against him, but he searched for the overtrick, a negligible factor at rubber bridge, but often the difference between "top" and "bottom" at duplicate. If East held the spade king guarded, Mr. Kesler could manipulate an end play to do away with a finesse in the heart suit. He cashed the ace of spades; both adversaries followed, but the king did not drop. He could not tell exactly who had the king, but it was most likely East, as he had made the overcall. Declarer played the queen, king and ace of diamonds, tossing a heart; East refused to ruff with the king. North then led a trump and East was forced into the lead. He had to play a club, giving declarer a heart discard in the dummy and a ruff in his hand, or lead a heart from his king, which would let Mr. Kesler make the queen and ace. He made four spades with an overtrick, losing a spade and a club.

Today's Radio Highlights

7 p. m., WMAL—Seven-year-old Patsy O'Shea, of Brooklyn, insists she's the only person in America who really understands the plays of William Saroyan. She played one of the Yearlings in the enchanting "Love's Old Sweet Song"; still she exaggerates a bit in her boast—we hope! She has a role in tonight's Strictly Business.

7, WRC—Lucille Manners chooses Coates' "Bird Songs at Eventide" for her evening's highlight with Dr. Frank Black's orchestra. Ross Graham, barytone, joins her in Jerome Kern's "I Am So Eager" and on his own sings Geehl's "For You Alone." Dr. Black demonstrates for the first time on the air a new electronic instrument, the solovox.

7:30, WJSV—Arthur Donovan, fight referee who has been the third man in the ring at most of the big championship bouts of the past decade, pits his knowledge of sports against that of Tuss McLaughry, veteran Brown University football coach on Choose Up Sides. Arthur Mann is Donovan's partner, Cas Adams McLaughry's.

7:30, WOL—Cesare Sodero conducts Alfred Wallenstein's Sinfonietta during the latter's holiday.

8:30, WOL—Jean Muir, of the screen, plays "Lorna Doone" for Command Performance.

9, WJSV—From the auditorium of Elwood High School in Wendell Willkie's Indiana comes a parade of old friends who knew the Republican nominee when: Abe Levi, the junk dealer who gave him his first job; the girl with whom he had his first date, and Homer Capehart, Elwood businessman, talk with Bob Trout and funster Walter O'Keefe.

9:30, WRC—Gerard Darrow, 8, Van Dyke Tiers, 13, and Cynthia Cline, 14, are still on Quiz Kids, having held onto their opening night jobs despite the heated contests waged by other visitors who seek the join the fivesome.

9:30, WMAL—Bing Crosby's new film, "Rhythm on the River" enjoys an exclusive press preview—you know, a nice intimate affair with a Nation-wide hook-up.

9:45, WOL—Richard Czerwonky conducts the Women's Symphony Orchestra of Chicago in the "Rhine Journey" from Wagner's "Siegfried."

Listen!
with Glynn

More than a dozen of Wendell L. Willkie's old home-town friends come before a C. B. S. microphone tonight from 9 to 9:30 to tell WJSV listeners about the Elwood, Ind., boy who grew up to make a bid for the White House as the Republican Presidential nominee.

The broadcast is to originate in the auditorium of the Elwood High School which Willkie attended. Bob Trout, C. B. S. special events reporter who stems from WJSV (as if we'd let you forget), and Walter O'Keefe, chairman of the Republican National Committee's radio, stage and screen division, conduct the interviews.

Leading the procession will be Abe Levi, the Elwood junk dealer who gave the Republican number one man his first job; Homer Capehart, the prominent musical machine manufacturer, and the girl with whom Willkie had his first date.

Tomorrow, of course, come the formal notification ceremonies, and WJSV carries three broadcasts in connection therewith. The first at 3:15 p. m. will be the informal greeting to the townsfolk. At 4 will come the formal acceptance speech. At 10:15, C. B. S. will put on a roundup of opinion on the speech culled from leading newspapers of the country—including, of course, your favorite Washington journal.

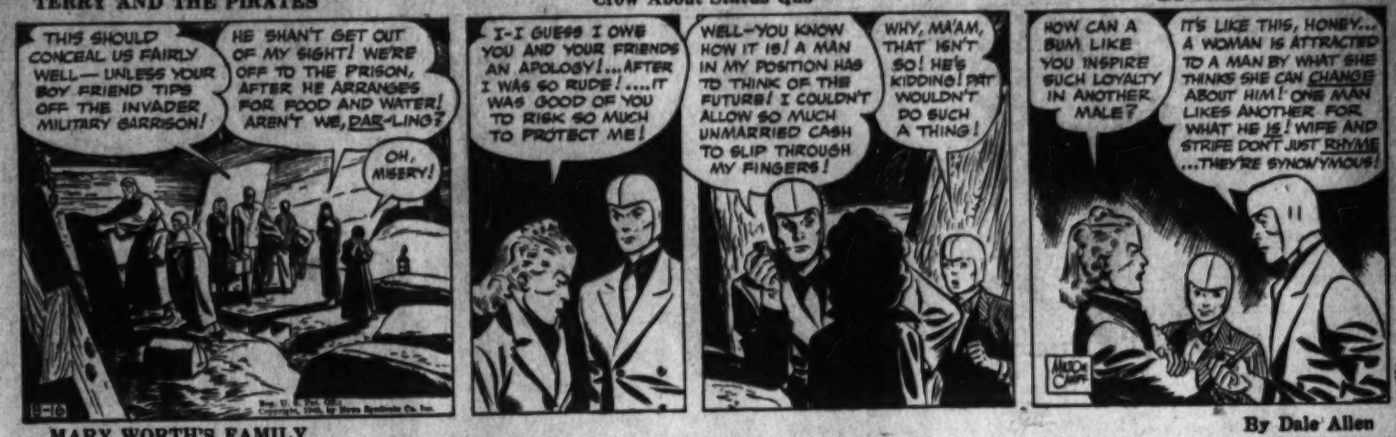
TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Crow About Status Quo — BY MILTON CANIFF



THIS SHOULD CONCEAL US FAIRLY WELL—UNLESS YOUR BOY FRIEND TIPS OFF THE INVADER MILITARY GARRISON!
HE SHAN'T GET OUT OF MY SIGHT! WE'RE OFF TO THE PRISON, AFTER HE ARRANGES FOR FOOD AND WATER! AREN'T WE, DAR-LING?
OH, MISERY!
I-I GUESS I OWE YOU AND YOUR FRIENDS AN APOLOGY!...AFTER I WAS SO RUDE!....IT WAS GOOD OF YOU TO RISK SO MUCH TO PROTECT ME!
WELL—YOU KNOW HOW IT IS! A MAN IN MY POSITION HAS TO THINK OF THE FUTURE! I COULDN'T ALLOW SO MUCH UNMARRIED CASH TO SLIP THROUGH MY FINGERS!
WHY, MA'AM, THAT ISN'T SO! HE'S KIDDING! BUT WOULDN'T DO SUCH A THING!
HOW CAN A BUM LIKE YOU INSPIRE SUCH LOYALTY IN ANOTHER MALE?
IT'S LIKE THIS, HONEY... A WOMAN IS ATTRACTED TO A MAN BY WHAT SHE THINKS SHE CAN CHANGE ABOUT HIM! ONE MAN LIKES ANOTHER FOR WHAT HE IS! WIFE AND STRIFE DON'T JUST RHYME ...THEY'RE SYNONYMOUS!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

BUT, JOHN, DARLING! YOU DON'T MEAN THE CROWD WOULDN'T LET YOU SPEAK?
THAT'S WHAT IT AMOUNTED TO, LEONA!
MOST OF THEM APPARENTLY SWALLOWED THE SUN-POST CHARGE THAT I BELONG TO THE PURPLE SHIRTS! AND GOVERNOR SWILLER'S STRONG-ARM SQUAD LED THE HECKLING!
BUT THE PURPLE SHIRTS KNOW YOU HATE EVERYTHING THEY STAND FOR...
EXACTLY! THAT'S WHY THEY'RE GIVING ME PUBLIC SUPPORT.. THEY KNOW THEIR OPEN SPONSORING OF MY CAMPAIGN WILL BEAT ME!
THEN THEY'LL DOUBLE THE EFFECT BY SECRETLY VOTING AGAINST ME--AND I'M WHIPPED, UNLESS THE PUBLIC BELIEVES THIS STATEMENT I'M PREPARING FOR RELEASE TOMORROW!

Excess Profits Bill Change Is Approved

Would Allow Broader Base for Computing Normal Earnings

By the Associated Press

The House Ways and Means Committee today made a change in the proposed excess profits tax which, Treasury experts later informed the legislators, would reduce the levy's yield for 1940 from $190,000,000 to $107,000,000.

The basic idea of the legislation is to apply a tax on part of the profits which are in excess of a concern's average earnings during a base period in the past. Originally, a subcommittee decided to make this base period the four years 1936-39, inclusive.

Yesterday the full committee decided to let each corporation select, as its base, the three of those years in which it had its best earnings. The elemination of the worst year would increase—in most cases—the amount of income exempt from the profits tax.

Recheck of Figures Ordered

When the Treasury estimate of the $83,00,000 revenue loss was received, some committee members talked of moving to reverse the decision, but action was delayed until today. In the meantime, Congressional tax experts were told to recheck the Treasury figures.

While the committee deliberated, John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, wrote Chairmen Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, of the Ways and Means group and Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, of the Senate Finance Committee that "labor is alarmed at the bold sabotage of national defense representatives of American corporate industry as shown by high-handed refusal of industry to expand its resources for defense until it receives immunity from proper taxation."

Lewis objected, among other things, to a plan for permitting corporations to deduct in entirety from their taxable income the cost of expansions due to national defense.

Cautions Against Haste

The committee was cautioned in a statement filed by Emmett F. Connely, of Detroit, president of the Investment Bankers Association, against "hasty legislation."

The Treasury estimated yesterday that Federal expenditures, exclusive of debt retirements, would total $12,058,000,000 this fiscal year, of which $5,000,000,000 would go for National defense.

John L. Sullivan, assistant secretary, submitted the estimate to the Ways and Means Committee in response to a question by Representative Treadway (Republican), Massachusetts, as to whether there has been any reduction in non-defense expenditures since the big defense program was launched.

Sullivan's memorandum said non-defense expenditures totalled $7,544,000,000 in the fiscal year ended June 30 1939; $7,439,000,000 in the following year, and estimated $7,058,000,000 would be spent during the current year.

Expenditures Cited

Defense expenditures for the year ended June 30, 1939, were given as $1,163,000,000, for the following year as $1,559,000,000 and were estimated for the current year at $5,000,000,000.

The total expenditures for the three years was given as $8,707,000,000 for fiscal 1939, $8,998,000,000 for fiscal 1940, and an estimated $12,058,000,000 for the current year.

In response to another question by Treadway as to how much the present $49,000,000,000 debt limit should be increased for defense purposes, Sullivan said that it was "difficult to give a categorical opinion" as to how much of the program should be financed by taxation and how much by borrowing.

"There are numerous factors which influence this determination, such as the rapidity with which the defense program is carried forward, the additional revenues that will be collected under existing tax laws as a result of improvements which may materialize in general business conditions, etc.," Sullivan's memorandum said.

Rev. O. L. LLoyd Again to Head Potomac Baptists

Special Dispatch to The Post

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 15.—The Rev. Owen L. Lloyd, of Alexandria, was reelected moderator of the Potomac Baptist Association at the closing session today in North Fork Baptist Church. Robert Hutchison, of Manassas, was reelected assistant moderator; C. Wirth Trainham, of Marshall, clerk; J. L. Rollins, assistant clerk, and L. L. Leadman, treasurer.

Robert Hutchison was named president of the acting board, which consists of a representative from each church in the association.

The 1941 meeting of the association will be held at the Manassas Baptist Church about the middle of August. The Rev. Henry B. Cole, of Hamilton, will preach the annual sermon.

The principal speaker on the program today was the Rev. Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, of Washington, leader of the United Baptist program, who discussed "Religious Liberty." Dr. J. J. Wicker, president of the Fork Union Academy, and the Rev. J. A. St. Clair, of Washington, Va., also spoke.

Va. Floods Cancel Famed Folk Fete

Abingdon, Va., Aug. 15 (AP).—Officials announced cancellation of the White Top Folk Festival because of heavy rains and flood conditions in this section.

The festival, which has attracted national recognition since its inauguration seven years ago, was scheduled for today, tomorrow and Saturday.

Festival officials said that parking fields on top of the mountain were in such condition that it would be impossible to park more than a few hundred cars. Roads also were damaged by rains.

House Group In Tie Vote On Mine Bill

Backers Request Right of Way for Neely-Keller Measure

By the Associated Press

Backers of the Neely-Keller mine inspection bill took parliamentary measures yesterday to bring it to the floor of the House after two tie votes in the Mining Committee blocked release of the measure.

Representative Keller (Democrat), of Illinois, placed on the Speaker's desk a petition designed to give the bill the right of way in the House. Keller immediately began trying to obtain the necessary 218 signatures.

The bill, permitting Federal inspection of mines as a health and safety measure, is fathered by the United Mine Workers of America. Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of that union, said that in view of the tie committee votes "the petition is the only mechanical way of getting the bill out and doesn't cast any aspersions on the committee."

Vote Is 9 to 9

The committee voted 9 to 9 on motion to recommend the bill to the House and the same way on a motion to report it without recommendation.

John Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, said in a statement that "those men who refused to vote out the bill must be fairly convinced it is not a bill in the interest of mine safety. It is a political measure, nothing more. That has been our contention all along.

"There is not a word of testimony in the record to prove that it would prevent accidents."

Smith Dissatisfied

Chairman Smith (Democrat), of West Virginia, of the Mines Committee, said he was dissatisfied with the manner in which the bill was handled.

"I believe," he said, after the committee meeting, "that proponents of this bill who have worked for it so many months should have a 'yes' or 'no' answer, instead of a parliamentary situation."

A subcommittee headed by Representative Somers (Democrat), of New York, which conducted hearings on the inspection bill, reported that steps to improve mine safety were necessary, but contended the powers proposed in the bill existed in the present Federal laws.

Justice Dept. Sues Alleged Gypsum Trust

Six Firms, Eight Officers Named In Monopoly Charge

The District court yesterday was asked to smash an alleged monopoly of the country's gypsum industry, which does a $50,000,000-a-year trade in materials essential to the construction business.

Six companies and eight of their officers were named defendants in a civil suit filed by the Department of Justice under the Sherman Anti-trust Act. Several of the civil defendants were indicted under criminal provisions of the act some weeks ago.

The Government complaint, with annexed exhibits, was more than an inch thick. The complaint recited the history of the gypsum industry since this mineral began to displace lime in construction work, about 1900. Light, strong and durable, gypsum has come to be an indispensable building material. It is used in 90 pe. cent of the plaster used in building. The substance also is prepared in the form of laths, to which plaster is applied, and wallboard.

By means of a patent pool, licensing agreements and other allegedly improper methods, the Government charged, a small group of companies has established a monopoly which pegsp rices at a high level and rigidly controls the entire trade. The monopoly was alleged to sell all the gypsum board and 80 per cent of the plaster used east of the Rocky Mountains.

The Government asked the District Court to declare that the defendants have conspired to restrain trade and have established an unlawful monopoly, and to enjoin them forever from pegging prices, pooling patents and making agreements to control prices.

The defendants in the civil suit were: United tates Gypsum Co., Chicago; National Gypsum Co., Buffalo; Certain-Teed Products Corporation, New York; the Celotex Corporation, Chicago; Ebsary Gypsum Co., Inc., New York; Newark Plaster Co., Newark, N. J.; Samuel M. Gloyd, trading as Texas Cement Plaster Co., Oklahoma City, Okla.

Also Sewell L. Avery, Chicago, chairman of the board, United States Gypsum Vo.; Oliver M. Knode, Chicago, president, United States Gypsum Co.; Melvin H. Baker, Buffalo, president of National; Bror H. Dahlberg, Chicago, president of Celotex and board chairman of Certain-Teed; Henry J. Hartley, New York, president of Certain-Teed.
